Motions by law firms for carriage of a class action. Sino-Forest was a forestry plantation company. There were three proposed class actions against it to recover alleged losses arising from the crash in value of its shares and notes. The proposed class actions were Labourers v. Sino-Forest, Smith v.

Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest. The proposed representative plaintiffs for Labourers v. Sino-Forest were three pension funds and two individuals. The proposed representative plaintiffs for Smith v. Sino-Forest were two individuals. The proposed representative plaintiffs for Northwest v. Sino-Forest were an investment management company, a non-profit financial services firm and a partnership that managed portfolios and investment funds. Labourers v. Sino-Forest included as class members shareholders and noteholders who purchased in Canada, but excluded non-Canadians who purchased in a foreign marketplace. Smith v. Sino-Forest included shareholders, but not bondholders. Northwest v. Sino-Forest included both, with no geographic limits. All proposed actions focused primarily on claims of negligence and negligent misrepresentation, but Northwest v. Sino-Forest also claimed fraudulent misrepresentation against all defendants. The law firms, in advancing their respective merits for carriage, made arguments raising as issues the characteristics of the representative plaintiffs; definition of class membership; definition of class period; theory of the case; causes of action; joinder of defendants; prospects of certification; attributes of class counsel; retainer, legal and forensic resources; funding; conflicts of interest; and the plaintiff and defendant correlation.

HELD: Carriage awarded to the law firm acting in Labourers v. Sino-Forest; stay of the other two proposed actions. The determinative factors were the characteristics of the representative plaintiffs, definition of class membership, definition of class period, theory of the case, causes of action, joinder of defendants and prospects of certification. The expertise and participation of the institutional candidates for representative plaintiffs, as investors in the securities marketplace, could contribute to the successful prosecution of the lawsuit on behalf of the class members. The institutional candidates were pursuing access to justice in a way that ultimately benefited other class members should their actions be certified as a class proceeding. The individual candidates might not be the best voice for their fellow class members. The institutional candidates could not opt out, which advanced judicial economy. They were already to a large extent representative plaintiffs as they were, practically speaking, suing on behalf of their own members, who numbered in the hundreds of thousands. Labourers v. Sino-Forest had the further advantage of individual investors who could give voice to the interests of similarly situated class members. The bondholders should be included as class members. They had essentially the same misrepresentation claims as the shareholders and it made sense to have their claims litigated in the same proceeding. This conclusion hurt the case for Smith v. Sino-Forest, even though it had the best class period. Reliance on fraudulent misrepresentation as a cause of action in Northwest v. Sino-Forest was a substantial weakness. That cause of action was less desirable than those used in the other two proposed actions. It added needless complexity and costs. It was far more difficult to prove. The class members were best served by the approach in Labourers v. Sino-Forest. Neutral or non-determinative factors for purposes of carriage were the attributes of class counsel; retainer, legal and forensic resources; funding; conflicts of interest; and the plaintiff and defendant correlation. There was little difference among the law firms in terms of their suitability for bringing a proposed class action against Sino-Forest. The fact that the three institutional candidates for representative plaintiffs in Northwest v. Sino-Forest made their investments on behalf of others did not create a conflict of interest. Nor did allegations that they, having been involved in corporate governance matters associated with Sino-Forest, failed to properly evaluate the risks of investing in it. There was no conflict of interest based on the fact that Labourers' auditor was an international associate of a defendant. There was no conflict of interest between the bondholders and shareholders merely because the bondholders, unlike the shareholders, also had a cause in action in debt.

REASONS FOR DECISION

P.M. PERELL J.:--

A. INTRODUCTION

1 This is a carriage motion under the Class Proceedings Act, 1992, S.O. 1992, c. 6. In this particular carriage motion, four law firms are rivals for the carriage of a class action against Sino-Forest Corporation. There are currently four proposed Ontario class actions against Sino-Forest to recover losses alleged to be in the billions of dollars arising from the spectacular crash in value of its shares and notes.

2 Practically speaking, carriage motions involve two steps. First, the rival law firms that are seeking carriage of a class action extoll their own merits as class counsel and the merits of their client as the representative plaintiff. During this step, the law firms explain their tactical and strategic plans for the class action, and, thus, a carriage motion has aspects of being a casting call or rehearsal for the certification motion.

3 Second, the rival law firms submit that with their talent and their litigation plan, their class action is the better way to serve the best interests of the class members, and, thus, the court should choose their action as the one to go forward. No doubt to the delight of the defendants and the defendants' lawyers, which have a watching brief, the second step also involves the rivals hardheartedly and toughly reviewing and criticizing each other's work and pointing out flaws, disadvantages, and weaknesses in their rivals' plans for suing the defendants.

4 The law firms seeking carriage are: Rochon Genova LLP; Koskie Minsky LLP; Siskinds LLP; and Kim Orr Barristers P.C., all competent, experienced, and veteran class action law firms.

5 For the purposes of deciding the carriage motions, I will assume that all of the rivals have delivered their Statements of Claim as they propose to amend them.

6 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds propose to act as co-counsel and to consolidate two of the actions. Thus, the competition for carriage is between three proposed class actions; namely:

- * Smith v. Sino-Forest Corp. (11-CV-428238CP) ("Smith v. Sino-Forest") with Rochon Genova as Class Counsel
- * The Trustees of Labourers' Pension Fund of Central and Eastern Canada v. Sino-Forest Corp. (11-CV-431153CP) ("Labourers v. Sino-Forest") with Koskie Minsky and Siskinds as Class Counsel (This action would be consolidated with "Grant v. Sino Forest" (CV-11-439400-00CP)

- * Northwest & Ethical Investments L.P. v. Sino-Forest Corp. (11-CV-435826CP) ("Northwest v. Sino-Forest") with Kim Orr as Class Counsel.

7 It has been a very difficult decision to reach, but for the reasons that follow, I stay Smith v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest, and I grant carriage to Koskie Minsky and Siskinds in Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

8 I also grant leave to the plaintiffs in Labourers v. Sino-Forest to deliver a Fresh as Amended Statement of Claim, which may include the joinder of the plaintiffs and the causes of action set out in Grant v. Sino-Forest, Smith v. Sino-Forest, and Northwest v. Sino-Forest, as the plaintiffs may be advised.

9 This order is without prejudice to the rights of the Defendants to challenge the Fresh as Amended Statement of Claim as they may be advised. In any event, nothing in these reasons is intended to make findings of fact or law binding on the Defendants or to be a pre-determination of the certification motion.

B. METHODOLOGY

10 To explain my reasons, first, I will describe the jurisprudence about carriage motions. Second, I will describe the evidentiary record for the carriage motions. Third, I will describe the factual background to the claims against Sino-Forest, which is the principal but not the only target of the various class actions. Fourth, deferring my ultimate conclusions, I will analyze the rival actions that are competing for carriage under twelve headings and describe the positions and competing arguments of the law firms competing for carriage. Fifth, I will culminate the analysis of the competing actions by explaining the carriage order decision. Sixth and finally, I will finish with a concluding section.

11 Thus, the organization of these Reasons for Decision is as follows:

- * Introduction
- * Methodology
- * Carriage Orders Jurisprudence
- * Evidentiary Background
- * Factual Background to the Claims against Sino-Forest
- * Analysis of the Competing Class Actions

- * The Attributes of Class Counsel
- * Retainer, Legal and Forensic Resources, and Investigations

- * Proposed Representative Plaintiffs
 - * Funding
 - * Conflicts of Interest
 - * Definition of Class Membership
 - * Definition of Class Period
 - * Theory of the Case against the Defendants
 - * Joinder of Defendants
 - * Causes of Action
 - * The Plaintiff and the Defendant Correlation
 - * Prospects of Certification
- * Carriage Order
 - * Introduction
 - * Neutral or Non-Determinative Factors
 - * Determinative Factors
- * Conclusion

C. CARRIAGE ORDERS JURISPRUDENCE

12 There should not be two or more class actions that proceed in respect of the same putative class asserting the same cause(s) of action, and one action must be selected: Vitapharm Canada Ltd. v. F. Hoffman-Laroche Ltd., [2000] O.J. No. 4594 (S.C.J.) at para. 14. See also Vitapharm Canada Ltd. v. F. Hoffmann-La Roche Ltd., [2001] O.J. No. 3682 (S.C.J.), aff'd [2002] O.J. No. 2010 (C.A.). When counsel have not agreed to consolidate and coordinate their actions, the court will usually select one and stay all other actions: Lau v. Bayview Landmark, [2004] O.J. No. 2788 (S.C.J.) at para. 19.

13 Where two or more class proceedings are brought with respect to the same subject matter, a proposed representative plaintiff in one action may bring a carriage motion to stay all other present or future class proceedings relating to the same subject matter: Settingington v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., [2006] O.J. No. 376 (S.C.J.) at paras. 9-11; Ricardo v. Air Transat A.T. Inc., [2002] O.J. No. 1090 (S.C.J.), leave to appeal dismissed [2002] O.J. No. 2122 (S.C.J.).

14 The Class Proceedings Act, 1992, confers upon the court a broad discretion to manage the proceedings. Section 13 of the Act authorizes the court to "stay any proceeding related to the class proceeding," and s. 12 authorizes the court to "make any order it considers appropriate respecting the conduct of a class proceeding to ensure its fair and expeditious determination." Section 138 of the Courts of Justice Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. 43 directs that "as far as possible, multiplicity of legal proceedings shall be avoided." See: Settingington v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., supra, at paras. 9-11.

15 The court also has its normal jurisdiction under the Rules of Civil Procedure. Section 35 of the Class Proceedings Act, 1992, provides that the rules of court apply to class proceedings. Among the rules that are available is Rule 6, the rule that empowers the court to consolidate two or more proceedings or to order that they be heard together.

16 In determining carriage of a class proceeding, the court's objective is to make the selection that is in the best interests of class members, while at the same time being fair to the defendants and being consistent with the objectives of the Class Proceedings Act, 1992: Vitapharm Canada Ltd. v. F. Hoffman-La Roche Ltd., [2000] O.J. No. 4594 (S.C.J.) at para. 48; Settingington v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., supra, at para. 13 (S.C.J.); Sharma v. Timminco Ltd. (2009), 99 O.R. (3d) 260 (S.C.J.) at para. 14. The objectives of a class proceeding are access to justice, behaviour modification, and judicial economy for the parties and for the administration of justice.

17 Courts generally consider seven non-exhaustive factors in determining which action should proceed: (1) the nature and scope of the causes of action advanced; (2) the theories advanced by counsel as being supportive of the claims advanced; (3) the state of each class action, including preparation; (4) the number, size and extent of involvement of the proposed representative plaintiffs; (5) the relative priority of the commencement of the class actions; (6) the resources and experience of counsel; and (7) the presence of any conflicts of interest: Sharma v. Timminco Ltd., supra at para. 17.

18 In these reasons, I will examine the above factors under somewhat differently-named headings and in a different order and combination. And, I will add several more factors that the parties made relevant to the circumstances of the competing actions in the cases at bar, including: (a) funding; (b) definition of class membership; (c) definition of class period; (d) joinder of defendants; (e) the plaintiff and defendant correlation; and, (f) prospects of certification.

19 In addition to identifying relevant factors, the carriage motion jurisprudence provides guidance about how the court should determine carriage. Although the determination of a carriage motion will decide which counsel will represent the plaintiff, the task of the court is not to choose between different counsel according to their relative resources and expertise; rather, it is to determine which of the competing actions is more, or most, likely to advance the interests of the class: Tiboni v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., [2008] O.J. No. 2996 (S.C.J.), sub. nom Mignacca v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., leave to appeal granted [2008] O.J. No. 4731 (S.C.J.), aff'd [2009] O.J. No. 821 (Div. Ct.), application for leave to appeal to C.A. ref'd May 15, 2009, application for leave to appeal to S.C.C. ref'd [2009] S.C.C.A. No. 261.

20 On a carriage motion, it is inappropriate for the court to embark upon an analysis as to which claim is most likely to succeed unless one is "fanciful or frivolous": Settingington v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., supra, at para. 19.

21 In analysing whether the prohibition against a multiplicity of proceedings would be offended, it is not necessary that the multiple proceedings be identical or mirror each other in every respect; rather, the court will look at the essence of the proceedings and their similarities: Settingington v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., supra, at para. 11.

22 Where there is a competition for carriage of a class proceeding, the circumstance that one competitor joins more defendants is not determinative; rather, what is important is the rationale for the joinder and whether or not it is advantageous for the class to join the additional defendants: Joel v Menu Foods Gen-Par Limited, [2007] B.C.J. No. 2159 (B.C.S.C.); Genier v. CCI Capital Canada Ltd., [2005] O.J. No. 1135 (S.C.J.); Settingington v. Merck Frosst Canada Ltd., supra.

23 In determining which firm should be granted carriage of a class action, the court may consider whether there is any potential conflict of interest if carriage is given to one counsel as opposed to others: Joel v. Menu Foods Gen-Par Limited, supra at para. 16; Vitapharm Canada Ltd. v. F. Hoffman-Laroche Ltd., [2000] O.J. No. 4594 (S.C.J.) and [2001] O.J. No. 3673 (S.C.J.).

D. EVIDENTIARY BACKGROUND

Smith v. Sino-Forest

24 In support of its carriage motion in Smith v. Sino-Forest, Rochon Genova delivered affidavits from:

- * Ken Froese, who is Senior Managing Director of Froese Forensic Partners Ltd., a forensic accounting firm
- * Vincent Genova, who is the managing partner of Rochon Genova
- * Douglas Smith, the proposed representative plaintiff

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

25 In support of their carriage motion in Labourers v. Sino-Forest, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds delivered affidavits from:

- * Dimitri Lascaris, who is a partner at Siskinds and the leader of its class action team
- * Michael Gallagher, who is the Chair of the Board of Trustees of Operating Engineers Local 793 Pension Plan for Operating Engineers in Ontario ("Operating Engineers Fund"), a proposed representative plaintiff
- * David Grant, a proposed representative plaintiff
- * Richard Grottheim, who is the Chief Executive Officer of Sjunde AP-Fonden, a proposed representative plaintiff
- * Joseph Mancinelli, who is the Chair of the Board of Trustees of The Trustees of the Labourers' Pension Fund of Central and Eastern Canada

- ("Labourers' Fund"), a proposed representative plaintiff. He also holds senior positions with the Labourers International Union of North America, which has more than 80,000 members in Canada
- * Ronald Queck, who is Director of Investments of the Healthcare Employee Benefits Plans of Manitoba ("Healthcare Manitoba"), which would be a prominent class member in the proposed class action
 - * Frank Torchio, who is a chartered financial analyst and an expert in finance and economics who was retained to opine, among other things, about the damages suffered under various proposed class periods by Sino-Forest shareholders and noteholders under s. 138.5 of the Ontario Securities Act
 - * Robert Wong, who is a proposed representative plaintiff
 - * Mark Zigler, who is the managing partner of Koskie Minsky

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

26 In support of its carriage motion in Northwest v. Sino-Forest, Kim Orr delivered affidavits from:

- * Megan B. McPhee, a principal of the firm
- * John Mountain, who is the Senior Vice President, Legal and Human Resources, the Chief Compliance Officer and Corporate Secretary of Northwest Ethical Investments L.P. ("Northwest"), a proposed representative plaintiff
- * Zachary Nye, a financial economist who was retained to respond to Mr. Torchio's opinion
- * Daniel Simard, who is General Co-Ordinator and a non-voting ex-officio member of the Board of Directors and Committees of Comité syndical national de retraite Bâtirente inc. ("Bâtirente"), a proposed representative plaintiff
- * Michael C. Spencer, a lawyer qualified to practice in New York, California, and Ontario, who is counsel to Kim Orr and a partner and member of the executive committee at the American law firm of Milberg LLP
- * Brian Thomson, who is Vice-President, Equity Investments for British Columbia Investment Management Corporation ("BC Investment"), a proposed representative plaintiff

E. FACTUAL BACKGROUND TO THE CLAIMS AGAINST SINO-FOREST

27 The following factual background is largely an amalgam made from the unproven allegations in the Statements of Claim in the three proposed class actions and unproven allegations in the motion material delivered by the parties.

28 The Defendant, Sino-Forest is a Canadian public company incorporated under the Canada Business Corporations Act, R.S.C., 1985, c. C-44 with its registered office in Mississauga, Ontario, and its head office in Hong Kong. Its shares have traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange ("TSX") since 1995. It is a forestry plantation company with operations centered in the People's Republic of China. Its trading of securities is subject to the regulation of the Ontario Securities Act, R.S.O. 1990, c. S.5, under which it is a "reporting issuer" subject to the continuous disclosure provisions of Part XVIII of the Act and a "responsible issuer" subject to civil liability for secondary market misrepresentation under Part XXIII.1 of the Act.

29 The Defendant, Ernst & Young LLP ("E&Y") has been Sino-Forest's auditor from 1994 to date, except for 1999, when the now-defunct Arthur Andersen LLP did the audit, and 2005 and 2006, when the predecessor of what is now the Defendant, BDO Limited ("BDO") was Sino-Forest's auditor. BDO is the Hong Kong member of BDO International Ltd., a global accounting and audit firm.

30 E&Y and BDO are "experts" within the meaning of s. 138.1 of the Ontario Securities Act.

31 From 1996 to 2010, in its financial statements, Sino-Forest reported only profits, and it appeared to be an enormously successful enterprise that substantially outperformed its competitors in the forestry industry. Sino-Forest's 2010 Annual Report issued in May 2011 reported that Sino-Forest had net income of $395 million and assets of $5.7 billion. Its year-end market capitalization was $5.7 billion with approximately 246 million common shares outstanding.

32 It is alleged that Sino-Forest and its auditors E&Y and BDO repeatedly misrepresented that Sino-Forest's financial statements complied with GAAP ("generally accepted accounting principles").

33 It is alleged that Sino-Forest and its officers and directors made other misrepresentations about the assets, liabilities, and performance of Sino-Forest in various filings required under the Ontario Securities Act. It is alleged that these misrepresentations appeared in the documents used for the offerings of shares and bonds in the primary market and again in what are known as Core Documents under securities legislation, which documents are available to provide information to purchasers of shares and bonds in the secondary market. It is also alleged that misrepresentations were made in oral statements and in Non-Core Documents.

34 The Defendant, Allen T.Y. Chan was Sino-Forest's co-founder, its CEO, and a director until August 2011. He resides in Hong Kong.

35 The Defendant, Kai Kit Poon, was Sino-Forest's co-founder, a director from 1994 until 2009, and Sino-Forest's President. He resides in Hong Kong.

36 The Defendant, David J. Horsley was a Sino-Forest director (from 2004 to 2006) and was its CFO. He resides in Ontario.

37 The Defendants, William E. Ardell (resident of Ontario, director since 2010), James P.

Bowland (resident of Ontario, director since 2011), James M.E. Hyde (resident of Ontario, director since 2004), John Lawrence (resident of Ontario, deceased, director 1997 to 2006), Edmund Mak (resident of British Columbia, director since 1994), W. Judson Martin (resident of Hong Kong, director since 2006, CEO since August 2011), Simon Murray (resident of Hong Kong, director since 1999), Peter Wang (resident of Hong Kong, director since 2007) and Garry J. West (resident of Ontario, director since 2011) were members of Sino-Forest's Board of Directors.

38 The Defendants, Hua Chen (resident of Ontario), George Ho (resident of China), Alfred C.T. Hung (resident of China), Alfred Ip (resident of China), Thomas M. Maradin (resident of Ontario), Simon Yeung (resident of China) and Wei Mao Zhao (resident of Ontario) are vice presidents of Sino-Forest. The defendant Kee Y. Wong was CFO from 1999 to 2005.

39 Sino-Forest's forestry assets were valued by the Defendant, Pöyry (Beijing) Consulting Company Limited, ("Pöyry"), a consulting firm based in Shanghai, China. Associated with Pöyry are the Defendants, Pöyry Forest Industry PTE Limited ("Pöyry-Forest") and JP Management Consulting (Asia-Pacific) PTE Ltd. ("JP Management"). Each Pöyry Defendant is an expert as defined by s. 138.1 of the Ontario Securities Act.

40 Pöyry prepared technical reports dated March 8, 2006, March 15, 2007, March 14, 2008, April 1, 2009, and April 23, 2010 that were filed with SEDAR (the System of Electronic Document Analysis and Retrieval) and made available on Sino-Forest's website. The reports contained a disclaimer and a limited liability exculpatory provision purporting to protect Pöyry from liability.

41 In China, the state owns the forests, but the Chinese government grants forestry rights to local farmers, who may sell their lumber rights to forestry companies, like Sino-Forest. Under Chinese law, Sino-Forest was obliged to maintain a 1:1 ratio between lands for forest harvesting and lands for forest replantation.

42 Sino-Forest's business model involved numerous subsidiaries and the use of authorized intermediaries or "AIs" to assemble forestry rights from local farmers. Sino-Forest also used authorized intermediaries to purchase forestry products. There were numerous AIs, and by 2010, Sino-Forest had over 150 subsidiaries, 58 of which were formed in the British Virgin Islands and at least 40 of which were incorporated in China.

43 It is alleged that from at least March 2003, Sino-Forest used its business model and non-arm's length AIs to falsify revenues and to facilitate the misappropriation of Sino-Forest's assets.

44 It is alleged that from at least March 2004, Sino-Forest made false statements about the nature of its business, assets, revenue, profitability, future prospects, and compliance with the laws of Canada and China. It is alleged that Sino-Forest and other Defendants misrepresented that Sino-Forest's financial statements complied with GAPP ("generally accepted accounting principles"). It is alleged that Sino-Forest misrepresented that it was an honest and reputable corporate citizen. It is alleged that Sino-Forest misrepresented and greatly exaggerated the nature and extent of its forestry rights and its compliance with Chinese forestry regulations. It is alleged that Sino-Forest inflated its revenue, had questionable accounting practices, and failed to pay a substantial VAT liability. It is alleged that Sino-Forest and other Defendants misrepresented the role of the AIs and greatly understated the risks of Sino-Forest utilizing them. It is alleged that Sino-Forest materially understated the tax-related risks from the use of AIs in China, where tax evasion penalties are severe and potentially devastating.

45 Starting in 2004, Sino-Forest began a program of debt and equity financing. It amassed over $2.1 billion from note offerings and over $906 million from share issues.

46 On May 17, 2004, Sino-Forest filed its Annual Information Form for the 2003 year. It is alleged in Smith v. Sino-Forest that the 2003 AIF contains the first misrepresentation in respect of the nature and role of the authorized intermediaries, which allegedly played a foundational role in the misappropriation of Sino-Forest's assets.

47 In August 2004, Sino-Forest issued an offering memorandum for the distribution of 9.125% guaranteed senior notes ($300 million (U.S.)). The Defendant, Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated ("Morgan") was a note distributor that managed the note offering in 2004 and purchased and resold notes.

48 Under the Sino-Forest note instruments, in the event of default, the trustee may sue to collect payment of the notes. A noteholder, however, may not pursue any remedy with respect to the notes unless, among other things, written notice is given to the trustee by holders of 25% of the outstanding principal asking the trustee to pursue the remedy and the trustee does not comply with the request. The notes provide that no noteholder shall obtain a preference or priority over another noteholder. The notes contain a waiver and release of Sino-Forest's directors, officers, and shareholders from all liability "for the payment of the principal of, or interest on, or other amounts in respect of the notes or for any claim based thereon or otherwise in respect thereof." The notes are all governed by New York law and include non-exclusive attornment clauses to the jurisdiction of New York State and United States federal courts.

49 On March 19, 2007, Sino-Forest announced its 2006 financial results. The appearance of positive results caused a substantial increase in its share price which moved from $10.10 per share to $13.42 per share ten days later, a 33% increase.

50 In May 2007, Sino-Forest filed a Management Information Circular that represented that it maintained a high standard of corporate governance. It indicated that its Board of Directors made compliance with high governance standards a top priority.

51 In June 2007, Sino-Forest made a share prospectus offering of 15.9 million common shares at $12.65 per share ($201 million offering). Chan, Horsley, Martin, and Hyde signed the prospectus. The underwriters (as defined by s. 1. (1) of the Ontario Securities Act) were the Defendants, CIBC World Markets Inc. ("CIBC"), Credit Suisse Securities Canada (Inc.) ("Credit Suisse"), Dundee Securities Corporation ("Dundee"), Haywood Securities Inc. ("Haywood"), Merrill Lynch Canada, Inc. ("Merrill") and UBS Securities Canada Inc. ("UBS").

52 In July 2008, Sino-Forest issued a final offering memorandum for the distribution of 5% convertible notes ($345 million (U.S)) due 2013. The Defendants, Credit Suisse Securities (USA), LLC ("Credit Suisse (USA)"), and Merrill Lynch, Fenner & Smith Inc. ("Merrill-Fenner") were note distributors.

53 In June 2009, Sino-Forest made a share prospectus offering of 34.5 million common shares at $11.00 per share ($380 million offering). Chan, Horsley, Martin, and Hyde signed the prospectus. The underwriters (as defined by s. 1. (1) of the Ontario Securities Act) were Credit Suisse, Dundee, Merrill, the Defendant, Scotia Capital Inc. ("Scotia"), and the Defendant, TD Securities Inc. ("TD").

54 In June 2009, Sino-Forest issued a final offering memorandum for the exchange of senior notes for new guaranteed senior 10.25% notes ($212 million (U.S.) offering) due 2014. Credit Suisse (USA) was the note distributor.

55 In December 2009, Sino-Forest made a share prospectus offering of 22 million common shares at $16.80 per share ($367 million offering). Chan, Horsley, Martin, and Hyde signed the prospectus. The underwriters (as defined by s. 1. (1) of the Ontario Securities Act) were Credit Suisse, the Defendant, Canaccord Financial Ltd. ("Canaccord"), CIBC, Dundee, the Defendant, Maison Placements Canada Inc. ("Maison"), Merrill, the Defendant, RBC Dominion Securities Inc. ("RBC"), Scotia, and TD.

56 In December 2009, Sino-Forest issued an offering memorandum for 4.25% convertible senior notes ($460 million (U.S.) offering) due 2016. The note distributors were Credit Suisse (USA), Merrill-Fenner, and TD.

57 In October 2010, Sino-Forest issued an offering memorandum for 6.25% guaranteed senior notes ($600 million (U.S.) offering) due 2017. The note distributors were Banc of America Securities LLC ("Banc of America") and Credit Suisse USA.

58 Sino-Forest's per-share market price reached a high of $25.30 on March 31, 2011.

59 It is alleged that all the financial statements, prospectuses, offering memoranda, MD&As (Management Discussion and Analysis), AIFs (Annual Information Forms) contained misrepresentations and failures to fully, fairly, and plainly disclose all material facts relating to the securities of Sino-Forest, including misrepresentations about Sino-Forest's assets, its revenues, its business activities, and its liabilities.

60 On June 2, 2011, Muddy Waters Research, a Hong Kong investment firm that researches Chinese businesses, released a research report about Sino-Forest. Muddy Waters is operated by Carson Block, its sole full-time employee. Mr. Block was a short-seller of Sino-Forest stock. His Report alleged that Sino-Forest massively exaggerates its assets and that it had engaged in extensive related-party transactions since the company's TSX listing in 1995. The Report asserted, among other allegations, that a company-reported sale of $231 million in timber in Yunnan Province was largely fabricated. It asserted that Sino-Forest had overstated its standing timber purchases in Yunnan Province by over $800 million.

61 The revelations in the Muddy Waters Report had a catastrophic effect on Sino-Forest's share price. Within two days, $3 billion of market capitalization was gone and the market value of Sino-Forest's notes plummeted.

62 Following the release of the Muddy Waters Report, Sino-Forest and certain of its officers and directors released documents and press releases and made public oral statements in an effort to refute the allegations in the Report. Sino-Forest promised to produce documentation to counter the allegations of misrepresentations. It appointed an Independent Committee of Messrs. Ardell, Bowland and Hyde to investigate the allegations contained in the Muddy Waters Report. After these assurances, Sino-Forest's share price rebounded, trading as high as 60% of its previous day's close, eventually closing on June 6, 2011 at $6.16, approximately 18% higher from its previous close.

63 On June 7, the Independent Committee announced that it had appointed PricewaterhouseCoopers ("PWC") to assist with the investigation. Several law firms were also hired to assist in the investigation.

64 However, bad news followed. Reporters from the Globe and Mail travelled to China, and on June 18 and 20, 2011, the newspaper published articles that reported that Yunnan Province forestry officials had stated that their records contradicted Sino-Forest's claim that it controlled almost 200,000 hectares in Yunnan Province.

65 On August 26, 2011, the Ontario Securities Commission ("OSC") issued an order suspending trading in Sino-Forest's securities and stated that: (a) Sino-Forest appears to have engaged in significant non-arm's length transactions that may have been contrary to Ontario securities laws and the public interest; (b) Sino-Forest and certain of its officers and directors appear to have misrepresented in a material respect, some of its revenue and/or exaggerated some of its timber holdings in public filings under the securities laws; and (c) Sino-Forest and certain of its officers and directors, including its CEO, appear to be engaging or participating in acts, practices or a course of conduct related to its securities which it and/or they know or reasonably ought to know perpetuate a fraud.

66 The OSC named Chan, Ho, Hung, Ip, and Yeung as respondents in the proceedings before the Commission. Sino-Forest placed Messrs. Hung, Ho and Yeung on administrative leave. Mr. Ip may only act on the instructions of the CEO.

67 Having already downgraded its credit rating for Sino-Forest's securities, Standard & Poor withdrew its rating entirely, and Moody's reduced its rating to "junk" indicating a very high credit risk.

68 On September 8, 2011, after a hearing, the OSC continued its cease-trading order until January 25, 2012, and the OSC noted the presence of evidence of conduct that may be harmful to investors and the public interest.

69 On November 10, 2011, articles in the Globe and Mail and the National Post reported that the RCMP had commenced a criminal investigation into whether executives of Sino-Forest had defrauded Canadian investors.

70 On November 13, 2011, at a cost of $35 million, Sino-Forest's Independent Committee released its Second Interim Report, which included the work of the committee members, PWC, and three law firms. The Report refuted some of the allegations made in the Muddy Waters Report but indicated that evidence could not be obtained to refute other allegations. The Committee reported that it did not detect widespread fraud, and noted that due to challenges it faced, including resistance from some company insiders, it was not able to reach firm conclusions on many issues.

71 On December 12, 2011, Sino-Forest announced that it would not file its third-quarter earnings' figures and would default on an upcoming interest payment on outstanding notes. This default may lead to the bankruptcy of Sino-Forest.

72 The chart attached as Schedule "A" to this judgment shows Sino-Forest's stock price on the TSX from January 1, 2004, to the date that its shares were cease-traded on August 26, 2011.

F. ANALYSIS OF THE COMPETING CLASS ACTIONS

1. The Attributes of Class Counsel

Smith v. Sino-Forest

73 Rochon Genova is a boutique litigation firm in Toronto focusing primarily on class action litigation, including securities class actions. It is currently class counsel in the CIBC subprime litigation, which seeks billions in damages on behalf of CIBC shareholders for the bank's alleged non-disclosure of its exposure to the U.S. subprime residential mortgage market. It is currently the lawyer of record in Fischer v. IG Investment Management Ltd and Frank v. Farlie Turner, [2011] O.J. No. 5567, both securities cases, and it is acting for aggrieved investors in litigation involving two multi-million dollar Ponzi schemes. It acted on behalf of Canadian shareholders in relation to the Nortel securities litigation, as well as, large scale products liability class actions involving Baycol, Prepulsid, and Maple Leaf Foods, among many other cases.

74 Rochon Genova has a working arrangement with Lieff Cabrasser Heimann & Bernstein, one of the United States' leading class action firms.

75 Lead lawyers for Smith v. Sino-Forest are Joel Rochon and Peter Jarvis, both senior lawyers with considerable experience and proficiency in class actions and securities litigation.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

76 Koskie Minsky is a Toronto law firm of 43 lawyers with a diverse practice including bankruptcy and insolvency, commercial litigation, corporate and securities, taxation, employment, labour, pension and benefits, professional negligence and insurance litigation.

77 Koskie Minsky has a well-established and prominent class actions practice, having been counsel in every sort of class proceeding, several of them being landmark cases, including Hollick v Toronto (City), Cloud v The Attorney General of Canada, [2004] O.J. No. 4924, and Caputo v Imperial Tobacco. It is currently representative counsel on behalf of all former Canadian employees in the multi-billion dollar Nortel insolvency.

78 Siskinds is a London and Toronto law firm of 70 lawyers with a diverse practice including bankruptcy and insolvency, business law, and commercial litigation. It has an association with the Québec law firm Siskinds, Desmeules, avocats.

79 At its London office, Siskinds has a team of 14 lawyers that focus their practice on class actions, in some instances exclusively. The firm has a long and distinguished history at the class actions bar, being class counsel in the first action certified as a class action, Bendall v. McGhan Medical Corp. (1993), 14 O.R. (3d) 734, and it has almost a monopoly on securities class actions, having filed approximately 40 of this species of class actions, including 24 that advance claims under Part XXX.1 of the Ontario Securities Act.

80 As mentioned again later, for the purposes of Labourers' Fund v. Sino-Forest, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds have a co-operative arrangement with the U.S. law firm, Kessler Topaz Meltzer & Check LLP ("Kessler Topaz"), which is a 113-lawyer law firm specializing in complex litigation with a very high profile and excellent reputation as counsel in securities class action lawsuits in the United States.

81 Lead lawyers for Labourers' v. Sino-Forest are Kirk M. Baert, Jonathan Ptak, Mark Ziegler, and Michael Mazzuca of Koskie Minsky and A. Dimitri Lascaris of Siskinds, all senior lawyers with considerable experience and proficiency in class actions and securities litigation.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

82 Kim Orr is a boutique litigation firm in Toronto focusing primarily on class action litigation, including securities class actions. It also has considerable experience on the defence side of defending securities cases.

83 As I described in Sharma v. Timminco Ltd., supra, where I choose Kim Orr in a carriage competition with Siskinds in a securities class action, Kim Orr has a fine pedigree as a class action firm and its senior lawyers have considerable experience and proficiency in all types of class actions. It was comparatively modest in its self-promotional material for the carriage motion, but I am aware that it is currently class counsel in substantial class actions involving claims of a similar nature to those in the case at bar.

84 Kim Orr has an association with Milberg, LLP, a prominent class action law firm in the United States. It has 75 attorneys, most of whom devote their practice to representing plaintiffs in complex litigations, including class and derivative actions. It has a large support staff, including investigators, a forensic accountant, financial analysts, legal assistants, litigation support analysts, shareholder services personnel, and information technology specialists.

85 Michael Spencer, who is a partner at Milberg and called to the bar in Ontario, offers counsel to Kim Orr.

86 Lead lawyers for Northwest v. Sino-Forest are James Orr, Won Kim, and Mr. Spencer.

2. Retainer, Legal and Forensic Resources, and Investigations

Smith v. Sino-Forest

87 Following the release of the Muddy Waters Report, on June 6, 2011, Mr. Smith contacted Rochon Genova. Mr. Smith, who lost much of his investment fortune, was one of the victims of the wrongs allegedly committed by Sino-Forest. Rochon Genova accepted the retainer, and two days later, a notice of action was issued. The Statement of Claim in Smith v. Sino-Forest followed on July 8, 2011.

88 Following their retainer by Mr. Smith, Rochon Genova hired Mr. X (his name was not disclosed), as a consultant. Mr. X, who has an accounting background, can fluently read, write, and speak English, Cantonese, and Mandarin. He travelled to China from June 19 to July 3, 2011 and again from October 31 to November 18, 2011. The purpose of the trips was to gather information about Sino-Forest's subsidiaries, its customers, and its suppliers. While in China, Mr. X secured approximately 20,000 pages of filings by Sino-Forest with the provincial branches of China's State Administration for Industry and Commerce (the "SAIC Files").

89 In August 2011, Rochon Genova retained Froese Forensic Partners Ltd., a Toronto-based forensic accounting firm, to analyze the SAIC files.

90 Rochon Genova also retained HAIBU Attorneys at Law, a full service law firm based in Shenzhen, Guangdong Province, China, to provide a preliminary opinion about Sino-Forest's alleged violations of Chinese accounting and taxation laws.

91 Exclusive of the carriage motion, Rochon Genova has already incurred approximately $350,000 in time and disbursements for the proposed class action.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

92 On June 3, 2011, the day after the release of the Muddy Waters Report, Siskinds retained the Dacheng Law Firm in China to begin an investigation of the allegations contained in the report. Dacheng is the largest law firm in China with offices throughout China and Hong Kong and also offices in Los Angeles, New York, Paris, Singapore, and Taiwan.

93 On June 9, 2011, Guining Liu, a Sino-Forest shareholder, commenced an action in the Québec Superior Court on behalf of persons or entities domiciled in Québec who purchased shares and notes. Siskinds' Québec affiliate office, Siskinds, Desmeules, avocats, is acting as class counsel in that action.

94 On June 20, 2011, Koskie Minsky, which had a long standing lawyer-client relationship with the Labourers' Fund, was retained by it to recover its losses associated with the plummet in value of its holdings in Sino-Forest shares. Koskie Minsky issued a notice of action in a proposed class action with Labourers' Fund as the proposed representative plaintiffs.

95 The June action, however, is not being pursued, and in July 2011, Labourers' Fund was advised that Operating Engineers Fund, another pension fund, also had very significant losses, and the two funds decided to retain Koskie Minsky and Siskinds to commence a new action, which followed on July 20, 2011, by notice of action. The Statement of Claim in Labourers v. Sino-Forest was served in August, 2011.

96 Before commencing the new action, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds retained private investigators in Southeast Asia and received reports from them, along with information received from the Dacheng Law Firm. Koskie Minsky and Siskinds also received information from an unnamed expert in Suriname about the operations of Sino-Forest in Suriname and the role of Greenheart Group Ltd., which is a significant aspect of its Statement of Claim in Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

97 On November 4, 2011, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds served the Defendants in Labourers v. Sino-Forest with the notice of motion for an order granting leave to assert the causes of action under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act.

98 On October 26, 2011, Robert Wong, who had lost a very large personal investment in Sino-Forest shares, retained Koskie Minsky and Siskinds to sue Sino-Forest for his losses, and the firms decided that he would become another representative plaintiff.

99 On November 14, 2011, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds commenced Grant v. Sino-Forest Corp., which, as already noted above, they intend to consolidate with Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

100 Grant v. Sino-Forest names the same defendants as in Labourers v. Sino-Forest, except for the additional joinder of Messrs. Bowland, Poon, and West, and it also joins as defendants, BDO, and two additional underwriters, Banc of America and Credit Suisse Securities (USA).

101 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds state that Grant v. Sino-Forest was commenced out of an abundance of caution to ensure that certain prospectus and offering memorandum claims under the Ontario Securities Act, and under the equivalent legislation of the other Provinces, will not expire as being statute-barred.

102 Exclusive of the carriage motion, Koskie Minsky has already incurred approximately $350,000 in time and disbursements for the proposed class action, and exclusive of the carriage motion, Siskinds has already incurred approximately $440,000 in time and disbursements for the proposed class action.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

103 Immediately following the release of the Muddy Waters Report, Kim Orr and Milberg together began an investigation to determine whether an investor class action would be warranted. A joint press release on June 7, 2011, announced the investigation.

104 For the purposes of the carriage motion, apart from saying that their investigation included reviewing all the documents on SEDAR and the System for Electronic Disclosure for Insiders (SEDI), communicating with contacts in the financial industry, and looking into Sino-Forest's officers, directors, auditors, underwriters and valuation experts, Kim Orr did not disclose the details of its investigation. It did indicate that it had hired a Chinese forensic investigator and financial analyst, a market and damage consulting firm, Canadian forensic accountants, and an investment and market analyst and that its investigations discovered valuable information.

105 Meanwhile, lawyers at Milberg contacted Bâtirente, which was one of its clients and also a Sino-Forest shareholder, and Won Kim of Kim Orr contacted Northwest, another Sino-Forest shareholder. Bâtirente already had a retainer with Milberg to monitor its investment portfolio on an ongoing basis to detect losses due to possible securities violations.

106 Northwest and Bâtirente agreed to retain Kim Orr to commence a class action, and on September 26, 2011, Kim Orr commenced Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

107 In October 2011, BC Investments contacted Kim Orr about the possibility of it becoming a plaintiff in the class proceeding commenced by Northwest and Bâtirente, and BC Investments decided to retain the firm and the plan is that BC Investments is to become another representative plaintiff.

108 Exclusive of the carriage motion, Kim Orr and Milberg have already incurred approximately $1,070,000 in time and disbursement for the proposed class action.

3. Proposed Representative Plaintiffs

Smith v. Sino-Forest

109 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, the proposed representative plaintiffs are Douglas Smith and Frederick Collins.

110 Douglas Smith is a resident of Ontario, who acquired approximately 9,000 shares of Sino-Forest during the proposed class period. He is married, 48 years of age, and employed as a director of sales. He describes himself as a moderately sophisticated investor that invested in Sino-Forest based on his review of the publicly available information, including public reports and filings, press releases, and statements released by or on behalf of Sino-Forest. He lost $75,345, which was half of his investment fortune.

111 Frederick Collins is a resident of Nanaimo, British Columbia. He purchased shares in the primary market. His willingness to act as a representative plaintiff was announced during the reply argument of the second day of the carriage motion, and nothing was discussed about his background other than he is similar to Mr. Smith in being an individual investor. He was introduced to address a possible Ragoonanan problem in Smith v. Sino-Forest; namely, the absence of a plaintiff who purchased in the primary market, of which alleged problem I will have more to say about below.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

112 In Labourers v. Sino-Forest, the proposed representative plaintiffs are: David Grant, Robert Wong, The Trustees of the Labourers' Pension Fund of Central and Eastern Canada ("Labourers' Fund"), the Trustees of the International Union of Operating Engineers Local 793 Pension Plan for Operating Engineers in Ontario ("Operating Engineers Fund"), and Sjunde AP-Fonden.

113 David Grant is a resident of Alberta. On October 21, 2010, he purchased 100 Guaranteed Senior Notes of Sino-Forest at a price of $101.50 ($U.S.), which he continues to hold.

114 Robert Wong, a resident of Ontario, is an electrical engineer. He was born in China, and in addition to speaking English, he speaks fluent Cantonese. He was a substantial shareholder of Sino-Forest from July 2002 to June 2011. Before making his investment, he reviewed Sino-Forest's Core Documents, and he also made his own investigations, including visiting Sino-Forest's plantations in China in 2005, where he met a Sino-Forest vice-president.

115 Mr. Wong's investment in Sino-Forest comprised much of his net worth. In September 2008, he owned 1.4 million Sino-Forest shares with a value of approximately $26.1 million. He purchased more shares in the December 2009 prospectus offering. Around the end of May 2011, he owned 518,700 shares, which, after the publication of the Muddy Waters Report, he sold on June 3, 2011 and June 10, 2011, for $2.8 million.

116 The Labourers' Fund is a multi-employer pension fund for employees in the construction industry. It is registered with the Financial Services Commission in Ontario and has 52,100 members in Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland and Labrador. It is a long-time client of Koskie Minsky.

117 Labourers' Fund manages more than $2.5 billion in assets. It has a fiduciary and statutory responsibility to invest pension monies on behalf of thousands of employees and pensioners in Ontario and in other provinces.

118 Labourer's Fund acted as representative plaintiff in a U.S. class actions against Fortis, Pitney Bowes Inc., Synovus Financial Corp., and Medea Health Solutions, Inc. Those actions involved allegations of misrepresentation in the statements and filings of public issuers.

119 The Labourers' Fund purchased Sino-Forest shares on the TSX during the class period, including 32,300 shares in a trade placed by Credit Suisse under a prospectus. Most of its purchases of Sino-Forest shares were made in the secondary market.

120 On June 1, 2011, the Labourers' Fund held a total of 128,700 Sino-Forest shares with a market value of $2.3 million, and it also had an interest in pooled funds that had $1.4 million invested in Sino-Forest shares. On June 2 and 3, 2011, the Labourers' Fund sold its holdings in Sino-Forest for a net recovery of $695,993.96. By June 30, 2011, the value of the Sino-Forest shares in the pooled funds was $291,811.

121 The Operating Engineers Fund is a multi-employer pension fund for employed operating engineers and apprentices in the construction industry. It is registered with the Financial Services Commission in Ontario, and it has 20,867 members. It is a long-time client of Koskie Minsky.

122 The Operating Engineers Fund manages $1.5 billion in assets. It has a fiduciary and statutory responsibility to invest pension monies on behalf of thousands of employees and pensions in Ontario and in other provinces.

123 The Operating Engineers Fund acquired shares of Sino-Forest on the TSX during the class period. The Operating Engineers Fund invested in Sino-Forest shares through four asset managers of a segregated fund. One of the managers purchased 42,000 Sino-Forest shares between February 1, 2011, and May 24, 2011, which had a market value of $764,820 at the close of trading on June 1, 2011. These shares were sold on June 21, 2011 for net $77,170.80. Another manager purchased 181,700 Sino-Forest shares between January 20, 2011 and June 1, 2011, which had a market value of $3.3 million at the close of trading on June 1, 2011. These shares were sold and the Operating Engineers Fund recovered $1.5 million. Another asset manager purchased 100,400 Sino-Forest shares between July 5, 2007 and May 26, 2011, which had a market value of $1.8 million at the close of trading on June 1, 2011. Many of these shares were sold in July and August, 2011, but the Operating Engineers Fund continues to hold approximately 37,350 shares. Between June 15, 2007 and June 9, 2011, the Operating Engineers Fund also purchased units of a pooled fund managed by TD that held Sino-Forest shares, and it continues to hold these units. The Operating Engineers Fund has incurred losses in excess of $5 million with respect to its investment in Sino-Forest shares.

124 Sjunde AP-Fonden is the Swedish Nation Pension Fund, and part of Sweden's national pension system. It manages $15.3 billion in assets. It has acted as lead plaintiff in a large securities class action and a large stockholder class action in the United States.

125 In addition to retaining Koskie Minsky and Siskinds, Sjunde AP-Fonden also retained the American law firm Kessler Topaz to provide assistance, if necessary, to Koskie Minsky and Siskinds.

126 Sjunde AP-Fonden purchased Sino-Forest shares on the TSX from outside Canada between April 2010 and January 2011. It was holding 139,398 shares with a value of $2.5 million at the close of trading on June 1, 2011. It sold 43,095 shares for $188,829.36 in August 2011 and holds 93,303 shares.

127 Sjunde AP-Fonden is prepared to be representative plaintiff for a sub-class of non-Canadian purchasers of Sino-Forest shares who purchased shares in Canada from outside of Canada.

128 Messrs. Mancinelli, Gallagher, and Grottheim each deposed that Labourers' Fund, the Operating Engineers Fund, and Sjunde AP-Fonden respectively sued because of their losses and because of their concerns that public markets remain healthy and transparent.

129 Although it does not seek to be a representative plaintiff, the Healthcare Employee Benefits Plans of Manitoba ("Healthcare Manitoba") is a major class member that supports carriage being granted to Koskie Minsky and Siskinds, and its presence should also be mentioned here because it actively supports the appointment of the proposed representative plaintiffs in Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

130 Healthcare Manitoba provides pensions and other benefits to eligible healthcare employees and their families throughout Manitoba. It has 65,000 members. It is a long-time client of Koskie Minsky. It manages more than $3.9 billion in assets.

131 Healthcare Manitoba, invested in Sino-Forest shares that were purchased by one of its asset managers in the TSX secondary market. Between February and May, 2011, it purchased 305,200 shares with a book value of $6.7 million. On June 24, 2011, the shares were sold for net proceeds of $560,775.48.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

132 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, the proposed representative plaintiffs are: British Columbia Investment Management Corporation ("BC Investment"); Comité syndical national de retraite Bâtirente inc. ("Bâtirente") and Northwest & Ethical Investments L.P. ("Northwest").

133 BC Investment, which is incorporated under the British Columbia Public Sector Pension Plans Act, is owned by and is an agent of the Government of British Columbia. It manages $86.9

billion in assets. Its investment activities help to finance the retirement benefits of more than 475,000 residents of British Columbia, including public service employees, healthcare workers, university teachers, and staff. Its investment activities also help to finance the WorkSafeBC insurance fund that covers approximately 2.3 million workers and over 200,000 employers in B.C., as well as, insurance funds for public service long term disability and credit union deposits.

134 BC Investment, through the funds it managed, owned 334,900 shares of Sino-Forest at the start of the Class Period, purchased 6.6 million shares during the Class Period, including 50,200 shares in the June 2009 offering and 54,800 shares in the December 2009 offering; sold 5 million shares during the Class Period; disposed of 371,628 shares after the end of the Class Period; and presently holds 1.5 million shares.

135 Bâtirente is a non-profit financial services firm initiated by the Confederation of National Trade Unions to establish and promote a workplace retirement system for affiliated unions and other organizations. It is registered as a financial services firm regulated in Quebec by the Autorité des marchés financiers under the Act Respecting the Distribution of Financial Products and Services, R.S.Q., chapter D-9.2. It has assets of about $850 million.

136 Bâtirente, through the funds it managed, did not own any shares of Sino-Forest before the class period, purchased 69,500 shares during the class period, sold 57,625 shares during the class period, and disposed of the rest of its shares after the end of the class period.

137 Northwest is an Ontario limited partnership, owned 50% by the Provincial Credit Unions Central and 50% by Federation des caisses Desjardin du Québec. It is registered with the British Columbia Securities Commission as a portfolio manager, and it is registered with the OSC as a portfolio manager and as an investment funds manager. It manages about $5 billion in assets.

138 Northwest, through the funds it managed, did not own any shares of Sino-Forest before the class period, purchased 714,075 shares during the class period, including 245,400 shares in the December 2009 offering, sold 207,600 shares during the class period, and disposed of the rest of its shares after the end of the class period.

139 Kim Orr touts BC Investment, Bâtirente, and Northwest as candidates for representative plaintiff because they are sophisticated "activist shareholders" that are committed to ethical investing. There is evidence that they have all raised governance issues with Sino-Forest as well as other companies. Mr. Mountain of Northwest and Mr. Simard of Bâtirente are eager to be actively involved in the litigation against Sino-Forest.

4. Funding

140 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds have approached Claims Funding International, and subject to court approval, Claims Funding International has agreed to indemnify the plaintiffs for an adverse costs award in return for a percentage of any recovery from the class action.

141 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds state that if the funding arrangement with Claims Funding International is refused, they will, in any event, proceed with the litigation and will indemnify the plaintiffs for any adverse costs award.

142 Similarly, Kim Orr has approached Bridgepoint Financial Services, which subject to court approval, has agreed to indemnify the plaintiffs for an adverse costs award in return for a percentage of any recovery in the class action. If this arrangement is not approved, Kim Orr intends to apply to the Class Proceedings Fund, which would be a more expensive approach to financing the class action.

143 Kim Orr states that if these funding arrangements are refused, it will, in any event, proceed with the litigation and it will indemnify the plaintiffs for any adverse costs award.

144 Rochon Genova did not mention in its factum whether it intends to apply to the Class Proceedings Fund on behalf of Messrs. Smith and Collins, but for the purposes of the discussion later about the carriage order, I will assume that this may be the case. I will also assume that Rochon Genova has agreed to indemnify Messrs. Smith and Collins for any adverse costs award should funding not be granted by the Fund.

5. Conflicts of Interest

145 One of the qualifications for being a representative plaintiff is that the candidate does not have a conflict of interest in representing the class members and in bringing an action on their behalf. All of the candidates for representative plaintiff in the competing class actions depose that they have no conflicts of interest. Their opponents disagree.

146 Rochon Genova submits that there are inherent conflicts of interests in both Labourers v. Sino-Forest and in Northwest v. Sino-Forest because the representative plaintiffs bring actions on behalf of both shareholders and noteholders. Rochon Genova submits that these conflicts are exacerbated by the prospect of a Sino-Forest bankruptcy.

147 Relying on Casurina Ltd. Partnership v. Rio Algom Ltd. [2004] O.J. No. 177 (C.A.) at paras. 35-36, aff'g [2002] O.J. No. 3229 (S.C.J.), leave to appeal to the S.C.C. denied, [2004] S.C.C.A. No. 105 and Amaranth LLC v. Counsel Corp., [2003] O.J. No. 4674 (S.C.J.), Rochon Genova submits that a class action by the bondholders is precluded by the pre-conditions in the bond instruments, but if it were to proceed, it might not be in the best interests of the bondholders, who might prefer to have Sino-Forest capable of carrying on business. Further still, Rochon Genova submits that, in any event, an action by the bondholders' trustee may be the preferable way for the noteholders to sue on their notes. Further, Rochon Genova submits that if there is a bankruptcy, the bondholders may prefer to settle their claims in the context of the bankruptcy rather than being connected in a class action to the shareholder's claims over which they would have priority in a bankruptcy.

148 Further still, Rochon Genova submits that a bankruptcy would bring another conflict of interest between bondholders and shareholders because under s. 50(14) of the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act, R.S.C., 1985, c. B-3, and 5.1(2) of the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C., 1985, c. C-36 the claims of creditors against directors that are based on misrepresentation or oppression may not be compromised through a plan or proposal. In contrast, Allen-Vanguard Corp., Re, 2011 ONSC 5017 (S.C.J.) at paras. 48-52 is authority that shareholders are not similarly protected, and, therefore, Rochon Genova submits that the noteholders would have a great deal more leverage in resolving claims against directors than would the shareholder members of the class in a class action.

149 Kim Orr denies that there is a conflict in the representative plaintiffs acting on behalf of both shareholders and bondholders. It submits that while bondholders may have an additional claim in contract against Sino-Forest for repayment of the debt outside of the class action, both shareholders and bondholders share a misrepresentation claim against Sino-Forest and there is no conflict in advancing the misrepresentation claim independent of the debt repayment claim.

150 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds also deny that there is any conflict in advancing claims by both bondholders and shareholders. They say that the class members are on common ground in advancing misrepresentation, tort, and the various statutory causes of action. Koskie Minsky and Siskinds add that if there was a conflict, then it is manageable because they have a representative plaintiff who was a bondholder, which is not the case for the representative plaintiffs in Northwest v. Sino-Forest. It submits that, if necessary, subclasses can be established to manage any conflicts of interest among class members.

151 Leaving the submitted shareholder and bondholder conflicts of interest, Rochon Genova submits that Labourers' Fund has a conflict of interest because BDO Canada is its auditor. Rochon Genova submits that Koskie Minsky also has a conflict of interest because it and BDO Canada have worked together on a committee providing liaison between multi-employer pension plans and the Financial Services Commission of Ontario and have respectively provided services as auditor and legal counsel to the Union Benefits Alliance of Construction Trade Unions. Rochon Genova submits that it is telling that these conflicts were not disclosed and that BDO, which is an entity that is an international associate with BDO Canada was a late arrival as a defendant in Labourers v. Sino-Forest, although this can be explained by changes in the duration of the class period.

152 For their part, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds raise a different set of conflicts of interest. They submit that Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments have a conflict of interest with the other class members who purchased Sino-Forest securities because of their role as investment managers.

153 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' argument is that as third party financial service providers, BC Investment, Bâtirente, and Northwest did not suffer losses themselves but rather passed the losses on to their clients. Further, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that, in contrast to BC Investment, Bâtirente, and Northwest, their clients, Labourers' Fund and Operating Engineers Fund, are acting as fiduciaries to recover losses that will affect their members' retirements. This arguably makes Koskie Minsky and Siskinds better representative plaintiffs.

154 Further still, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that the class members in Northwest v. Sino-Forest may question whether Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments failed to properly evaluate the risks of investing in Sino-Forest. Koskie Minsky and Siskinds point out that the Superior Court of Québec in Comité syndical national de retraite Bâtirente inc. c. Société financière Manuvie, 2011 QCCS 3446 at paras. 111-119 disqualified Bâtirente as a representative plaintiff because there might be an issue about Bâtirente's investment decisions. Thus, Koskie, Minsky and Siskinds attempt to change Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments' involvement in encouraging good corporate governance at Sino-Forest from a positive attribute into the failure to be aware of ongoing wrongdoing at Sino-Forest and a negative attribute for a proposed representative plaintiff.

6. Definition of Class Membership

Smith v. Sino-Forest

155 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, the proposed class action is: (a) on behalf of all persons who purchased shares of Sino-Forest from May 17, 2004 to August 26, 2011 on the TSX or other secondary market; and (b) on behalf of all persons who acquired shares of Sino-Forest during the offering distribution period relating to Sino-Forest's share prospectus offerings on June 1, 2009 and December 10, 2009 excluding the Defendants, members of the immediate families of the Individual Defendants, or the directors, officers, subsidiaries and affiliates of the corporate Defendants.

156 Both Koskie Minsky and Siskinds and Kim Orr challenge this class membership as inadequate for failing to include the bondholders who were allegedly harmed by the same misconduct that harmed the shareholders.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

157 In Labourers v. Sino-Forest, the proposed class action is on behalf of all persons and entities wherever they may reside who acquired securities of Sino-Forest during the period from and including March 19, 2007 to and including June 2, 2011 either by primary distribution in Canada or an acquisition on the TSX or other secondary markets in Canada, other than the defendants, their past and present subsidiaries, affiliates, officers, directors, senior employees, partners, legal representatives, heirs, predecessors, successors and assigns, and any individual who is an immediate member of the family of an individual defendant.

158 The class membership definition in Labourers v. Sino-Forest includes non-Canadians who purchased shares or notes in Canada but excludes non-Canadians who purchased in a foreign marketplace.

159 Challenging this definition, Kim Orr submits that it is wrong in principle to exclude persons whose claims will involve the same facts as other class members and for whom it is arguable that Canadian courts may exercise jurisdiction and provide access to justice.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

160 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, the proposed class action is on behalf of purchasers of shares or notes of Sino-Forest during the period from August 17, 2004 through June 2, 2011, except: Sino-Forest's past and present subsidiaries and affiliates; the past and present officers and directors of Sino-Forest and its subsidiaries and affiliates; members of the immediate family of any excluded person; the legal representatives, heirs, successors, and assigns of any excluded person or entity; and any entity in which any excluded person or entity has or had a controlling interest.

161 Challenging this definition, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that the proposed class in Northwest has no geographical limits and, therefore, will face jurisdictional and choice of law challenges that do not withstand a cost benefit analysis. It submits that Sino-Forest predominantly raised capital in Canadian capital markets and the vast majority of its securities were either acquired in Canada or on a Canadian market, and, in this context, including in the class non-residents who purchased securities outside of Canada risks undermining and delaying the claims of the great majority of proposed class members whose claims do not face such jurisdictional obstacles.

7. Definition of Class Period

162 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, the class period is May 17, 2004 to August 26, 2011. This class period starts with the release of Sino-Forest's release of its 2003 Annual Information Form, which indicated the use of authorized intermediaries, and it ends on the day of the OSC's cease-trade order.

163 For comparison purposes, it should be noted that this class period has the earliest start date and the latest finish date. Labourers v. Sino-Smith and Northwest v. Sino-Forest both use the end date of the release of the Muddy Waters Report.

164 In making comparisons, it is helpful to look at the chart found at Schedule A of this judgment.

165 Rochon Genova justifies its extended end date based on the argument that the Muddy Waters Report was a revelation of Sino-Forest's misrepresentation but not a corrective statement that would end the causation of injuries because Sino-Forest and its officers denied the truth of the Muddy Waters Report.

166 Kim Orr criticizes the class definition in Smith v. Sino-Forest and submits that purchasers of shares or notes after the Muddy Waters Report was published do not have viable claims and ought not be included as class members.

167 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' submission is similar, and they regard the extended end date as problematic in raising the issues of whether there were corrective disclosures and of how Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act should be interpreted.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

168 In Labourers v. Sino-Forest, the class period is March 19, 2007 to June 2, 2011.

169 This class period starts with the date Sino-Forest's 2006 financial results were announced, and it ends on the date of the publication of the Muddy Waters Report.

170 The March 19, 2007, commencement date was determined using a complex mathematical formula known as the "multi-trader trading model." Using this model, Mr. Torchio estimates that 99.5% of Sino-Forest's shares retained after June 2, 2011, had been purchased after the March 19, 2007 commencement date. Thus, practically speaking, there is almost nothing to be gained by an earlier start date for the class period.

171 The proposed class period covers two share offerings (June 2009 and December 2009). This class period does not include time before the coming into force of Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act (December 31, 2005), and, thus, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that this aspect of their definition avoids problems about the retroactive application, if any, of Part XXIII.1 of the Act.

172 For comparison purposes, the Labourers class period has the latest start date and shares the finish date used in the Northwest v. Sino-Forest action, which is sooner than the later date used in Smith v. Sino-Forest. It is the most compressed of the three definitions of a class period.

173 Based on Mr. Torchio's opinion, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that there are likely no damages arising from purchases made during a substantial portion of the class periods in Smith v. Sino-Forest and in Northwest v. Sino-Forest. Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that given that the average price of Sino's shares was approximately $4.49 in the ten trading days after the Muddy Waters report, it is likely that any shareholder that acquired Sino-Forest shares for less than $4.49 suffered no damages, particularly under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act.

174 In part as a matter of principle, Kim Orr submits that Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' approach to defining the class period is unsound because it excludes class members who, despite the mathematical modelling, may have genuine claims and are being denied any opportunity for access to justice. Kim Orr submits it is wrong in principle to abandon these potential class members.

175 Rochon Genova also submits that Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' approach to defining the class period is wrong. It argues that Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' reliance on a complex mathematical model to define class membership is arbitrary and unfair to share purchasers with similar claims to those claimants to be included as class members. Rochon Genova criticizes Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' approach as being the condemned merits based approach to class definitions and for being the sin of excluding class members because they may ultimately not succeed after a successful common issues trial.

176 Relying on what I wrote in Fischer v. IG Investment Management Ltd., 2010 ONSC 296 at para. 157, Rochon Genova submits that the possible failure of an individual class member to establish an individual element of his or her claim such as causation or damages is not a reason to initially exclude him or her as a class member. Rochon Genova submits that the end date employed in Labourers v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest is wrong.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

177 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, the class period is August 17, 2004 to June 2, 2011.

178 This class period starts from the day Sino-Forest closed its public offering of long-term notes that were still outstanding at the end of the class period and ends on the date of the Muddy Waters Research Report. This period covers three share offerings (June 2007, June 2009, and December 2009) and six note offerings (August 2004, July 2008, July 2009, December 2009, February 2010, and October 2010).

179 For comparison purposes, the Northwest v. Sino-Forest class period begins 3 months later and ends three months sooner than the class period in Smith v. Sino-Forest. The Northwest v. Sino-Forest class period begins approximately two-and-a-half years earlier and ends at the same time as the class period in Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

180 Kim Orr submits that its start date of August 17, 2004 is satisfactory, because on that date, Sino-Forest shares were trading at $2.85, which is below the closing price of Sino-Forest shares on the TSX for the ten days after June 3, 2011 ($4.49), which indicates that share purchasers before August 2004 would not likely be able to claim loss or damages based on the public disclosures on June 2, 2011.

181 However, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds point out that Kim Orr's submission actually provides partial support for the theory for a later start date (March 19, 2007) because, there is no logical reason to include in the class persons who purchased Sino-Forest shares between May 17, 2004, the start date of the Smith Action and December 1, 2005, because with the exception of one trading day (January 24, 2005), Sino-Forest's shares never traded above $4.49 during that period.

8. Theory of the Case against the Defendants

Smith v. Sino-Forest

182 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, the theory of the case rests on the alleged non-arms' length transfers between Sino-Forest and its subsidiaries and authorized intermediaries, that purported to be suppliers and customers. Rochon Genova's investigations and analysis suggest that there are numerous non-arms length inter-company transfers by which Sino-Forest misappropriated investors' funds, exaggerated Sino-Forest's assets and revenues, and engaged in improper tax and accounting practices.

183 Mr. Smith alleges that Sino-Forest's quarterly interim financial statements, audited annual financial statements, and management's discussion and analysis reports, which are Core Documents as defined under the Ontario Securities Act, misrepresented its revenues, the nature and scope of its business and operations, and the value and composition of its forestry holdings. He alleges that the Core Documents failed to disclose an unlawful scheme of fabricated sales transactions and the avoidance of tax and an unlawful scheme through which hundreds of millions of dollars in investors' funds were misappropriated or vanished.

184 Mr. Smith submits that these misrepresentations and failures to disclose were also made in press releases and in public oral statements. He submits that Chan, Hyde, Horsley, Mak, Martin, Murray, and Wang authorized, permitted or acquiesced in the release of Core Documents and that Chan, Horsley, Martin, and Murray made the misrepresentations in public oral statements.

185 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, Mr. Smith (and Mr. Collins) brings different claims against different combinations of Defendants; visualize:

- * misrepresentation in a prospectus under Part XXIII of the Ontario Securities Act, against all the Defendants
- * subject to leave being granted, misrepresentation in secondary market disclosure under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act as against the defendants: Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, Wang, BDO and E&Y
- * negligent, reckless, or fraudulent misrepresentation against Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, and Wang. This claim would appear to cover sales of shares in both the primary and secondary markets.

186 It is to be noted that Smith v. Sino-Forest does not make a claim on behalf of noteholders, and, as described and explained below, it joins the fewest number of defendants.

187 Smith also does not advance a claim on behalf of purchasers of shares through Sino-Forest's prospectus offering of June 5, 2007, because of limitation period concerns associated with the absolute limitation period found in 138.14 of the Ontario Securities Act. See: Coulson v. Citigroup Global Markets Canada Inc., 2010 ONSC 1596 at paras. 98-100.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

188 The theory of Labourers v. Sino-Forest is that Sino-Forest, along with its officers, directors, and certain of its professional advisors, falsely represented that its financial statements complied with GAAP, materially overstated the size and value of its forestry assets, and made false and incomplete representations regarding its tax liabilities, revenue recognition, and related party transactions.

189 The claims in Labourers v. Sino-Forest are largely limited to alleged misrepresentations in Core Documents as defined in the Ontario Securities Act and other Canadian securities legislation. Core Documents include prospectuses, annual information forms, information circulars, financial statements, management discussion & analysis, and material change reports.

190 The representative plaintiffs advance statutory claims and also common law claims that certain defendants breached a duty of care and committed the torts of negligent misrepresentation and negligence. There are unjust enrichment, conspiracy, and oppression remedy claims advanced against certain defendants.

191 In Labourers v. Sino-Forest, different combinations of representative plaintiffs advance different claims against different combinations of defendants; visualize:

- * Labourers' Fund and Mr. Wong, purchasers of shares in a primary market distribution, advance a statutory claim under Part XXIII of the Ontario Securities Act against Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, Wang, E&Y, BDO, CIBC, Canaccord, Credit Suisse, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia, TD and Pöyry
- * Labourers' Fund and Mr. Wong, purchasers of shares in a primary market distribution, advance a common law negligent misrepresentation claim against Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, Wang, E&Y, BDO, CIBC, Canaccord, Credit Suisse, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia, and TD based on the common misrepresentation that Sino-Forest's financial statements complied with GAPP
- * Labourers' Fund and Mr. Wong, purchasers of shares in a primary market distribution, advance a common law negligence claim against Sino-Forest, Chan, Hyde, Horsley, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, Wang, E&Y, BDO, CIBC, Canaccord, Credit Suisse, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia, TD and Pöyry
- * Grant, who purchased bonds in a primary market distribution, advances a statutory claim under Part XXIII of the Ontario Securities Act against Sino-Forest
- * Grant, who purchased bonds in a primary market distribution, advances a common law negligent misrepresentation claim against Sino-Forest, E&Y and BDO based on the common misrepresentation that Sino-Forest's financial statements complied with GAPP

- * Grant, who purchased bonds in a primary market distribution, advances a common law negligence claim against Sino-Forest, E&Y, BDO, Banc of America, Credit Suisse USA, and TD
- * All the representative plaintiffs, subject to leave being granted, advance claims of misrepresentation in secondary market disclosure under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act and, if necessary, equivalent provincial legislation. This claim is against Sino-Forest, Ardell, Bowland, Chan, Hyde, Horsley, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, Wang, West, E & Y, BDO, and Pöyry
- * All of the representative plaintiffs, who purchased Sino-Forest securities in the secondary market, advance a common law negligent misrepresentation claim against all of the Defendants except the underwriters based on the common misrepresentation contained in the Core Documents that Sino-Forest's financial statements complied with GAAP
- * All the representative plaintiffs sue Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, and Poon for conspiracy. It is alleged that Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, and Poon conspired to inflate the price of Sino-Forest's shares and bonds and to profit by their wrongful acts to enrich themselves by, among other things, issuing stock options in which the price was impermissibly low
- * While it is not entirely clear from the Statement of Claim, it seems that all the representative plaintiffs sue Chan, Horsley, Mak, Martin, Murray, and Poon for unjust enrichment in selling shares to class members at artificially inflated prices
- * While it is not entirely clear from the Statement of Claim, it seems that all the representative plaintiffs sue Sino-Forest for unjust enrichment for selling shares at artificially inflated prices
- * While it is not entirely clear from the Statement of Claim, it seems that all the representative plaintiffs sue Banc of America, Canaccord, CIBC, Credit Suisse, Credit Suisse USA, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia, and TD for unjustly enriching themselves from their underwriters fees
- * All the representative plaintiffs sue Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, and Wang for an oppression remedy under the Canada Business Corporations Act

192 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that Labourers v. Sino-Forest is more focused than Smith and Northwest because: (a) its class definition covers a shorter time period and is limited to securities acquired by Canadian residents or in Canadian markets; (b) the material documents are limited to Core Documents under securities legislation; (c) the named individual defendants are limited to directors and officers with statutory obligations to certify the accuracy of Sino-Forest's public filings; and (d) the causes of action are tailored to distinguish between the claims of primary market purchasers and secondary market purchasers and so are less susceptible to motions to strike.

193 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that save for background and context, little is gained in the rival actions by including claims based on non-Core Documents, which confront a higher threshold to establish liability under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

194 The Northwest v. Sino-Forest Statement of Claim focuses on an "Integrity Representation," which is defined as: "the representation in substance that Sino-Forest's overall reporting of its business operations and financial statements was fair, complete, accurate, and in conformity with international standards and the requirements of the Ontario Securities Act and National Instrument 51-102, and that its accounts of its growth and success could be trusted."

195 The Northwest v. Sino-Forest Statement of Claim alleges that all Defendants made the Integrity Representation and that it was a false, misleading, or deceptive statement or omission. It is alleged that the false Integrity Representation caused the market decline following the June 2, 2011, disclosures, regardless of the truth or falsity of the particular allegations contained in the Muddy Waters Report.

196 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, the representative plaintiffs advance statutory claims under Parts XXIII and XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act and a collection of common law tort claims. Kim Orr submits that to the extent, if any, that the statutory claims do not provide complete remedies to class members, whether due to limitation periods, liability caps, or other limitations, the common law claims may provide coverage.

197 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, the plaintiffs advance different claims against different combinations of defendants; visualize:

- * With respect to the June 2009 and December 2009 prospectus, a cause of action for violation of Part XXIII of the Ontario Securities Act against Sino-Forest, the underwriter Defendants, the director Defendants, the Defendants who consented to disclosure in the prospectus and the Defendants who signed the prospectus
- * Negligent misrepresentation against all of the Defendants for disseminating material misrepresentations about Sino-Forest in breach of a duty to exercise appropriate care and diligence to ensure that the documents and statements disseminated to the public about Sino-Forest were complete, truthful, and accurate.
- * Fraudulent misrepresentation against all of the Defendants for acting knowingly and deliberately or with reckless disregard for the truth making misrepresentations in documents, statements, financial statements, prospectus, offering memoranda, and filings issued and disseminated to the investing public including Class Members.
- * Negligence against all the Defendants for a breach of a duty of care to - ensure that Sino-Forest implemented and maintained adequate internal controls, procedures and policies to ensure that the company's assets were protected and its activities conformed to all legal developments.

- * Negligence against the underwriter Defendants, the note distributor Defendants, the auditor Defendants, and the Pöyry Defendants for breach of a duty to the purchasers of Sino-Forest securities to perform their professional responsibilities in connection with Sino-Forest with appropriate care and diligence.
 - * Subject to leave being granted, a cause of action for violation of Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act against Sino-Forest, the auditor Defendants, the individual Defendants who were directors and officers of Sino-Forest at the time one or more of the pleaded material misrepresentations was made, and the Pöyry Defendants.

198 Kim Orr submits that Northwest v. Sino-Forest is more comprehensive than its rivals and does not avoid asserting claims on the grounds that they may take time to litigate, may not be assured of success, or may involve a small portion of the total potential class. It submits that its conception of Sino-Forest's wrongdoing better accords with the factual reality and makes for a more viable claim than does Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' focus on GAAP violations and Rochon Genova's focus on the misrepresentations associated with the use of authorized intermediaries. It denies Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' argument that it has pleaded overbroad tort claims.

199 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that its conspiracy claim against a few defendants is focused and narrow, and it criticizes the broad fraud claim advanced in Northwest v. Sino-Forest against all the defendants as speculative, provocative, and unproductive.

200 Relying on McKenna v. Gammon Gold Inc., 2010 ONSC 1591 at para. 49; Corfax Benefits Systems Ltd. v. Fiducie Desjardins Inc., [1997] O.J. No. 5005 (Gen. Div.) at paras. 28-36; Hughes v. Sunbeam Corp. (Canada), [2000] O.J. No. 4595 (S.C.J.) at paras. 25 and 38; and Toronto-Dominion Bank v. Leigh Instruments Ltd. (Trustee of), [1998] O.J. No. 2637 (Gen. Div.) at para. 477, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that the speculative fraud action in Northwest v. Sino-Forest is improper and would not advance the interests of class members. Further, the task of proving that each of some twenty defendants had a fraudulent intent, which will be vehemently denied by the defendants, and the costs sanction imposed for pleading and not providing fraud make the fraud claim a negative and not a positive feature of Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

9. Joinder of Defendants

Smith v. Sino-Forest

201 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, the Defendants are: Sino-Forest; seven of its directors and officers; namely: Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, and Wang; nine underwriters; namely, Canaccord, CIBC, Credit Suisse, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia, and TD; and Sino-Forest's two auditors during the Class Period, E &Y and BDO.

202 The Smith v. Sino-Forest Statement of Claim does not join Pöyry because Rochon Genova is of the view that the disclaimer clause in Pöyry's reports likely insulates it from liability, and Rochon Genova believes that its joinder would be of marginal utility and an unnecessary complication. It submits that joining Pöyry would add unnecessary expense and delay to the litigation with little corresponding benefit because of its jurisdiction and its potential defences.

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

203 In Labourers v. Sino-Forest, the Defendants are the same as in Smith v. Sino-Forest with the additional joinder of Ardell, Bowland, Poon, West, Banc of America, Credit Suisse (USA), and Pöyry.

204 The Labourers v. Sino-Forest action does not join Chen, Ho, Hung, Ip, Maradin, Wong, Yeung, Zhao, Credit Suisse (USA), Haywood, Merrill-Fenner, Morgan and UBS, which are parties to Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

205 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' explanation for these non-joinders is that the activities of the underwriters added to Northwest v. Sino-Forest occurred outside of the class period in Labourers v. Sino-Forest and neither Lawrence nor Wong held a position with Sino-Forest during the proposed class period and the action against Lawrence's Estate is probably statute-barred. (See Waschkowski v. Hopkinson Estate, [2000] O.J. No. 470 (C.A.))

206 Wong left Sino-Forest before Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act came into force, and Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that proving causation against Wong will be difficult in light of the numerous alleged misrepresentations since his departure. Moreover, the claim against him is likely statute-barred.

207 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that Chen, Maradin, and Zhao did not have statutory duties and allegations that they owed common law duties will just lead to motions to strike that hinder the progress of an action.

208 Further, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that it is not advisable to assert claims of fraud against all defendants, which pleading may raise issues for insurers that potentially put available coverage and thus collection for plaintiffs at risk.

209 Kim Orr submits that it is a mistake in Labourers v. Sino-Forest, which is connected to the late start date for the class period, which Kim Orr also regards as a mistake, that those underwriters that may be liable and who may have insurance to indemnify them for their liability, have been left out of Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

210 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, with one exception, the defendants are the same as in Labourers v. Sino-Forest with the additional joinder of various officers of Sino-Forest; namely: Chen, Ho, Hung, Ip, The Estate of John Lawrence, Maradin, Wong, Yeung, and Zhao; the joinder of Pöyry Forest and JP Management; and the joinder of more underwriters; namely: Haywood, Merrill-Fenner, Morgan, and UBS.

211 The one exception where Northwest v. Sino-Forest does not join a defendant found in Labourers v. Sino-Forest is Banc of America.

212 Kim Orr's submits that its joinder of all defendants who might arguably bear some responsibility for the loss is a positive feature of its proposed class action because the precarious financial situation of Sino-Forest makes it in the best interests of the class members that they be provided access to all appropriate routes to compensation. It strongly denies Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' allegation that Northwest v. Sino-Forest takes a "shot-gun" and injudicious approach by joining defendants that will just complicate matters and increase costs and delay.

213 Kim Orr submits that Rochon Genova has no good reason for not adding Pöyry, Pöyry Forest, and JP Management as defendants to Smith v. Sino-Forest and that Koskie Minsky and Siskinds have no good reason in Labourers v. Sino-Forest for suing Pöyry but not also suing its associated companies, all of whom are exposed to liability and may be sources of compensation for class members.

214 While not putting it in my blunt terms, Kim Orr submits, in effect, that Koskie Minsky and Siskinds' omission of the additional defendants is just laziness under the guise of feigning a concern for avoiding delay and unnecessarily complicating an already complex proceeding.

10. Causes of Action

Smith v. Sino-Forest

215 In Smith v. Sino-Forest, the causes of action advanced by Mr. Smith on behalf of the class members are:

- * misrepresentation in a prospectus under Part XXIII of the Ontario Securities Act
- * negligent, reckless, or fraudulent misrepresentation
- * subject to leave being granted, misrepresentation in secondary market disclosure under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act and, if necessary, equivalent provincial legislation

Labourers v. Sino-Forest

216 In Labourers v. Sino-Forest, the causes of action advanced by various combinations of plaintiffs against various combinations of defendants are:

- * misrepresentation in a prospectus under Part XXIII of the Ontario Securities Act
- * negligent misrepresentation
- * negligence
- * subject to leave being granted misrepresentation in secondary market disclosure under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act and, if necessary, equivalent provincial legislation
- * conspiracy
- * unjust enrichment
- * oppression remedy.

217 Kim Orr submits that the unjust enrichment claims and oppression remedy claims seemed to be based on and add little to the misrepresentation causes of action. It concedes that the conspiracy action may be a tenable claim but submits that its connection to the disclosure issues that comprise the nucleus of the litigation is unclear.

Northwest v. Sino-Forest

218 In Northwest v. Sino-Forest, the causes of action are:

- * misrepresentation in a prospectus in violation of Part XXIII the Ontario Securities Act
- * misrepresentation in an offering memorandum in violation of Part XXIII the Ontario Securities Act
- * negligent misrepresentation
- * fraudulent misrepresentation
- * negligence
- * subject to leave being granted misrepresentation in secondary market disclosure under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act and, if necessary, equivalent provincial legislation

219 The following chart is helpful in comparing and contrasting the joinder of various causes of action and the joinder of defendants in Smith v. Sino-Forest, Labourers v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

11. The Plaintiff and Defendant Correlation

220 In class actions in Ontario, for every named defendant there must be a named plaintiff with a cause of action against that defendant: Ragoonanan v. Imperial Tobacco Canada Ltd., [2000] O.J. No. 4597 (S.C.J.) at para. 55 (S.C.J.); Hughes v. Sunbeam Corp. (Canada) (2002), 61 O.R. (3d) 433 (C.A.) at para. 18.

221 As an application of the Ragoonanan rule, a purchaser in the secondary market cannot be the representative plaintiff for a class member who purchased in the primary market: Menegon v. Philip Services Corp., [2001] O.J. No. 5547 (S.C.J.) at paras. 28-30 aff'd [2003] O.J. No. 8 (C.A.).

222 Where the class includes non-resident class members, they must be represented by a representative plaintiff that is a non-resident: McKenna v. Gammon Gold Inc., 2010 ONSC 1591 at paras. 109, 117 and 184; Currie v. McDonald's Restaurants of Canada Ltd. (2005), 74 O.R. (3d) 321 at para. 30 (C.A.).

223 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that Labourers v. Sino-Forest has no Ragoonanan problems. However, they submit that the other actions have problems. For example, until Mr. Collins volunteered, there was no representative plaintiff in Smith v. Sino-Forest who had purchased shares in the primary market, and at this juncture, it is not clear that Mr. Collins purchased in all of the primary market distributions. Mr. Smith and Mr. Collins may have timing-of-purchase issues. Mr. Smith made purchases during periods when some of the Defendants were not involved; viz. BDO, Canaccord CIBC, Credit Suisse, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia, and TD.

224 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that none of the representative plaintiffs in Northwest v. Sino-Forest purchased notes in the primary market for the 2007 prospectus offering and that the plaintiffs in Northwest may have timing issues with respect to their claims against Wong, Lawrence, JP Management, UBS, Haywood and Morgan.

225 Rochon Genova's and Kim Orr's response is that there are no Ragoonanan problems or no irremediable Ragoonanan problems.

12. Prospects of Certification

226 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds framed part of their argument in favour of their being selected for carriage in terms of the comparative prospects of certification of the rival actions. They submitted that Labourers v. Sino-Forest was carefully designed to avoid the typical road blocks placed by defendants on the route to certification and to avoid inefficiencies and unproductive claims or claims that on a cost-benefit analysis would not be in the interests of the class to pursue. One of the typical roadblocks that they referred to was challenges to the jurisdiction of the Ontario Court over foreign class members and foreign defendants who have not attorned to the Ontario Superior Court of Justice's territorial jurisdiction.

227 Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submitted that their representative plaintiffs focus their claims on a single misrepresentation to avoid the pitfalls of seeking to certify a negligent misrepresentation claim with multiple misrepresentations over a long period of time. Such a claim apparently falls into a pit because it is often not certified. Koskie Minsky and Siskinds say it is better to craft a claim that has higher prospects of certification and leave some claims behind. They submit that the Supreme Court of Canada accepted that a representative plaintiff is entitled to restrict their causes of action to make their claims more amenable to class proceedings: Rumley v. British Columbia, [2001] 3 S.C.R. 184 at para. 30.

228 Although Smith v. Sino-Forest is even more focused than Labourers v. Sino-Forest, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds still submit that their approach is better because Smith v. Sino-Forest goes too far in cutting out the bondholders' claims and then loses focus by extending its claims beyond the release of the Muddy Waters Report.

229 In any event, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that Labourers v. Sino-Forest is better because the named plaintiffs are able to advance statutory and common law claims against all of the named defendants, which arguably is not the case for the plaintiffs in the other actions, who may have Ragoonanan problems or no tenable claims against some of the named defendants. Further, Labourers arguably is better because of a more focussed approach to maximize class recovery while avoiding the costs and delays inevitably linked with motions to strike.

230 Kim Orr submits that its more comprehensive approach, where there are more defendant parties and expansive tort claims, is preferable to Labourers v. Sino-Forest and Smith v. Sino-Forest. Kim Orr submits that it does not shirk asserting claims because they may be difficult to litigate and it does not abandon class members who may not be assured of success or who comprise a small portion of the class.

231 Kim Orr submits that Northwest v. Sino-Forest is comprehensive and also cohesive and corresponds to the factual reality. It submits that the theories of the competing actions do not capture the wrongdoing at Sino-Forest for which many are culpable and who should be held responsible. It submits that its approach will meet the challenges of certification and yield an optimum recovery for the class.

232 Rochon Genova submits that Smith v. Sino-Forest is much more cohesive than the other actions. It submits that the more expansive class definitions and causes of action in Labourers v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest will present serious difficulties relating to manageability, preferability, and potential conflicts of interest amongst class members that are not present in Smith v. Sino-Forest. Rochon Genova submits that it has developed a solid, straightforward theory of the case and made a great deal of progress in unearthing proof of Sino-Forest's wrongdoing.

G. CARRIAGE ORDER

1. Introduction

233 With the explanation that follows, I stay Smith v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest, and I award carriage to Koskie Minsky and Siskinds in Labourers v. Sino-Forest. In the race for carriage of an action against Sino-Forest, I would have ranked Rochon Genova second and Kim Orr third.

234 This is not an easy decision to make because class members would probably be well served by any of the rival law firms. Success in a carriage motion does not determine which is the best law firm, it determines that having regard to the interests of the plaintiffs and class members, to what is fair to the defendants, and to the policies that underlie the class actions regime, there is a constellation of factors that favours selecting one firm or group of firms as the best choice for a particular class action.

235 Having regard to the constellation of factors, in the circumstances of this case, several factors are neutral or non-determinative of the choice for carriage. In this group are: (a) attributes of class counsel; (b) retainer, legal, and forensic resources; (c) funding; (d) conflicts of interest; and (e) the plaintiff and defendant correlation.

236 In the case at bar, the determinative factors are: definition of class membership, definition of class period, theory of the case, causes of action, joinder of defendants, and prospects of certification.

237 Of the determinative factors, the attributes of the representative plaintiffs is a standalone factor. The other determinative factors are interrelated and concern the rival conceptualizations of what kind of class action would best serve the class members' need for access to justice and the policies of fairness to defendants, behaviour modification, and judicial economy.

238 Below, I will first discuss the neutral or non-determinative factors. Then, I will discuss the determinative factors. After discussing the attributes of the representative plaintiffs, I will discuss the related factors in two groups. One group of related factors is about class membership, and the second group of factors is about the claims against the defendants.

2. Neutral or Non-Determinative Factors

(a) Attributes of Class Counsel

239 In the circumstances of the cases at bar, the attributes of the competing law firms along with their associations with prestigious and prominent American class action firms is not determinative of carriage, since there is little difference among the rivals about their suitability for bringing a proposed class action against Sino-Forest.

240 With respect to the attributes of the law firms, although one might have thought that Mr. Spencer's call to the bar would diminish the risk, Koskie and Minsky and Siskinds, particularly Siskinds, raised a question about whether Milberg might cross the line of what legal services a foreign law firm may provide to the Ontario lawyers who are the lawyers of record, and Siskinds alluded to the spectre of violations of the rules of professional conduct and perhaps the evil of champerty and maintenance. It suggested that it was unfair to class members to have to bear this risk associated with the involvement of Milberg.

241 However, at this juncture, I have no reason to believe that any of the competing law firms, all of which have associations with notable American class action firms, will shirk their responsibilities to control the litigation and not to condone breaches of the rules of professional conduct or tortious conduct.

(b) Retainer, Legal, and Forensic Resources

242 The circumstances of the retainers and the initiative shown by the law firms and their efforts and resources expended by them are also not determinative factors in deciding the carriage motions in the case at bar, although it is an enormous shame that it may not be possible to share the fruits of these efforts once carriage is granted to one action and not the others.

243 As I have already noted above, the aggregate expenditure to develop the tactical and strategic plans for litigation not including the costs of preparing for the carriage motion are approximately $2 million. It seems that this effort by the respective law firms has been fruitful and productive. All of the law firms claim that their respective efforts have yielded valuable information to advance a claim against Sino-Forest and others.

244 All of the law firms were quickly out of the starting blocks to initiate investigations about the prospects and merits of a class action against Sino-Forest. For different reasonable reasons, the statements of claim were filed at different times.

245 In the case at bar, I do not regard the priority of the commencement of the actions as a meaningful factor, given that from the publication of the Muddy Waters Report, all the firms responded immediately to explore the merits of a class action and given that all the firms plan to amend their original pleadings that commenced the actions. In any event, I do not think that a carriage motion should be regarded as some sort of take home exam where the competing law firms have a deadline for delivering a statement of claim, else marks be deducted.

(c) Funding

246 In my opinion, another non-determinative factor is the circumstances that: (a) the representative plaintiffs in Labourers v. Sino-Forest may apply for court approval for third-party funding; (b) the plaintiffs in Northwest v. Sino-Forest may apply for court approval for third-party funding or they may apply to the Class Proceedings Fund to be protected from an adverse costs award; (c) Messrs. Smith and Collins in Smith v. Sino-Forest may apply to the Class Proceedings Fund to be protected from an adverse costs award; and (d) each of the law firms have respectively undertaken with their respective clients to indemnify them from an adverse costs award.

247 In the future, the court or the Ontario Law Foundation may have to deal with the funding requests, but for present purposes, I do not see how these prospects should make a difference to deciding carriage, although I will have something more to say below about the significance of the state of affairs that clients with the resources of Labourers' Fund, Operating Engineers Fund, Sjunde AP-Fonden, BC Investment, Bâtirente, and Northwest would seek an indemnity from their respective class counsel.

248 In any event, in my opinion, standing alone, the funding situation is not a determinative factor to carriage, although it may be relevant to other factors that are discussed below.

(d) Conflicts of Interest

249 In the circumstances of the case at bar, I also do not regard conflicts of interest as a determinative factor.

250 I do not see how the fact that Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments made their investments on behalf of others and allegedly suffered no losses themselves creates a conflict of interest. It appears to me that they have the same fiduciary responsibilities to their members as do Labourers' Fund, Operating Engineers Fund, Sjunde AP-Fonden, and Healthcare Manitoba.

251 Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments were the investors in the securities of Sino-Forest and although there may be equitable or beneficial owners, under the common law, they suffered the losses, just like the other investors in Sino-Forest securities suffered losses. The fact that Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments held the investments in trust for their members does not change the reality that they suffered the losses.

252 It is alleged that Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments, who were involved in corporate governance matters associated with Sino-Forest, failed to properly evaluate the risks of investing in Sino-Forest. Based on these allegations, it is submitted that they have a conflict of interest. I disagree.

253 Having regard to the main allegation being that Sino-Forest was engaged in a corporate shell game that deceived everyone, it strikes me that it is almost a spuriously speculative allegation to blame another victim as being at fault. However, even if the allegation is true, the other class members have no claim against Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments. If there were a claim, it would be by the members of Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments, who are not members of the class suing Sino-Forest. The actual class members have no claim against Northwest, Bâtirente, and BC Investments but have a common interest in pursuing Sino-Forest and the other defendants.

254 Further, it is arguable that Koskie Minsky and Siskinds are incorrect in suggesting that in Comité syndical national de retraite Bâtirente inc. c. Société financière Manuvie, 2011 QCCS 3446, the Superior Court of Québec disqualified Bâtirente as a representative plaintiff because there might be an issue about Bâtirente's investment decisions.

255 It appears to me that Justice Soldevida did not appoint Bâtirente as a representative plaintiff for a different reason. The action in Québec was a class action. There were some similarities to the case at bar, insofar as it was an action against a corporation, Manulife, and its officers and directors for misrepresentations and failure to fulfill disclosure obligations under securities law. In that action, the personal knowledge of the investors was a factor in their claims against Manulife, and Justice Soldevida felt that sophisticated investors, like Bâtirente, could not be treated on the same footing as the average investor. It was in that context that she concluded that there was an appearance of a conflict of interest between Bâtirente and the class members.

256 In the case at bar, however, particularly for the statutory claims where reliance is presumed, there is no reason to differentiate the average investors from the sophisticated ones. I also do not see how the difference between sophisticated and average investors would matter except perhaps at individual issues trials, where reasonable reliance might be an issue, if the matter ever gets that far.

257 Another alleged conflict concerns the facts that BDO Canada, which is not a defendant, is the auditor of Labourers' Fund, and Koskie Minsky and BDO Canada have worked together on several matters. These circumstances are not conflicts of interest. There is no reason to think that Labourers' Fund and Koskie Minsky are going to pull their punches against BDO or would have any reason to do so.

258 Finally, turning to the major alleged conflict between the bondholders and the shareholders, speaking generally, the alleged conflicts of interest between the bondholders that invested in Sino-Forest and the shareholders that invested in Sino-Forest arise because the bondholders have a cause of action in debt in addition to their causes of action based in tort or statutory misrepresentation claims, while, in contrast, the shareholders have only statutory and common law claims based in misrepresentation.

259 There is, however, within the context of the class action, no conflict of interest. In the class action, only the misrepresentation claims are being advanced, and there is no conflict between the bondholders and the shareholders in advancing these claims. Both the bondholders and the shareholders seek to prove that they were deceived in purchasing or holding on to their Sino-Forest securities. That the Defendants may have defences associated with the terms of the bonds is a problem for the bondholders but it does not place them in a conflict with shareholders not confronted with those special defences.

260 Assuming that the bondholders and shareholders succeed or are offered a settlement, there might be a disagreement between them about how the judgment or settlement proceeds should be distributed, but that conflict, which at this juncture is speculative, can be addressed now or later by constituting the bondholders as a subclass and by the court's supervisory role in approving settlements under the Class Proceedings Act, 1992.

261 If there are bondholders that wish only to pursue their debt claims or who wish not to pursue any claim against Sino-Force or who wish to have the bond trustee pursue only the debt claims, these bondholders may opt out of the class proceeding assuming it is certified.

262 If there is a bankruptcy of Sino-Forest, then in the bankruptcy, the position of the shareholders as owners of equity is different than the position of the bondholders as secured creditors, but that is a natural course of a bankruptcy. That there are creditors' priorities, outside of the class action, does not mean that, within the class action, where the bondholders and the shareholders both claim damages, i.e., unsecured claims, there is a conflict of interest.

263 The alleged conflict in the case at bar is different from the genuine conflict of interest that was identified in Settington v. Merck Frost Canada Ltd., [2006] O.J. No. 376 (S.C.J.), where, for several reasons, the Merchant Law Firm was not granted carriage or permitted to be part of the consortium granted carriage in a pharmaceutical products liability class action against Merck.

264 In Settington, one ground for disqualification was that the Merchant Law firm was counsel in a securities class action for different plaintiffs suing Merck for an unsecured claim. If the securities class action claim was successful, then the prospects of an unsecured recovery in the products liability class action might be imperiled. In the case at bar, however, within the class action, the bondholders are not pursuing a different cause of action from the shareholders; both are unsecured creditors for the purposes of their damages' claims arising from misrepresentation. If, in other proceedings, the bondholders or their trustee successfully pursue recovery in debt, then the threat to the prospects of recovery by the shareholders arises in the normal way that debt instruments have priority over equity instruments, which is a normal risk for shareholders.

265 Put shortly, although the analysis may not be easy, there are no conflicts of interest between the bondholders and the shareholders within the class action that cannot be handled by establishing a subclass for bondholders at the time of certification or at the time a settlement is contemplated.

(e) The Plaintiff and Defendant Correlation

266 In Ragoonanan v. Imperial Tobacco Canada Ltd., (2000), 51 O.R. (3d) 603 (S.C.J.), in a proposed products liability class action, Mr. Ragoonanan sued Imperial Tobacco, Rothmans, and JTI-MacDonald, all cigarette manufacturers. He alleged that the manufacturers had negligently designed their cigarettes by failing to make them "fire safe." Mr. Ragoonanan's particular claim was against Imperial Tobacco, which was the manufacturer of the cigarette that allegedly caused harm to him when it was the cause of a fire at Mr. Ragoonanan's home. Mr. Ragoonanan did not have a claim against Rothmans or JTI-MacDonald.

267 In Ragoonanan, Justice Cumming established the principle in Ontario class action law that there cannot be a cause of action against a defendant without a plaintiff who has that cause of action. Rather, there must be for every named defendant, a named plaintiff with a cause of action against that defendant. The Ragoonanan principle was expressly endorsed by the Court of Appeal in Hughes v. Sunbeam Corp. (Canada) Ltd. (2002), 61 O.R. (3d) 433 (C.A.) at paras. 13-18, leave to appeal to S.C.C. ref'd (2003), [2002] S.C.C.A. No. 446, 224 D.L.R. (4th) vii.

268 It should be noted, however, that in Ragoonanan, Justice Cumming did not say that there must be for every separate cause of action against a named defendant, a named plaintiff. In other words, he did not say that if some class members had cause of action A against defendant X and other class members had cause of action B against defendant X that it was necessary that there be a named representative plaintiff for both the cause of action A v. X and for the cause of action B v. X. It was arguable that if the representative plaintiff had a claim against X, then he or she could represent others with the same or different claims against X.

269 Thus, there is room for a debate about the scope of the Ragoonanan principle, and, indeed, it has been applied in the narrow way, just suggested. Provided that the representative plaintiff has his or her own cause of action, the representative plaintiff can assert a cause of action against a defendant on behalf of other class members that he or she does not assert personally, provided that the causes of action all share a common issue of law or of fact: Boulanger v. Johnson & Johnson Corp., [2002] O.J. No. 1075 (S.C.J.) at para. 22, leave to appeal granted, [2002] O.J. No. 2135 (S.C.J.), varied (2003), 64 O.R. (3d) 208 (Div. Ct.) at paras. 41, 48, varied [2003] O.J. No. 2218 (C.A.); Healey v. Lakeridge Health Corp., [2006] O.J. No. 4277 (S.C.J.); Matoni v. C.B.S. Interactive Multimedia Inc., [2008] O.J. No. 197 (S.C.J.) at paras. 71-77; Voutour v. Pfizer Canada Inc., [2008] O.J. No. 3070 (S.C.J.); Dobbie v. Arctic Glacier Income Fund, 2011 ONSC 25 at para. 37. Thus, a representative plaintiff with damages for personal injury can claim in respect of dependents with derivative claims provided that the statutes that create the derivative causes of action are properly pleaded: Voutour v. Pfizer Canada Inc., supra; Boulanger v. Johnson & Johnson Corp., supra.

270 As noted above, in the case at bar, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submit that Labourers v. Sino-Forest has no problem with the Ragoonanan principle and that Smith v. Sino-Forest and especially the more elaborate Northwest v. Sino-Forest confront Ragoonanan problems.

271 For the purposes of this carriage motion, I do not feel it is necessary to do an analysis about the extent to which any of the rival actions are compliant with Ragoonanan.

272 The Ragoonanan problem is often easy to fix. The emergence of Mr. Collins in Smith v. Sino-Forest to sue for the primary market shareholders is an example, assuming that Mr. Smith's own claims against the defendants do not satisfy the Ragoonanan principle. Therefore, I do not regard the plaintiff and defendant correlation as a determinative factor in determining carriage.

273 It is also convenient here to add that I do not see the spectre of challenges to the Superior Court's jurisdiction over foreign class members or over the foreign defendants are a determinative factor to picking one action over another. It may be that Northwest v. Sino-Forest has the potential to attract more jurisdictional challenges but standing alone that potential is not a reason for disqualifying Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

3. Determinative Factors

(a) Attributes of the Proposed Representative Plaintiffs

274 I turn now to the determinative factors that lead me to the conclusion that carriage should be granted to Koskie Minsky and Siskinds in Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

275 The one determinative factor that stands alone is the characteristics of the candidates for representative plaintiff. In the case at bar, this is a troublesome and maybe a profound determinative factor.

276 Kim Orr extolled the virtues of having its clients, Northwest, Bâtirente and BC Investments, which collectively manage $92 billion in assets, as candidates to be representative plaintiffs.

277 Similarly, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds extolled the virtues of having Labourers' Fund, Operating Engineers Fund, and Sjunde AP-Fonden as candidates for representative plaintiff, along with the support of major class member Healthcare Manitoba. Together, these parties to Labourers v. Sino-Forest collectively manage $23.2 billion in assets. As noted above, Koskie Minsky and Siskinds submitted that their clients were not tainted by involving themselves in the governance oversight of Sino-Forest, which had been lauded as a positive factor by Kim Orr.

278 As I have already discussed above in the context of the discussion about conflicts of interest, I do not regard Bâtirente's, and Northwest's interest in corporate governance generally or its particular efforts to oversee Sino-Forest as a negative factor.

279 However, what may be a negative factor and what is the signature attribute of all of these candidates for representative plaintiff is that it is hard to believe that given their financial heft, they need the Class Proceedings Act, 1992 for access to justice or to level the litigation playing field or that they need an indemnity to protect them from exposure to an adverse costs award.

280 Although these candidates for representative plaintiff would seem to have adequate resources to litigate, they seem to be seeking to use a class action as a means to secure an indemnity from class counsel or a third-party funder for any exposure to costs. If they are genuinely serious about pursuing the defendants to obtain compensation for their respective members, they would also seem to be prime candidates to opt out of the class proceeding if they are not selected as a representative plaintiff.

281 Mr. Rochon neatly argued that the class proceedings regime was designed for litigants like Mr. Smith not litigants like Labourers Trust or Northwest. He referred to the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995, legislation in the United States that was designed to encourage large institutions to participate in securities class actions by awarding them leadership of securities actions under what is known as a "leadership order". He told me that the policy behind this legislation was to discourage what are known as "strike suits," namely, meritless securities class actions brought by opportunistic entrepreneurial attorneys to obtain very remunerative nuisance value payments from the defendants to settle non-meritorious claims.

282 I was told that the American legislators thought that appointing a lead plaintiff on the basis of financial interest would ensure that institutional plaintiffs with expertise in the securities market and real financial interests in the integrity of the market would control the litigation, not lawyers. See: LaSala v. Bordier et CIE, 519 F.3d 121 (U.S. Ct App (3rd Cir)) (2008) at p. 128; Taft v. Ackermans, (2003), F.Supp.2d, 2003 WL 402789 at 1,2, D.H. Webber, "The Plight of the Individual Investor in Securities Class Actions" (2010) NYU Law and Economics Working Papers, para. 216 at p. 7.

283 Mr. Rochon pointed out that the litigation environment is different in Canada and Ontario and that the provinces have taken a different approach to controlling strike suits. Control is established generally by requiring that a proposed class action go through a certification process and by requiring a fairness hearing for any settlements, and in the securities field, control is established by requiring leave for claims under Part XXIII.1 of the Ontario Securities Act. See Ainslie v. CV Technologies Inc. (2008) 93 O.R. (3d) 200 (S.C.J.) at paras. 7, 10-13.

284 In his factum, Mr. Rochon eloquently argued that individual investors victimized by securities fraud should have a voice in directing class actions. Mr. Smith lost approximately half of his investment fortune; and according to Mr. Rochon, Mr. Smith is an individual investor who is highly motivated, wants an active role, and wants to have a voice in the proceeding.

285 While I was impressed by Mr. Rochon's argument, it did not take me to the conclusions that the attributes of the institutional candidates for representative plaintiff in Labourers v. Sino-Forest and in Northwest v. Sino-Forest when compared to the attributes of Mr. Smith should disqualify the institutional candidates from being representative plaintiffs or be a determinative factor to grant carriage to a more typical representative plaintiff like Mr. Smith or Mr. Collins.

286 I think that it would be a mistake to have a categorical rule that an institutional plaintiff with the resources to bring individual proceedings or the means to opt-out of class proceedings and go it alone should be disqualified or discouraged from being a representative plaintiff. In the case at bar, the expertise and participation of the institutional investors in the securities marketplace could contribute to the successful prosecution of the lawsuit on behalf of the class members.

287 Although Mr. Smith and Mr. Collins might lose their voice, they might in the circumstances of this case not be best voice for their fellow class members, who at the end of the day want results not empathy from their representative plaintiff and class counsel.

288 Access to justice is one of the policy goals of the Class Proceedings Act, 1992 and although it may be the case that the institutional representative plaintiffs want but do not need the access to justice provided by the Act, they are pursuing access to justice in a way that ultimately benefits Mr. Smith and other class members should their actions be certified as a class proceeding.

289 On these matters, I agree with what Justice Rady said in McCann v. CP Ships Ltd., [2009] O.J. No. 5182 (S.C.J.) at paras. 104-105:

104. I recognize that access to justice concerns may not be engaged when a class is comprised of large institutions with large claims. Authority for this proposition is found in Abdool v. Anaheim Management Ltd. (1995), 21 O.R. (3d) 453 (Div. Ct.). Moldaver J. made the following observation at p. 473:

As a rule, certification should have as its root a number of individual claims which would otherwise be economically unfeasible to pursue. While not necessarily fatal to an order for certification, the absence of this important underpinning will certainly weigh in the balance against certification.

105. Nevertheless, I am satisfied on the basis of the record before me that the individual claims and those of small corporations would likely be economically unfeasible to pursue. Further, there is no good principled reason that a large corporation should not be able to avail itself of the class proceeding mechanism where the other objectives are met.

290 Another goal of the Class Proceedings Act, 1992 is judicial economy, and the avoidance of a multiplicity of actions. However, the Act envisions a multiplicity of actions by permitting class members to opt-out and bring their own action against the defendants. However, there is an exception. The only class member that cannot opt out is the representative plaintiff, and in the circumstances of the case at bar, one advantage of granting carriage to one of the institutional plaintiffs is that they cannot opt out, and this, in and of itself, advances judicial economy.

291 Another advantage of keeping the institutional plaintiffs in the case at bar in a class action is that the institutional plaintiffs are already to a large extent representative plaintiffs. They are already, practically speaking, suing on behalf of their own members, who number in the hundreds of thousands. Their members suffered losses by the investments made on their behalf by BC Investments, Bâtirente, Northwest, Labourers' Fund, Operating Engineers Fund, Sjunde AP-Fonden, and Healthcare Manitoba. These pseudo-class members are probably better served by the court case managing the class action, assuming it is certified and by the judicial oversight of the approval process for any settlements.

292 These thoughts lead me to the conclusion that in the circumstances of the case at bar, a determinative factor that favours Labourers v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest is the attributes of their candidates for representative plaintiff. In this regard, Labourers v. Sino-Forest has the further advantage that it also has Mr. Grant and Mr. Wong, who are individual investors and who can give voice to the interests of similarly situated class members.

(b) Definition of Class Membership and Definition of Class Period

293 The first group of interrelated determinative factors is: definition of class membership and definition of class period. These factors concern who, among the investors in Sino-Forest shares and bonds, is to be given a ticket to a class action litigation train that is designed to take them to the court of justice.

294 Smith v. Sino-Forest offers no tickets to bondholders because it is submitted that (a) the bondholders will fight with the shareholders about sharing the spoils of the litigation, especially because the bondholders have priority over the shareholders and secured and protected claims in a bankruptcy; (b) the bondholders will fight among themselves about a variety of matters including whether it would be preferable to leave it to their bond trustee to sue on their collective behalf to collect the debt rather than prosecute a class action for an unsecured claim for damages for misrepresentation; and (c) a misrepresentation action by the bondholders against some or all of the defendants may be precluded by the terms of the bonds.

295 In my opinion, the bondholders should be included as class members, if necessary, with their own subclass, and, thus, Smith v. Sino-Forest does not fare well under this group of interrelated factors. As I explained above, I do not regard the membership of both shareholders and bondholders in the class as raising insurmountable conflicts of interest. The bondholders have essentially the same misrepresentation claims as do the shareholders, and it makes sense, particularly as a matter of judicial economy, to have their claims litigated in the same proceeding as the shareholders' claims.

296 Pragmatically, if the bondholders are denied a ticket to one of the class actions now at the Osgoode Hall station because of a conflict of interest, then they could bring another class action in which they would be the only class members. That class action by the bondholders would raise the same issues of fact and law about the affairs of Sino-Forest. Thus, denying the bondholders a ticket on one of the two class actions that has made room for them would just encourage a multiplicity of litigation. It is preferable to keep the bondholders on board sharing the train with any conflicts being managed by the appointment of separate class counsel for the bondholders, who can form a subclass at certification or later assuming that certification is granted.

297 As already noted above, for those bondholders who do not want to get on the litigation train, they can opt-out of the class action assuming it is certified. That the defendants may have defences to the misrepresentation claims of the bondholders is just a problem that the bondholders will have to confront, and it is not a reason to deny them a ticket to try to obtain access to justice.

298 In Caputo v. Imperial Tobacco Ltd., [2004] O.J. No. 299 (S.C.J.), Justice Winkler, as he then was, noted at para. 39 that there is a difference between restricting the joinder of causes of action in order to make an action more amenable to certification and restricting the number of class members in an action for which certification is being sought. He stated:

Although Rumley v. British Columbia, [2001] 3 S.C.R. 184 holds that the plaintiffs can arbitrarily restrict the causes of action asserted in order to make a proceeding more amenable to certification (at 201), the same does not hold true with respect to the proposed class. Here the plaintiffs have not chosen to restrict the causes of action asserted but rather attempt to make the action more amenable to certification by suggesting arbitrary exclusions from the proposed class. This is diametrically opposite to the approach taken by the plaintiffs in Rumley, and one which has been expressly disapproved by the Supreme Court in Hollick v. Toronto (City), [2001] 3 S.C.R. 158. There, McLachlin C.J. made it clear that the onus falls on the putative representative to show that the "class is defined sufficiently narrowly" but without resort to arbitrary exclusion to achieve that result...

299 For shareholders, Smith v. Sino-Forest is more accommodating; indeed, it is the most accommodating, in offering tickets to shareholders to board the class action train. Without prejudice to the arguments of the defendants, who may impugn any of the class period or class membership definitions, and assuming that the bondholders are also included, the best of the class periods for shareholders is that found in Smith v. Sino-Forest.

300 To be blunt, I found the rationales for shorter class periods in Labourers v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest somewhat paranoid, as if the plaintiffs were afraid that the defendants will attack their definitions for over-inclusiveness or for making the class proceeding unmanageable. Those attacks may come, but I see no reason for the plaintiffs in Labourers and Sino-Forest to leave at the station without tickets some shareholders who may have arguable claims.

301 If Mr. Torchio is correct that almost all of the shareholders would be covered by the shortest class period that is found in Labourers v. Sino-Forest, then the defendants may think the fight to shorten the class period may not be worth it. If they are inclined to challenge the class definition on grounds of unmanageability or the class action as not being the preferable procedure, the longer class period definition will likely be peripheral to the main contest.

302 I do not see the extension of the class period beyond June 2, 2011, when the Muddy Waters Report became public, as a problem. Put shortly, at this juncture, and subject to what the defendants may later have to say, I agree with Rochon Genova's arguments about the appropriate class period end date for the shareholders.

303 If I am correct in this analysis so far, where it takes me is only to the conclusion that the best class period definition for shareholders is found in Smith v. Sino-Forest. It, however, does not take me to the conclusion that carriage should be granted to Smith v. Sino-Forest. Subject to what the defendants may have to say, the class definitions and class period in Labourers v. Sino-Forest and in Northwest v. Sino-Forest appear to be adequate, reasonable, certifiable, and likely consistent with the common issues that will be forthcoming.

304 Since for other reasons, I would grant carriage to Labourers v. Sino-Forest, the question I ask myself is whether the class definition in Labourers, which favourably includes bondholders, but which is not as good a definition as found in Smith v. Sino-Forest or in Northwest v. Sino-Forest should be a reason not to grant carriage to Labourers. My answer to my own question is no, especially since it is still possible to amend the class definition so that it is not under-inclusive.

(c) Theory of the Case, Causes of Action, Joinder of Defendants, and Prospects of Certification

305 The second group of interrelated determinative factors is: theory of the case, causes of action, joinder of defendants, and prospects of certification. Taken together, it is my opinion, that these factors, which are about what is in the best interests of the putative class members, favour staying Smith v. Sino-Forest and Northwest v. Sino-Forest and granting carriage to Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

306 In applying the above factors, I begin here with the obvious point that it would not be in the interests of the putative class members, let alone not in their best interests to grant carriage to an action that is unlikely to be certified or that, if certified, is unlikely to succeed. It also seems obvious that it would be in the best interests of class members to grant carriage to the action that is most likely to be certified and ultimately successful at obtaining access to justice for the injured or, in this case, financially harmed class members. And it also seems obvious that all other things being equal, it would be in the best interests of class members and fair to the defendants and most consistent with the policies of the Class Proceedings Act, 1992 to grant carriage to the action that, to borrow from rule 1.04 or the Rules of Civil Procedure secures the just, most expeditious and least expensive determination of the dispute on its merits.

307 While these points seem obvious, there is, however, a major problem in applying them, because the court should not and cannot go very far in determining the matters that would be most determinative of carriage. A carriage motion is not the time to determine whether an action will satisfy the criteria for certification or whether it will ultimately provide redress to the class members or whether it would be the preferable procedure or the most expeditious and least expensive procedure to resolve the dispute.

308 Keeping this caution in mind, in my opinion, certain aspects of Northwest v. Sino-Forest make the other actions preferable. In this regard, I find the joinder of some defendants to Northwest v. Sino-Forest mildly troublesome.

309 More serious, in Northwest v. Sino-Forest, I find the employment and reliance on the tort action of fraudulent misrepresentation less desirable than the causes of action utilized to provide procedural and substantive justice to the class members in Smith v. Sino-Forest and Labourers v. Sino-Forest. In my opinion, the fraudulent misrepresentation action adds needless complexity and costs.

310 While the finger-pointing of the OSC at Ho, Hung, Ip, and Yeung supports their joinder, the joinder of Chen, Lawrence Estate, Maradin, Wong, and Zhao is mildly troublesome. The joinder of defendants should be based on something more substantive than their opportunity to be a wrongdoer, and at this juncture it is not clear why Chen, Lawrence Estate, Maradin, Wong, and Zhao have been joined to Northwest v. Sino-Forest and not to the other proposed class actions. Their joinder, however, is only mildly troublesome, because the plaintiffs in Northwest v. Sino-Forest may have particulars of wrongdoing and have simply failed to plead them.

311 Turning to the pleading of fraudulent misrepresentation, when it is far easier to prove a claim in negligent misrepresentation or negligence, the claim for fraudulent misrepresentation seems a needless provocation that will just fuel the defendants' fervour to defend and to not settle the class action. Fraud is a very serious allegation because of the moral and not just legal turpitude of it, and the allegation of fraud also imperils insurance coverage that might be the source of a recovery for class members.

312 Kim Orr has understated the difficulties the plaintiffs in Northwest v. Sino-Forest will confront in impugning the integrity of Sino-Forest, Ardell, Bowland, Chan, Horsley, Hyde, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, Wang, West, Chen, Ho, Hung, Ip, Lawrence Estate, Maradin, Wong, Yeung, Zhao, Canaccord, CIBC, Credit Suisse, Credit Suisse (USA), Dundee, Haywood, Maison, Merrill, Merrill-Fenner, Morgan, RBC, Scotia, TD, UBS, E&Y, BDO, Pöyry, Pöyry Forest, JP Management.

313 Fraud must be proved individually. In order to establish that a corporate defendant committed fraud, it must be proven that a natural person for whose conduct the corporation is responsible acted with a fraudulent intent. See: Hughes v. Sunbeam Corp. (Canada), [2000] O.J. No. 4595 (S.C.J.) at para. 26; Toronto-Dominion Bank v. Leigh Instruments Ltd. (Trustee of), [1998] O.J. No. 2637 (Gen. Div.) at paras. 477-479.

314 A claim for deceit or fraudulent misrepresentation typically breaks down into five elements: (1) a false statement; (2) the defendant knowing that the statement is false or being indifferent to its truth or falsity; (3) the defendant having an intent to deceive the plaintiff; (4) the false statement being material and the plaintiff being induced to act; and (5) the defendant suffering damages: Derry v. Peek (1889), 14 App. Cas. 337 (H.L.); Graham v. Saville, [1945] O.R. 301 (C.A.); Francis v. Dingman (1983), 2 D.L.R. (4th) 244 (Ont. C.A.). The fraud elements are the second and third in this list.

315 In the famous case of Derry v. Peek, the general issue was what counts as a fraudulent misrepresentation. More particularly, the issue was whether a careless or negligent misrepresentation without more could count as a fraudulent misrepresentation. In the case, the defendants were responsible for a false statement in a prospectus. The prospectus, which was for the sale of shares in a tramway company, stated that the company was permitted to use steam power to work a tram line. The statement was false because the directors had omitted the qualification that the use of steam power required the consent of the Board of Trade. As it happened, the consent was not given, the tram line would have to be driven by horses, and the company was wound-up. The Law Lords reviewed the evidence of the defendants individually and concluded that although the defendants had all been careless in their use of language, they had honestly believed what they had said in the prospectus.

316 In the lead judgment, Lord Herschell reviewed the case law, and at p. 374, he stated in the most famous passage from the case:

I think the authorities establish the following propositions. First, in order to sustain an action for deceit, there must be proof of fraud, and nothing short of that will suffice. Secondly, fraud is proved when it is shewn that a false representation has been made (1) knowingly, or (2) without belief in its truth, or (3) recklessly, careless, whether it be true or false. Although I have treated the second and third as distinct cases, I think the third is but an instance of the second, for one who makes a statement under such circumstances can have no real belief in the truth of what he states. To prevent a false statement being fraudulent, there must, I think be an honest belief in its truth. And this probably covers the whole ground, for one who knowingly alleges that which is false has obviously no such honest belief. Thirdly, if fraud is proved, the motive of the person guilty is immaterial. It matters not that there was no intention to cheat or injure the person to whom the statement was made.

317 Lord Herschell's third situation is the one that was at the heart of Derry v. Peek, and the Law Lords struggled to articulate that relationship between belief and carelessness in speaking. Before the above passage, Lord Herschell stated at p. 361:

To make a statement careless whether it be true or false, and therefore without any real belief in its truth, appears to me to be an essentially different thing from making, through want of care, a false statement, which is nevertheless honestly believed to be true. And it is surely conceivable that a man may believe that what he states is the fact, though he has been so wanting in care that the Court may think that there were no sufficient grounds to warrant his belief.

318 Lord Herschell is saying that carelessness in making a statement does not necessarily entail that a person does not believe what he or she is saying. However, later in his judgment, he emphasizes that carelessness is relevant and could be sufficient to show that a person did not believe what he or she was saying. Thus, carelessness may prove fraud, but it is not itself fraud. Lord Herschell's famous quotation, where he states that fraud is proven when it is shown that a false statement was made recklessly, careless whether it be true or false, states only awkwardly the role of carelessness and must be read in the context of the whole judgment.

319 In Angus v. Clifford, [1891] 2 Ch. 449 (C.A.) at p. 471, Bowen, L.J. discussed the role of carelessness or recklessness in establishing fraud; he stated:

Not caring, in that context [i.e., in the context of an allegation of fraud], did not mean taking care, it meant indifference to the truth, the moral obliquity which consists of wilful disregard of the importance of truth, and unless you keep it clear that that is the true meaning of the term, you are constantly in danger of confusing the evidence from which the inference of dishonesty in the mind may be drawn - evidence which consists in a great many cases of gross want of caution - with the inference of fraud, or of dishonesty itself, which has to be drawn after you have weighed all the evidence.

320 Bowen, L.J.'s statement alludes to the second element of what makes a statement fraudulent. Deceit or fraudulent misrepresentation requires that the defendant have "a wicked mind." Le Lievre v. Gould, [1893] 1 Q.B. 491 at p. 498. Fraud involves intentional dishonesty, the intent being to deceive. If the plaintiff fails to prove this mental element, then, as was the case in Derry v. Peek, the claim is dismissed. To succeed in an action for deceit or for fraudulent misrepresentation, the plaintiff must show not only that the defendant spoke falsely and contrary to belief but that the defendant had the intent to deceive, which is to say he or she had the aim of inducing the plaintiff to act mistakenly: BG Checo International Ltd. v. British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority (1993), 99 D.L.R. (4th) 577 (S.C.C.).

321 The defendant's reason for deceiving the plaintiff, however, need not be evil. In the passage above from Derry v. Peek, Lord Herschell notes that the person's motive for saying something that he or she does not believe is irrelevant. A person may have a benign reason for defrauding another person, but the fraud remains because of the discordance between words and belief combined with the intent to mislead the plaintiff: Smith v. Chadwick (1854), 9 App. Cas. 187 at p. 201; Bradford Building Society v. Borders, [1941] 2 All E.R. 205 at p. 211; Beckman v. Wallace (1913), 29 O.L.R. 96 (C.A.) at p. 101.

322 In promoting its fraudulent misrepresentation claim, Kim Orr relied on Gregory v. Jolley (2001), 54 O.R. (3d) 481 (C.A.), which was a case where a trial judge erred by not applying the third branch of the test articulated in Derry v. Peek. Justice Sharpe discussed the trial judge's failure to consider whether the appellant had made out a case of fraud based on recklessness and stated at para. 20:

With respect to the law, the trial judge's reasons show that he failed to consider whether the appellant had made out a case of fraud on the basis of recklessness. While he referred to a case that in turn referred to the test from Derry v. Peek, the reasons for judgment demonstrate to my satisfaction that the trial judge simply did not take into account the possibility that fraud could be made out if the respondent made misrepresentations of material fact without regard to their truth. The trial judge's reasons speak only of an intention to defraud or of statements calculated to mislead or misrepresent. He makes no reference to recklessness or to statements made without an honest belief in their truth. As Derry v. Peek holds, that state of mind is sufficient proof of the mental element required for civil fraud, whatever the motive of the party making the representation. In another leading case on civil fraud, Edgington v. Fitzmaurice, (1885), 29 Ch. D.459 at 481-82 (C.A.), Bowen L.J. stated: "[I]t is immaterial whether they made the statement knowing it to be untrue, or recklessly, without caring whether it was true or not, because to make a statement recklessly for the purpose of influencing another person is dishonest." The failure to give adequate consideration to the contention that the respondent had been reckless with the truth in regard to the income figures he gave in order to obtain disability insurance constitutes an error of law justifying the intervention of this court.

323 From this passage, Kim Orr extracts the notion that there is a viable fraudulent misrepresentation against forty defendants all of whom individually can be shown to be reckless as opposed to careless. That seems unlikely, but more to the point, recklessness is only half the battle. The overall motive may not matter, but the defendant still must have had the intent to deceive, which in Gregory v. Jolley was the intent to obtain disability insurance to which he was not qualified to receive.

324 Recklessness alone is not enough to constitute fraudulent misrepresentation, as Justice Cumming notes at para. 25 of his judgment in Hughes v. Sunbeam Corp. (Canada), [2000] O.J. No. 4595 (S.C.J.), where he states:

The representation must have been made with knowledge of its falsehood or recklessness without belief in its truth. The representation must have been made by the representor with the intention that it should be acted upon by the representee and the representee must in fact have acted upon it.

325 I conclude that the fraudulent misrepresentation action is a substantial weakness in Northwest v. Sino-Forest. In fairness, I should add that I think that the unjust enrichment causes of action and oppression remedy claims in Labourers v. Sino-Forest add little.

326 The unjust enrichment claims in Labourers seem superfluous. If Sino-Forest, Chan, Horsley, Mak, Martin, Murray, Poon, Banc of America, Canaccord, CIBC, Credit Suisse, Credit Suisse USA, Dundee, Maison, Merrill, RBC, Scotia and TD, are found to be liable for misrepresentation or negligence, then the damages they will have to pay will far exceed the disgorgement of any unjust enrichment. If they are found not to have committed any wrong, then there will be no basis for an unjust enrichment claim for recapture of the gains they made on share transactions or from their remuneration for services rendered. In other words, the claims for unjust enrichment are unnecessary for victory and they will not snatch victory if the other claims are defeated. Much the same can be said about the oppression remedy claim. That said, these claims in Labourers v. Sino-Forest will not strain the forensic resources of the plaintiffs in the same way as taking on a massive fraudulent misrepresentation cause of action would do in Northwest v. Sino-Forest.

327 For the purposes of this carriage motion, I have little to say about the "Integrity Representation" approach to the misrepresentation claims that are at the heart of the claims against the defendants in Northwest v. Sino-Forest or of the "GAAP" misrepresentation employed in Labourers v. Sino-Forest, or the focus on the authorized intermediaries in Smith v. Sino-Forest. Short of deciding the motion for certification, there is no way of deciding which approach is more likely to lead to certification or which approach the defendants will attack as deficient. For present purposes, I am simply satisfied that the class members are best served by the approach in Labourers v. Sino-Forest.

328 The cohesive, yet adequately comprehensive, approach used in Smith v. Sino-Forest appears to me close to Labourers v. Sino-Forest, but in my opinion, Smith v. Sino-Forest wants for the inclusion of the bondholders, and, as noted above, there are other factors which favour Labourers v. Sino-Forest over Smith v. Sino-Forest. That said, it was a close call for me to choose Labourers v. Sino-Forest and not Smith v. Sino-Forest.

H. CONCLUSION

329 For the above Reasons, I grant carriage to Koskie Minsky and Siskinds with leave to the plaintiffs in Labourers v. Sino-Forest to deliver a Fresh as Amended Statement of Claim.

330 In granting leave, I grant leave generally and the plaintiffs are not limited to the amendments sought as a part of this carriage motion. It will be for the plaintiffs to decide whether some amendments are in order to respond to the lessons learned from this carriage motion, and it is not too late to have more representative plaintiffs.

331 I repeat that a carriage motion is without prejudice to the defendants' rights to challenge the pleadings and whether any particular cause of action is legally tenable.

332 I make no order as to costs, which is in the usual course in carriage motions.

P.M. PERELL J.

restructuring -- Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, s. 11.

On January 29, 2004, Stelco Inc. ("Stelco") obtained protection from creditors under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act ("CCAA"). Subsequently, while a restructuring under the CCAA was under way, Clearwater Capital Management Inc. ("Clearwater") and Equilibrium Capital Management Inc. ("Equilibrium") acquired a 20 per cent holding in the outstanding publicly traded common shares of Stelco. Michael Woollcombe and Roland Keiper, who were associated with Clearwater and Equilibrium, asked to be appointed to the Stelco board of directors, which had been depleted as a result of resignations. Their request was supported by other shareholders who, together with Clearwater and Equilibrium, represented about 40 per cent of the common shareholders. On February 18, 2005, the Board acceded to the request and Woollcombe and Keiper were appointed to the Board. On the same day as their appointments, the board of directors began consideration of competing bids that had been received as a result of a court-approved capital raising process that had become the focus of the CCAA restructuring.

The appointment of Woollcombe and Keiper to the Board incensed the employees of Stelco. They applied to the court to have the appointments set aside. The employees argued that there was a reasonable apprehension that Woollcombe [page6] and Keiper would not be able to act in the best interests of Stelco as opposed to their own best interests as shareholders. Purporting to rely on the court's inherent jurisdiction and the discretion provided by the CCAA, on February 25, 2005, Farley J. ordered Woollcombe and Keiper removed from the Board.

Woollcombe and Keiper applied for leave to appeal the order of Farley J. and if leave be granted, that the order be set aside on the grounds that (a) Farley J. did not have the jurisdiction to make the order under the provisions of the CCAA, (b) even if he did have jurisdiction, the reasonable apprehension of bias test had no application to the removal of directors, (c) he had erred in interfering with the exercise by the Board of its business judgment in filling the vacancies on the Board, and (d) in any event, the facts did not meet any test that would justify the removal of directors by a court.

Held, leave to appeal should be granted, and the appeal should be allowed.

The appeal involved the scope of a judge's discretion under s. 11 of the CCAA, in the context of corporate governance decisions made during the course of the plan negotiating and approval process of the CCAA. In particular, it involved the court's power, if any, to make an order removing directors under s. 11 of the CCAA. The order to remove directors could not be founded on inherent jurisdiction. Inherent jurisdiction is a power derived from the very nature of the court as a superior court of law, and it permits the court to maintain its authority and to prevent its process from being obstructed and abused. However, inherent jurisdiction does not operate where Parliament or the legislature has acted and, in the CCAA context, the discretion given by s. 11 to stay proceedings against the debtor corporation and the discretion given by s. 6 to approve a plan which appears to be reasonable and fair supplanted the need to resort to inherent jurisdiction. A judge is general ly exercising the court's statutory discretion under s. 11 of the Act when supervising a CCAA proceeding. The order in this case could not be founded on inherent jurisdiction because it was designed to supervise the company's process, not the court's process.

The issue then was the nature of the court's power under s. 11 of the CCAA. The s. 11 discretion is not open-ended and unfettered. Its exercise was guided by the scheme and object of the Act and by the legal principles that govern corporate law issues. What the court does under s. 11 is establish the boundaries of the playing field and act as a referee in the process. The company's role in the restructuring, and that of its stakeholders, is to work out a plan or compromise that a sufficient percentage of creditors will accept and the court will approve and sanction. In the course of acting as referee, the court has authority to effectively maintain the status quo in respect of an insolvent company while it attempts to gain the approval of its creditors for the proposed compromise or arrangement which will be to the benefit of both the company and its creditors. The court is not entitled to usurp the role of the directors and management in conducting what are in substance the company's restructuring efforts. The corporate activities that take place in the course of the workout are governed by the legislation and legal principles that normally apply to such activities. The court is not catapulted into the shoes of the board of directors or into the seat of the chair of the board when acting in its supervisory role in the restructuring.

The matters relating to the removal of directors did not fall within the court's discretion under s. 11. The fact that s. 11 did not itself provide the authority for a CCAA judge to order the removal of directors, however, did not mean that the supervising judge was powerless to make such an order. Section 20 of the CCAA offered a gateway to the oppression remedy and other provisions of the Canada [page7] Business Corporations Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-44 ("CBCA") and similar provincial statutes. The powers of a judge under s. 11 of the CCAA may be applied together with the provisions of the CBCA, including the oppression remedy provisions of that statute.

Court removal of directors is an exceptional remedy and one that is rarely exercised in corporate law. In determining whether directors have fallen foul of their obligations, more than some risk of anticipated misconduct is required before the court can impose the extraordinary remedy of removing a director from his or her duly elected or appointed office. The evidence in this case was far from reaching the standard for removal, and the record would not support a finding of oppression, even if one had been sought. The record did not support a finding that there was a sufficient risk of misconduct to warrant a conclusion of oppression. Further, Farley J.'s borrowing the administrative law notion of apprehension of bias was foreign to the principles that govern the election, appointment and removal of directors and to corporate governance considerations in general. There was nothing in the CBCA or other corporate legislation that envisaged the screening of directors in advance for their ability to act neutrally, in the best interests of the corporation, as a prerequisite for appointment. The issue to be determined was not whether there was a connection between a director and other shareholders or stakeholders, but rather whether there was some conduct on the part of the director that would justify the imposition of a corrective sanction. An apprehension of bias approach did not fit this sort of analysis.

For these reasons, Farley J. erred in declaring the appointment of Woollcombe and Keiper as directors of Stelco of no force and effect, and the appeal should be allowed.

BLAIR J.A.: --

Part I -- Introduction

[1] Stelco Inc. and four of its wholly-owned subsidiaries obtained protection from their creditors under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act (the "CCAA")¹ at the end of the document] on January 29, 2004. Since that time, the Stelco Group has been engaged in a high profile, and sometimes controversial, process of economic restructuring. Since October 2004, the restructuring has revolved around a court-approved capital raising process which, by February 2005, had generated a number of competitive bids for the Stelco Group.

[2] Farley J., an experienced judge of the Superior Court Commercial List in Toronto, has been supervising the CCAA process from the outset.

[3] The appellants, Michael Woollcombe and Roland Keiper, are associated with two companies -- Clearwater Capital Management Inc. and Equilibrium Capital Management Inc. -- which, respectively, hold approximately 20 per cent of the outstanding publicly traded common shares of Stelco. Most of these shares have been acquired while the CCAA process has been ongoing, and Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper have made it clear publicly that they believe there is good shareholder value in Stelco in spite of the restructuring. The reason they are able to take this position is that there has been a solid turn around in worldwide steel markets, as a result of which Stelco, although remaining in insolvency protection, is earning annual operating profits.

[4] The Stelco board of directors (the "Board") has been depleted as a result of resignations, and in January of this year Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper expressed an interest in being appointed to the Board. They were supported in this request by other shareholders who, together with Clearwater and Equilibrium, represent about 40 per cent of the Stelco common shareholders. On February 18, 2005, the Board appointed the appellants directors. In announcing the appointments publicly, Stelco said in a press release:

After careful consideration, and given potential recoveries at the end of the company's restructuring process, the Board responded favourably to the requests by making the appointments announced today.

Richard Drouin, Chairman of Stelco's Board of Directors, said: "I'm pleased to welcome Roland Keiper and Michael Woollcombe to the Board. Their [page10] experience and their perspective will assist the Board as it strives to serve the best interests of all our stakeholders. We look forward to their positive contribution."

[5] On the same day, the Board began its consideration of the various competing bids that had been received through the capital raising process.

[6] The appointments of the appellants to the Board incensed the employee stakeholders of Stelco (the "Employees"), represented by the respondent Retired Salaried Beneficiaries of Stelco and the respondent United Steelworkers of America ("USWA"). Outstanding pension liabilities to current and retired employees are said to be Stelco's largest long-term liability -- exceeding several billion dollars. The Employees perceive they do not have the same, or very much, economic leverage in what has sometimes been referred to as "the bare knuckled arena" of the restructuring process. At the same time, they are amongst the most financially vulnerable stakeholders in the piece. They see the appointments of Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper to the Board as a threat to their well being in the restructuring process because the appointments provide the appellants, and the shareholders they represent, with direct access to sensitive information relating to the competing bids to which other stakeholders (including themselves) are not privy.

[7] The Employees fear that the participation of the two major shareholder representatives will tilt the bid process in favour of maximizing shareholder value at the expense of bids that might be more favourable to the interests of the Employees. They sought and obtained an order from Farley J. removing Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper from their short-lived position of directors, essentially on the basis of that apprehension.

[8] The Employees argue that there is a reasonable apprehension the appellants would not be able to act in the best interests of the corporation -- as opposed to their own best interests as shareholders -- in considering the bids. They say this is so because of prior public statements by the appellants about enhancing shareholder value in Stelco, because of the appellants' linkage to such a large shareholder group, because of their earlier failed bid in the restructuring, and because of their opposition to a capital proposal made in the proceeding by Deutsche Bank (known as the "Stalking Horse Bid"). They submit further that the appointments have poisoned the atmosphere of the restructuring process, and that the Board made the appointments under threat of facing a potential shareholders' meeting where the members of the Board would be replaced en masse. [page11]

[9] On the other hand, Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper seek to set aside the order of Farley J. on the grounds that (a) he did not have the jurisdiction to make the order under the provisions of the CCAA, (b) even if he did have jurisdiction, the reasonable apprehension of bias test applied by the motion judge has no application to the removal of directors, (c) the motion judge erred in interfering with the exercise by the Board of its business judgment in filling the vacancies on the Board, and (d) the facts do not meet any test that would justify the removal of directors by a court in any event.

[10] For the reasons that follow, I would grant leave to appeal, allow the appeal and order the reinstatement of the applicants to the Board.

Part II -- Additional Facts

[11] Before the initial CCAA order on January 29, 2004, the shareholders of Stelco had last met at their annual general meeting on April 29, 2003. At that meeting they elected 11 directors to the Board. By the date of the initial order, three of those directors had resigned, and on November 30, 2004, a fourth did as well, leaving the company with only seven directors.

[12] Stelco's articles provide for the Board to be made up of a minimum of ten and a maximum of 20 directors. Consequently, after the last resignation, the company's corporate governance committee began to take steps to search for new directors. They had not succeeded in finding any prior to the approach by the appellants in January 2005.

[13] Messrs. Woolcombe and Keiper had been accumulating shares in Stelco and had been participating in the CCAA proceedings for some time before their request to be appointed to the Board, through their companies, Clearwater and Equilibrium. Clearwater and Equilibrium are privately held, Ontario-based investment management firms. Mr. Keiper is the president of Equilibrium and associated with Clearwater. Mr. Woolcombe is a consultant to Clearwater. The motion judge found that they "come as a package".

[14] In October 2004, Stelco sought court approval of its proposed method of raising capital. On October 19, 2004, Farley J. issued what has been referred to as the Initial Capital Process Order. This order set out a process by which Stelco, under the direction of the Board, would solicit bids, discuss the bids with stakeholders, evaluate the bids and report on the bids to the court.

[15] On November 9, 2004, Clearwater and Equilibrium announced they had formed an investor group and had made a [page12]capital proposal to Stelco. The proposal involved the raising of $125 million through a rights offering. Mr. Keiper stated at the time that he believed "the value of Stelco's equity would have the opportunity to increase substantially if Stelco emerged from CCAA while minimizing dilution of its shareholders." The Clearwater proposal was not accepted.

[16] A few days later, on November 14, 2004, Stelco approved the Stalking Horse Bid. Clearwater and Equilibrium opposed the Deutsche Bank proposal. Mr. Keiper criticized it for not providing sufficient value to existing shareholders. However, on November 29, 2004, Farley J. approved the Stalking Horse Bid and amended the Initial Capital Process Order accordingly. The order set out the various channels of communication between Stelco, the monitor, potential bidders and the stakeholders. It provided that members of the Board were to see the details of the different bids before the Board selected one or more of the offers.

[17] Subsequently, over a period of two and a half months, the shareholding position of Clearwater and Equilibrium increased from approximately five per cent as at November 19, to 14.9 per cent as at January 25, 2005, and finally to approximately 20 per cent on a fully diluted basis as at January 31, 2005. On January 25, Clearwater and Equilibrium announced that they had reached an understanding jointly to pursue efforts to maximize shareholder value at Stelco. A press release stated:

Such efforts will include seeking to ensure that the interests of Stelco's equity holders are appropriately protected by its board of directors and, ultimately, that Stelco's equity holders have an appropriate say, by vote or otherwise, in determining the future course of Stelco.

[18] On February 1, 2005, Messrs. Keiper and Woollcombe and other representatives of Clearwater and Equilibrium met with Mr. Drouin and other Board members to discuss their views of Stelco and a fair outcome for all stakeholders in the proceedings. Mr. Keiper made a detailed presentation, as Mr. Drouin testified, "encouraging the Board to examine how Stelco might improve its value through enhanced disclosure and other steps". Mr. Keiper expressed confidence that "there was value to the equity of Stelco", and added that he had backed this view up by investing millions of dollars of his own money in Stelco shares. At that meeting, Clearwater and Equilibrium requested that Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper be added to the Board and to Stelco's restructuring committee. In this respect, they were supported by other shareholders holding about another 20 per cent of the company's common shares. [page13]

[19] At paras. 17 and 18 of his affidavit, Mr. Drouin, summarized his appraisal of the situation:

17. It was my assessment that each of Mr. Keiper and Mr. Woollcombe had personal qualities which would allow them to make a significant contribution to the Board in terms of their backgrounds and their knowledge of the steel industry generally and Stelco in particular. In addition I was aware that their appointment to the Board was supported by approximately 40 per cent of the shareholders. In the event that these shareholders successfully requisitioned a shareholders meeting they were in a position to determine the composition of the entire Board.
18. I considered it essential that there be continuity of the Board through the CCAA process. I formed the view that the combination of existing Board members and these additional members would provide Stelco with the most appropriate board composition in the circumstances. The other members of the Board also shared my views.

[20] In order to ensure that the appellants understood their duties as potential Board members and, particularly that "they would no longer be able to consider only the interests of shareholders alone but would have fiduciary responsibilities as a Board member to the corporation as a whole", Mr. Drouin and others held several further meetings with Mr. Woollcombe and Mr. Keiper. These discussions "included areas of independence, standards, fiduciary duties, the role of the Board Restructuring Committee and confidentiality matters". Mr. Woollcombe and Mr. Keiper gave their assurances that they fully understood the nature and extent of their prospective duties, and would abide by them. In addition, they agreed and confirmed that:

- (a) Mr. Woollcombe would no longer be an advisor to Clearwater and Equilibrium with respect to Stelco;
- (b) Clearwater and Equilibrium would no longer be represented by counsel in the CCAA proceedings; and

- (c) Clearwater and Equilibrium then had no involvement in, and would have no future involvement, in any bid for Stelco.

[21] On the basis of the foregoing -- and satisfied "that Messrs. Keiper and Woollcombe would make a positive contribution to the various issues before the Board both in [the] restructuring and the ongoing operation of the business" -- the Board made the appointments on February 18, 2005.

[22] Seven days later, the motion judge found it "appropriate, just, necessary and reasonable to declare" those appointments "to be of no force and effect" and to remove Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper from the Board. He did so not on the basis of any actual conduct on the part of the appellants as directors of Stelco but [page14] because there was some risk of anticipated conduct in the future. The gist of the motion judge's rationale is found in the following passage from his reasons (at para. 23):

In these particular circumstances and aside from the Board feeling coerced into the appointments for the sake of continuing stability, I am not of the view that it would be appropriate to wait and see if there was any explicit action on behalf of K and W while conducting themselves as Board members which would demonstrate that they had not lived up to their obligations to be "neutral". They may well conduct themselves beyond reproach. But if they did not, the fallout would be very detrimental to Stelco and its ability to successfully emerge. What would happen to the bids in such a dogfight? I fear that it would be trying to put Humpty Dumpty back together again. The same situation would prevail even if K and W conducted themselves beyond reproach but with the Board continuing to be concerned that they not do anything seemingly offensive to the bloc. The risk to the process and to Stelco in its emergence is simply too great to risk the wait and see approach.

Part III -- Leave to Appeal

[23] Because of the "real time" dynamic of this restructuring project, Laskin J.A. granted an order on March 4, 2005, expediting the appellants' motion for leave to appeal, directing that it be heard orally and, if leave be granted, directing that the appeal be heard at the same time. The leave motion and the appeal were argued together, by order of the panel, on March 18, 2005.

[24] This court has said that it will only sparingly grant leave to appeal in the context of a CCAA proceeding and will only do so where there are "serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties": Country Style Food Services Inc. (Re), [2002] O.J. No. 1377, 158 O.A.C. 30 (C.A.), at para. 15. This criterion is determined in accordance with a four-pronged test, namely,

- (a) whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice;
- (b) whether the point is of significance to the action;
- (c) whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious or frivolous;

- (d) whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

[25] Counsel agree that (d) above is not relevant to this proceeding, given the expedited nature of the hearing. In my view, the tests set out in (a) - (c) are met in the circumstances, and as such, leave should be granted. The issue of the court's jurisdiction to intervene in corporate governance issues during a CCAA restructuring, and the scope of its discretion in doing so, are questions of considerable importance to the practice and on [page15] which there is little appellate jurisprudence. While Messrs. Woolcombe and Keiper are pursuing their remedies in their own right, and the company and its directors did not take an active role in the proceedings in this court, the Board and the company did stand by their decision to appoint the new directors at the hearing before the motion judge and in this court, and the question of who is to be involved in the Board's decision-making process continues to be of importance to the CCAA proceedings. From the reasons that follow it will be evident that in my view the appeal has merit.

[26] Leave to appeal is therefore granted.

Part IV -- The Appeal

The Positions of the Parties

[27] The appellants submit that,

- (a) in exercising its discretion under the CCAA, the court is not exercising its "inherent jurisdiction" as a superior court;
- (b) there is no jurisdiction under the CCAA to remove duly elected or appointed directors, notwithstanding the broad discretion provided by s. 11 of that Act; and that,
- (c) even if there is jurisdiction, the motion judge erred:
 - (i) by relying upon the administrative law test for reasonable apprehension of bias in determining that the directors should be removed;
 - (ii) by rejecting the application of the "business judgment" rule to the unanimous decision of the Board to appoint two new directors; and,
 - (iii) by concluding that Clearwater and Equilibrium, the shareholders with whom the appellants are associated, were focussed solely on a short-term investment horizon, without any evidence to that effect, and therefore concluding that there was a tangible risk that the appellants would not be neutral and act in the best interests of Stelco and all stakeholders in carrying out their duties as directors.

[28] The respondents' arguments are rooted in fairness and process. They say, first, that the appointment of the appellants as directors has poisoned the atmosphere of the CCAA proceedings and, second, that it threatens to undermine the even-handedness and integrity of the capital raising process, thus jeopardizing the [page16] ability of the court at the end of the day to approve any compromise or arrangement emerging from that process. The respondents contend that Farley J. had jurisdiction to ensure the integrity of the CCAA process, including the capital raising process Stelco had asked him to approve, and that this court should not interfere with his decision that it was necessary to remove Messrs. Woolcombe and Keiper from the Board in order to ensure the integrity of that process. A judge exercising a supervisory function during a CCAA proceeding is owed considerable deference: Re Algoma Steel Inc., [2001] O.J. No. 1943, 25 C.B.R. (4th) 194 (C.A.), at para. 8.

[29] The crux of the respondents' concern is well-articulated in the following excerpt from para. 72 of the factum of the Retired Salaried Beneficiaries:

The appointments of Keiper and Woolcombe violated every tenet of fairness in the restructuring process that is supposed to lead to a plan of arrangement. One stakeholder group -- particular investment funds that have acquired Stelco shares during the CCAA itself -- have been provided with privileged access to the capital raising process, and voting seats on the Corporation's Board of Directors and Restructuring Committee. No other stakeholder has been treated in remotely the same way. To the contrary, the salaried retirees have been completely excluded from the capital raising process and have no say whatsoever in the Corporation's decision-making process.

[30] The respondents submit that fairness, and the perception of fairness, underpin the CCAA process, and depend upon effective judicial supervision: see Re Olympia & York Development Ltd. (1993), 12 O.R. (3d) 500, [1993] O.J. No. 545 (Gen. Div.); Re Ivaco Inc., [2004] O.J. No. 2483, 3 C.B.R. (5th) 33 (S.C.J.), at paras. 15-16. The motion judge reasonably decided to remove the appellants as directors in the circumstances, they say, and this court should not interfere.

Jurisdiction

[31] The motion judge concluded that he had the power to rescind the appointments of the two directors on the basis of his "inherent jurisdiction" and "the discretion given to the court pursuant to the CCAA". He was not asked to, nor did he attempt to rest his jurisdiction on other statutory powers imported into the CCAA.

[32] The CCAA is remedial legislation and is to be given a liberal interpretation to facilitate its objectives: Babcock & Wilcox Canada Ltd. (Re), [2000] O.J. No. 786, 5 B.L.R. (3d) 75 (S.C.J.), at para. 11. See also, Chef Ready Foods Ltd. v. Hong Kong Bank of Canada, [1990] B.C.J. No. 2384, 4 C.B.R. (3d) 311 (C.A.), at p. 320 C.B.R.; Re Lehndorff General Partners Ltd., [1993] O.J. No. 14, 17 C.B.R. (3d) 24 (Gen. Div.). [page17] Courts have adopted this approach in the past to rely on inherent jurisdiction, or alternatively on the broad jurisdiction under s. 11 of the CCAA, as the source of judicial power in a CCAA proceeding to "fill in the gaps" or to "put flesh on the bones" of that Act: see Re Dylex Ltd., [1995] O.J. No. 595, 31 C.B.R. (3d) 106 (Gen. Div. (Commercial List)), Royal Oak Mines Inc. (Re), [1999] O.J. No. 864, 7 C.B.R. (4th) 293 (Gen. Div. (Commercial List)); and Westar Mining Ltd. (Re), [1992] B.C.J. No. 1360, 70 B.C.L.R. (2d) 6 (S.C.).

[33] It is not necessary, for purposes of this appeal, to determine whether inherent jurisdiction is excluded for all supervisory purposes under the CCAA, by reason of the existence of the statutory discretionary regime provided in that Act. In my opinion, however, the better view is that in carrying out his or her supervisory functions under the legislation, the judge is not exercising inherent jurisdiction but rather the statutory discretion provided by s. 11 of the CCAA and supplemented by other statutory powers that may be imported into the exercise of the s. 11 discretion from other statutes through s. 20 of the CCAA.

Inherent jurisdiction

[34] Inherent jurisdiction is a power derived "from the very nature of the court as a superior court of law", permitting the court "to maintain its authority and to prevent its process being obstructed and abused". It embodies the authority of the judiciary to control its own process and the lawyers and other officials connected with the court and its process, in order "to uphold, to protect and to fulfill the judicial function of administering justice according to law in a regular, orderly and effective manner". See I.H. Jacob, "The Inherent Jurisdiction of the Court" (1970) 23 Current Legal Problems 27-28. In Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th ed. (London: LexisNexis UK, 1973 --), vol. 37, at para. 14, the concept is described as follows:

In sum, it may be said that the inherent jurisdiction of the court is a virile and viable doctrine, and has been defined as being the reserve or fund of powers, a residual source of powers, which the court may draw upon as necessary whenever it is just or equitable to do so, in particular to ensure the observation of the due process of law, to prevent improper vexation or oppression, to do justice between the parties and to secure a fair trial between them.

[35] In spite of the expansive nature of this power, inherent jurisdiction does not operate where Parliament or the legislature has acted. As Farley J. noted in Royal Oak Mines, supra, inherent jurisdiction is "not limitless; if the legislative body has not left a functional gap or vacuum, then inherent jurisdiction should [page18] not be brought into play" (para. 4). See also, Baxter Student Housing Ltd. v. College Housing Co-operative Ltd., [1976] 2 S.C.R. 475, 57 D.L.R. (3d) 1, at p. 480 S.C.R.; Richtree Inc. (Re) (2005), 74 O.R. (3d) 174, [2005] O.J. No. 251 (S.C.J.).

[36] In the CCAA context, Parliament has provided a statutory framework to extend protection to a company while it holds its creditors at bay and attempts to negotiate a compromised plan of arrangement that will enable it to emerge and continue as a viable economic entity, thus benefiting society and the company in the long run, along with the company's creditors, shareholders, employees and other stakeholders. The s. 11 discretion is the engine that drives this broad and flexible statutory scheme, and that for the most part supplants the need to resort to inherent jurisdiction. In that regard, I agree with the comment of Newbury J.A. in Clear Creek Contracting

Ltd. v. Skeena Cellulose Inc., [2003] B.C.J. No. 1335, 43 C.B.R. (4th) 187 (C.A.), at para. 46, that:

... the court is not exercising a power that arises from its nature as a superior court of law, but is exercising the discretion given to it by the CCAA. ... This is the discretion, given by s. 11, to stay proceedings against the debtor corporation and the discretion, given by s. 6, to approve a plan which appears to be reasonable and fair, to be in accord with the requirements and objects of the statute, and to make possible the continuation of the corporation as a viable entity. It is these considerations the courts have been concerned with in the cases discussed above² at the end of the document], rather than the integrity of their own process.

[37] As Jacob observes, in his article "The Inherent Jurisdiction of the Court", supra, at p. 25:

The inherent jurisdiction of the court is a concept which must be distinguished from the exercise of judicial discretion. These two concepts resemble each other, particularly in their operation, and they often appear to overlap, and are therefore sometimes confused the one with the other. There is nevertheless a vital juridical distinction between jurisdiction and discretion, which must always be observed.

[38] I do not mean to suggest that inherent jurisdiction can never apply in a CCAA context. The court retains the ability to control its own process, should the need arise. There is a distinction, however -- difficult as it may be to draw -- between the court's process with respect to the restructuring, on the one hand, and the course of action involving the negotiations and corporate actions accompanying them, which are the company's process, on the other hand. The court simply supervises the latter [page19]process through its ability to stay, restrain or prohibit proceedings against the company during the plan negotiation period "on such terms as it may impose"³ at the end fo the document]. Hence the better view is that a judge is generally exercising the court's statutory discretion under s. 11 of the Act when supervising a CCAA proceeding. The order in this case could not be founded on inherent jurisdiction because it is designed to supervise the company's process, not the court's process.

The section 11 discretion

[39] This appeal involves the scope of a supervisory judge's discretion under s. 11 of the CCAA, in the context of corporate governance decisions made during the course of the plan negotiating and approval process and, in particular, whether that discretion extends to the removal of directors in that environment. In my view, the s. 11 discretion -- in spite of its considerable breadth and flexibility -- does not permit the exercise of such a power in and of itself. There may be situations where a judge in a CCAA proceeding would be justified in ordering the removal of directors pursuant to the oppression remedy provisions found in s. 241 of the Canada Business Corporation Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-44 ("CBCA"), and imported into the exercise of the s. 11 discretion through s. 20 of the CCAA. However, this was not argued in the present case, and the facts before the court would not justify the removal of Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper on oppression remedy grounds.

[40] The pertinent portions of s. 11 of the CCAA provide as follows:

Powers of court

11(1) Notwithstanding anything in the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act or the Winding-up Act, where an application is made under this Act in respect of a company, the court, on the application of any person interested in the matter, may, subject to this Act, on notice to any other person or without notice as it may see fit, make an order under this section.

Initial application court orders

(3) A court may, on an initial application in respect of a company, make an order on such terms as it may impose, effective for such period as the court deems necessary not exceeding thirty days.

- (a) staying, until otherwise ordered by the court, all proceedings taken or that might be taken in respect of the company under an Act referred to in subsection (1); [page20]
- (b) restraining, until otherwise ordered by the court, further proceedings in any action, suit or proceeding against the company; and
- (c) prohibiting, until otherwise ordered by the court, the commencement of or proceeding with any other action, suit or proceeding against the company.

Other than initial application court orders

(4) A court may, on an application in respect of a company other than an initial application, make an order on such terms as it may impose,

- (a) staying, until otherwise ordered by the court, for such period as the court deems necessary, all proceedings taken or that might be taken in respect of the company under an Act referred to in subsection (1);
- (b) restraining, until otherwise ordered by the court, further proceedings in any action, suit or proceeding against the company; and
- (c) prohibiting, until otherwise ordered by the court, the commencement of or proceeding with any other action, suit or proceeding against the company.

Burden of proof on application

- (6) The court shall not make an order under subsection (3) or (4) unless
- (a) the applicant satisfies the court that circumstances exist that make such an order appropriate; and
 - (b) in the case of an order under subsection (4), the applicant also satisfied the court that the applicant has acted, and is acting, in good faith and with due diligence.

[41] The rule of statutory interpretation that has now been accepted by the Supreme Court of Canada, in such cases as R. v. Sharpe, [2001] 1 S.C.R. 45, [2001] S.C.J. No. 3, at para. 33, and Rizzo & Rizzo Shoes Ltd. (Re), [1998] 1 S.C.R. 27, [1998] S.C.J. No. 2, at para. 21, is articulated in E.A. Driedger, The Construction of Statutes, 2nd ed. (Toronto: Butterworths, 1983) as follows:

Today, there is only one principle or approach, namely, the words of an Act are to be read in their entire context and in their grammatical and ordinary sense harmoniously with the scheme of the Act, the object of the Act, and the intention of Parliament.

See also Ruth Sullivan, Sullivan and Driedger on the Construction of Statutes, 4th ed. (Toronto: Butterworths, 2002), at p. 262.

[42] The interpretation of s. 11 advanced above is true to these principles. It is consistent with the purpose and scheme of the CCAA, as articulated in para. 38 above, and with the fact that corporate governance matters are dealt with in other statutes. In addition, it honours the historical reluctance of courts to intervene in such matters, or to second-guess the business decisions [page21] made by directors and officers in the course of managing the business and affairs of the corporation.

[43] Mr. Leon and Mr. Swan argue that matters relating to the removal of directors do not fall within the court's discretion under s. 11 because they fall outside of the parameters of the court's role in the restructuring process, in contrast to the company's role in the restructuring process. The court's role is defined by the "on such terms as may be imposed" jurisdiction under subparas. 11(3)(a) -- (c) and 11(4)(a) -- (c) of the CCAA to stay, or restrain, or prohibit proceedings against the company during the "breathing space" period for negotiations and a plan. I agree.

[44] What the court does under s. 11 is to establish the boundaries of the playing field and act as a referee in the process. The company's role in the restructuring, and that of its stakeholders, is to work out a plan or compromise that a sufficient percentage of creditors will accept and the court will approve and sanction. The corporate activities that take place in the course of the workout are governed by the legislation and legal principles that normally apply to such activities. In the course of acting as referee, the court has great leeway, as Farley J. observed in Lehndorff, supra, at para. 5, "to make order[s] so as to effectively maintain the status quo in respect of an insolvent company while it attempts to gain the approval of its creditors for the proposed compromise or arrangement which will be to the benefit of both the company and its creditors". But the s. 11 discretion is not open-ended and unfettered. Its exercise must be guided by the scheme and object of the Act and by the legal principles that govern corporate law issues. Moreover, the court is not entitled to usurp the role of the directors and management in conducting what are in substance the company's restructuring efforts.

[45] With these principles in mind, I turn to an analysis of the various factors underlying the interpretation of the s. 11 discretion.

[46] I start with the proposition that at common law directors could not be removed from office during the term for which they were elected or appointed: London Finance Corp. Ltd. v. Banking Service Corp. Ltd., [1922] O.J. No. 378, 23 O.W.N. 138 (H.C.); Stephenson v. Vokes, [1896] O.J. No. 191, 27 O.R. 691 (H.C.J.). The authority to remove must therefore be found in statute law.

[47] In Canada, the CBCA and its provincial equivalents govern the election, appointment and removal of directors, as well as providing for their duties and responsibilities. Shareholders elect directors, but the directors may fill vacancies that occur on the board of directors pending a further shareholders meeting: [page22] CBCA, ss. 106(3) and 111⁴ at the end of the document]. The specific power to remove directors is vested in the shareholders by s. 109(1) of the CBCA. However, s. 241 empowers the court -- where it finds that oppression as therein defined exists -- to "make any interim or final order it thinks fit", including (s. 241(3)(e)) "an order appointing directors in place of or in addition to all or any of the directors then in office". This power has been utilized to remove directors, but in very rare cases, and only in circumstances where there has been actual conduct rising to the level of misconduct required to trigger oppression remedy relief: see, for example, Catalyst Fund General Partner I Inc. v. Hollinger Inc., [2004] O.J. No. 4722, 1 B.L.R. (4th) 186 (S.C.J.).

[48] There is therefore a statutory scheme under the CBCA (and similar provincial corporate legislation) providing for the election, appointment and removal of directors. Where another applicable statute confers jurisdiction with respect to a matter, a broad and undefined discretion provided in one statute cannot be used to supplant or override the other applicable statute. There is no legislative "gap" to fill. See Baxter Student Housing Ltd. v. College Housing Cooperative Ltd., supra, at p. 480 S.C.R.; Royal Oak Mines Inc. (Re), supra; and Richtree Inc. (Re), supra.

[49] At para. 7 of his reasons, the motion judge said:

The board is charged with the standard duty of "manage[ing], [sic] or supervising the management, of the business and affairs of the corporation": s. 102(1) CBCA. Ordinarily the Court will not interfere with the composition of the board of directors.

However, if there is good and sufficient valid reason to do so, then the Court must not hesitate to do so to correct a problem. The directors should not be required to constantly look over their shoulders for this would be the sure recipe for board paralysis which would be so detrimental to a restructuring process; thus interested parties should only initiate a motion where it is reasonably obvious that there is a problem, actual or poised to become actual.

(Emphasis added)

[50] Respectfully, I see no authority in s. 11 of the CCAA for the court to interfere with the composition of a board of directors on such a basis.

[51] Court removal of directors is an exceptional remedy, and one that is rarely exercised in corporate law. This reluctance is rooted in the historical unwillingness of courts to interfere with the internal management of corporate affairs and in the court's well-established deference to decisions made by directors and officers in [page23] the exercise of their business judgment when managing the business and affairs of the corporation. These factors also bolster the view that where the CCAA is silent on the issue, the court should not read into the s. 11 discretion an extraordinary power -- which the courts are disinclined to exercise in any event -- except to the extent that that power may be introduced through the application of other legislation, and on the same principles that apply to the application of the provisions of the other legislation.

The oppression remedy gateway

[52] The fact that s. 11 does not itself provide the authority for a CCAA judge to order the removal of directors does not mean that the supervising judge is powerless to make such an order, however. Section 20 of the CCAA offers a gateway to the oppression remedy and other provisions of the CBCA and similar provincial statutes. Section 20 states:

20. The provisions of this Act may be applied together with the provisions of any Act of Parliament or of the legislature of any province that authorizes or makes provision for the sanction of compromises or arrangements between a company and its shareholders or any class of them.

[53] The CBCA is legislation that "makes provision for the sanction of compromises or arrangements between a company and its shareholders or any class of them". Accordingly, the powers of a judge under s. 11 of the CCAA may be applied together with the provisions of the CBCA, including the oppression remedy provisions of that statute. I do not read s. 20 as limiting the application of outside legislation to the provisions of such legislation dealing specifically with the sanctioning of compromises and arrangements between the company and its shareholders. The grammatical structure of s. 20 mandates a broader interpretation and the oppression remedy is, therefore, available to a supervising judge in appropriate circumstances.

[54] I do not accept the respondents' argument that the motion judge had the authority to order the removal of the appellants by virtue of the power contained in s. 145(2)(b) of the CBCA to make an order "declaring the result of the disputed election or appointment" of directors. In my view, s. 145 relates to the procedures underlying disputed elections or appointments, and not to disputes over the composition of the board of directors itself. Here, it is conceded that the appointment of Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper as directors complied with all relevant statutory requirements. Farley J. quite properly did not seek to base his jurisdiction on any such authority. [page24]

The level of conduct required

[55] Colin Campbell J. recently invoked the oppression remedy to remove directors, without appointing anyone in their place, in Catalyst Fund General Partner I Inc. v. Hollinger Inc., supra. The bar is high. In reviewing the applicable law, C. Campbell J. said (para. 68):

Director removal is an extraordinary remedy and certainly should be imposed most sparingly. As a starting point, I accept the basic proposition set out in Peterson, "Shareholder Remedies in Canada".⁵ at the end of the document]

SS. 18.172 Removing and appointing directors to the board is an extreme form of judicial intervention. The board of directors is elected by the shareholders, vested with the power to manage the corporation, and appoints the officers of the company who undertake to conduct the day-to-day affairs of the corporation. [Footnote omitted.] It is clear that the board of directors has control over policymaking and management of the corporation. By tampering with a board, a court directly affects the management of the corporation. If a reasonable balance between protection of corporate stakeholders and the freedom of management to conduct the affairs of the business in an efficient manner is desired, altering the board of directors should be a measure of last resort. The order could be suitable where the continuing presence of the incumbent directors is harmful to both the company and the interests of corporate stakeholders, and where the appointment of a new director or directors would remedy the oppressive conduct without a receiver or receiver-manager.

(Emphasis added)

[56] C. Campbell J. found that the continued involvement of the Ravelston directors in the Hollinger situation would "significantly impede" the interests of the public shareholders and that those directors were "motivated by putting their interests first, not those of the company" (paras. 82-83). The evidence in this case is far from reaching any such benchmark, however, and the record would not support a finding of oppression, even if one had been sought.

[57] Everyone accepts that there is no evidence the appellants have conducted themselves, as directors -- in which capacity they participated over two days in the bid consideration exercise -- in anything but a neutral fashion, having regard to the best interests of Stelco and all of the stakeholders. The motion judge acknowledged that the appellants "may well conduct themselves beyond reproach". However, he simply decided there was a risk -- a reasonable apprehension -- that Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper would not live up to their obligations to be neutral in the future. [page25]

[58] The risk or apprehension appears to have been founded essentially on three things: (1) the earlier public statements made by Mr. Keiper about "maximizing shareholder value"; (2) the conduct of Clearwater and Equilibrium in criticizing and opposing the Stalking Horse Bid; and (3) the motion judge's opinion that Clearwater and Equilibrium -- the shareholders represented by the appellants on the Board -- had a "vision" that "usually does not encompass any significant concern for the long-term competitiveness and viability of an emerging corporation", as a result of which the appellants would approach their directors' duties looking to liquidate their shares on the basis of a "short-term hold" rather than with the best interests of Stelco in mind. The motion judge transposed these concerns into anticipated predisposed conduct on the part of the appellants as directors, despite their apparent understanding of their duties as directors and their assurances that they would act in the best interests of Stelco. He therefore concluded that "the risk to the process and to Stelco in its emergence [was] simply too great to risk the wait and see approach".

[59] Directors have obligations under s. 122(1) of the CBCA (a) to act honestly and in good faith with a view to the best interest of the corporation (the "statutory fiduciary duty" obligation), and (b) to exercise the care, diligence and skill that a reasonably prudent person would exercise in comparable circumstances (the "duty of care" obligation). They are also subject to control under the oppression remedy provisions of s. 241. The general nature of these duties does not change when the company approaches, or finds itself in, insolvency: Peoples Department Stores Inc. (Trustee of) v. Wise, [2004] 3 S.C.R. 461, [2004] S.C.J. No. 64, at paras. 42-49.

[60] In Peoples the Supreme Court noted that "the interests of the corporation are not to be confused with the interests of the creditors or those of any other stakeholders" (para. 43), but also accepted "as an accurate statement of the law that in determining whether [directors] are acting with a view to the best interests of the corporation it may be legitimate, given all the circumstances of a given case, for the board of directors to consider, inter alia, the interests of shareholders, employees, suppliers, creditors, consumers, governments and the environment" (para. 42). Importantly as well -- in the context of "the shifting interest and incentives of shareholders and creditors" -- the court stated (para. 47):

In resolving these competing interests, it is incumbent upon the directors to act honestly and in good faith with a view to the best interests of the corporation. In using their skills for the benefit of the corporation when it is in troubled waters financially, the directors must be careful to attempt to act in [page26]its best interests by creating a "better" corporation, and not to favour the interests of any one group of stakeholders.

[61] In determining whether directors have fallen foul of those obligations, however, more than some risk of anticipated misconduct is required before the court can impose the extraordinary remedy of removing a director from his or her duly elected or appointed office. Although the motion judge concluded that there was a risk of harm to the Stelco process if Messrs. Woolcombe and Keiper remained as directors, he did not assess the level of that risk. The record does not support a finding that there was a sufficient risk of sufficient misconduct to warrant a conclusion of oppression. The motion judge was not asked to make such a finding, and he did not do so.

[62] The respondents argue that this court should not interfere with the decision of the motion judge on grounds of deference. They point out that the motion judge has been case-managing the restructuring of Stelco under the CCAA for over 14 months and is intimately familiar with the circumstances of Stelco as it seeks to restructure itself and emerge from court protection.

[63] There is no question that the decisions of judges acting in a supervisory role under the CCAA, and particularly those of experienced commercial list judges, are entitled to great deference: see Algoma Steel Inc. v. Union Gas Ltd. (2003), 63 O.R. (3d) 78, [2003] O.J. No. 71 (C.A.), at para. 16. The discretion must be exercised judicially and in accordance with the principles governing its operation. Here, respectfully, the motion judge misconstrued his authority, and made an order that he was not empowered to make in the circumstances.

[64] The appellants argued that the motion judge made a number of findings without any evidence to support them. Given my decision with respect to jurisdiction, it is not necessary for me to address that issue.

The business judgment rule

[65] The appellants argue as well that the motion judge erred in failing to defer to the unanimous decision of the Stelco directors in deciding to appoint them to the Stelco Board. It is well-established that judges supervising restructuring proceedings -- and courts in general -- will be very hesitant to second-guess the business decisions of directors and management. As the Supreme Court of Canada said in Peoples, supra, at para. 67:

Courts are ill-suited and should be reluctant to second-guess the application of business expertise to the considerations that are involved in corporate decision making ...

[66] In Brant Investments Ltd. v. KeepRite Inc. (1991), 3 O.R. (3d) 289, [1991] O.J. No. 683 (C.A.), at p. 320 O.R., this court adopted the following statement by the trial judge, Anderson J.:

Business decisions, honestly made, should not be subjected to microscopic examination. There should be no interference simply because a decision is unpopular with the minority.⁶ at the end of the document]

[67] McKinlay J.A. then went on to say [at p. 320 O.R.]:

There can be no doubt that on an application under s. 234⁷ at the end of the document] the trial judge is required to consider the nature of the impugned acts and the method in which they were carried out. That does not mean that the trial judge should substitute his own business judgment for that of managers, directors, or a committee such as the one involved in assessing this transaction. Indeed, it would generally be impossible for him to do so, regardless of the amount of evidence before him. He is dealing with the matter at a different time and place; it is unlikely that he will have the background knowledge and expertise of the individuals involved; he could have little or no knowledge of the background and skills of the persons who would be carrying out any proposed plan; and it is unlikely that he would have any knowledge of the specialized market in which the corporation operated. In short, he does not know enough to make the business decision required.

[68] Although a judge supervising a CCAA proceeding develops a certain "feel" for the corporate dynamics and a certain sense of direction for the restructuring, this caution is worth keeping in mind. See also Clear Creek Contracting Ltd. v. Skeena Cellulose Inc., supra; Sammi Atlas Inc. (Re), [1998] O.J. No. 1089, 3 C.B.R. (4th) 171 (Gen. Div.); Olympia & York Developments Ltd. (Re), supra; Re Alberta Pacific Terminals Ltd., [1991] B.C.J. No. 1065, 8 C.B.R. (4th) 99 (S.C.). The court is not catapulted into the shoes of the board of directors, or into the seat of the chair of the board, when acting in its supervisory role in the restructuring.

[69] Here, the motion judge was alive to the "business judgment" dimension in the situation he faced. He distinguished the application of the rule from the circumstances, however, stating at para. 18 of his reasons:

With respect I do not see the present situation as involving the "management of the business and affairs of the corporation", but rather as a quasi-constitutional aspect of the corporation entrusted albeit to the Board pursuant to s. 111(1) of the CBCA. I agree that where a board is actually engaged in the business of a judgment situation, the board should be given appropriate deference. However, to the contrary in this situation, I do not see it as a [page28] situation calling for (as asserted) more deference, but rather considerably less than that. With regard to this decision of the Board having impact upon the capital raising process, as I conclude it would, then similarly deference ought not to be given.

[70] I do not see the distinction between the directors' role in "the management of the business and affairs of the corporation" (CBCA, s. 102) -- which describes the directors' overall responsibilities -- and their role with respect to a "quasi-constitutional aspect of the corporation" (i.e., in filling out the composition of the board of directors in the event of a vacancy). The "affairs" of the corporation are defined in s. 2 of the CBCA as meaning "the relationships among a corporation, its affiliates and the shareholders, directors and officers of such bodies corporate but does not include the business carried on by such bodies corporate". Corporate governance decisions relate directly to such relationships and are at the heart of the Board's business decision-making role regarding the corporation's business and affairs. The dynamics of such decisions, and the intricate balancing of competing interests and other corporate-related factors that goes into making them, are no more within the purview of the court's knowledge and expertise than other business decisions, and they deserve the same deferential approach. Respectfully, the motion judge erred in declining to give effect to the business judgment rule in the circumstances of this case.

[71] This is not to say that the conduct of the Board in appointing the appellants as directors may never come under review by the supervising judge. The court must ultimately approve and sanction the plan of compromise or arrangement as finally negotiated and accepted by the company and its creditors and stakeholders. The plan must be found to be fair and reasonable before it can be sanctioned. If the Board's decision to appoint the appellants has somehow so tainted the capital raising process that those criteria are not met, any eventual plan that is put forward will fail.

[72] The respondents submit that it makes no sense for the court to have jurisdiction to declare the process flawed only after the process has run its course. Such an approach to the restructuring process would be inefficient and a waste of resources. While there is some merit in this argument, the court cannot grant itself jurisdiction where it does not exist. Moreover, there are a plethora of checks and balances in the negotiating process itself that moderate the risk of the process becoming irretrievably tainted in this fashion -- not the least of which is the restraining effect of the prospect of such a consequence. I do not think that this argument can prevail. In addition, the court at all times retains its broad and [page29] flexible supervisory jurisdiction -- a jurisdiction which feeds the creativity that makes the CCAA work so well -- in order to address fairness and process concerns along the way. This case relates only to the court's exceptional power to order the removal of directors.

The reasonable apprehension of bias analogy

[73] In exercising what he saw as his discretion to remove the appellants as directors, the motion judge thought it would be useful to "borrow the concept of reasonable apprehension of bias ... with suitable adjustments for the nature of the decision making involved" (para. 8). He stressed that "there was absolutely no allegation against [Mr. Woolcombe and Mr. Keiper] of any actual bias or its equivalent" (para. 8). He acknowledged that neither was alleged to have done anything wrong since their appointments as directors, and that at the time of their appointments the appellants had confirmed to the Board that they understood and would abide by their duties and responsibilities as directors, including the responsibility to act in the best interests of the corporation and not in their own interests as shareholders. In the end, however, he concluded that because of their prior public statements that they intended to "pursue efforts to maximize shareholder value at Stelco", and because of the nature of their business and the way in which they had been accumulating their shareholding position during the restructuring, and because of their linkage to 40 per cent of the common shareholders, there was a risk that the appellants would not conduct themselves in a neutral fashion in the best interests of the corporation as directors.

[74] In my view, the administrative law notion of apprehension of bias is foreign to the principles that govern the election, appointment and removal of directors, and to corporate governance considerations in general. Apprehension of bias is a concept that ordinarily applies to those who preside over judicial or quasi-judicial decision-making bodies, such as courts, administrative tribunals or arbitration boards. Its application is inapposite in the business decision-making context of corporate law. There is nothing in the CBCA or other corporate legislation that envisages the screening of directors in advance for their ability to act neutrally, in the best interests of the corporation, as a prerequisite for appointment.

[75] Instead, the conduct of directors is governed by their common law and statutory obligations to act honestly and in good faith with a view to the best interests of the corporation, and to exercise the care, diligence and skill that a reasonably [page30]prudent person would exercise in comparable circumstances (CBCA, s. 122(1)(a) and (b)). The directors also have fiduciary obligations to the corporation, and they are liable to oppression remedy proceedings in appropriate circumstances. These remedies are available to aggrieved complainants -- including the respondents in this case -- but they depend for their applicability on the director having engaged in conduct justifying the imposition of a remedy.

[76] If the respondents are correct, and reasonable apprehension that directors may not act neutrally because they are aligned with a particular group of shareholders or stakeholders is sufficient for removal, all nominee directors in Canadian corporations, and all management directors, would automatically be disqualified from serving. No one suggests this should be the case. Moreover, as Iacobucci J. noted in Blair v. Consolidated Enfield Corp., [1995] 4 S.C.R. 5, [1995] S.C.J. No. 29, at para. 35, "persons are assumed to act in good faith unless proven otherwise". With respect, the motion judge approached the circumstances before him from exactly the opposite direction. It is commonplace in corporate/commercial affairs that there are connections between directors and various stakeholders and that conflicts will exist from time to time. Even where there are conflicts of interest, however, directors are not removed from the board of directors; they are simply obliged to disclose the conflict and, in appropriate cases, to abstain from voting. The issue to be determined is not whether there is a connection between a director and other shareholders or stakeholders, but rather whether there has been some conduct on the part of the director that will justify the imposition of a corrective sanction. An apprehension of bias approach does not fit this sort of analysis.

Part V -- Disposition

[77] For the foregoing reasons, then, I am satisfied that the motion judge erred in declaring the appointment of Messrs. Woollcombe and Keiper as directors of Stelco of no force and effect.

[78] I would grant leave to appeal, allow the appeal and set aside the order of Farley J. dated February 25, 2005.

[79] Counsel have agreed that there shall be no costs of the appeal.

Order accordingly.

ENDORSEMENT

The following judgment was delivered by

1 THE COURT:-- Leave to appeal is denied.

2 In the CCAA context, leave to appeal is to be granted sparingly and only where there are serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties. In determining whether leave ought to be granted, this Court is required to consider the following four-part inquiry:

- * whether the point on the proposed appeal is of significance to the practice;
- * whether the point is of significance to the action;
- * whether the proposed appeal is prima facie meritorious or frivolous; and
- * whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

See Re Stelco (2005), 78 O.R. (3d) 241

3 In our view, the proposed appeals lack sufficient merit to meet this stringent test.

4 This court's decision in Indalex Ltd. (Re) (2011), 104 O.R. (3d) 641, affirms that a CCAA court may invoke the doctrine of paramountcy to override conflicting provisions of provincial statutes where the application of provincial legislation would frustrate the company's ability to restructure and avoid bankruptcy.

5 Here, the motion judge recognized that in the circumstances of this case there was a conflict between the federal CCAA and the provincial PBA and SPPA. He found that, "[i]n the absence of the court granting the requested super priority, the objectives of the CCAA would be frustrated". Further, he concluded that "to ensure that the objectives of the CCAA are fulfilled, it is necessary to invoke the doctrine of paramountcy such that the provisions of the CCAA override those of the

6 We see no basis on which this court could interfere with the motion judge's decision, including his unassailable findings of fact that: (1) without DIP financing, Timminco would be forced to cease operating; (2) bankruptcy would not be in the interests of anyone, including members of the pension plan; (3) if the DIP lender did not get super priority, it would not have agreed to provide financing; and (4) there was insufficient liquidity or unfavourable terms associated with the rejected DIP proposals. In short, he found that there was "no real alternative" to approving the DIP facility and DIP super priority charge.

7 The motion judge also addressed the union's fiduciary arguments, primarily in his earlier reasons released February 2, 2012, that are incorporated by reference into his February 9, 2012 reasons. He concluded that it was in the best interests of all parties to proceed with the restructuring. We see no basis on which this court could interfere with this finding.

8 Costs are to the responding parties on the motions on a partial indemnity scale fixed in the amount of $1,500 per motion inclusive of disbursements and applicable taxes.

Civil procedure -- Appeal -- Leave to appeal -- Questions which ought to be submitted to appeal -- Statoil's motion doesn't satisfy the Court that the judge's findings of fact could be found to be manifestly unfounded with the necessary determinative effect if the Court were to intervene -- The great latitude given Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act supervising judges would weigh heavily against any appeal succeeding given the apparent novelty of some of the questions raised -- Motion dismissed.

Statoil Canada Ltd. (Statoil) seeks leave to appeal a judgment granting Homburg's application for an order confirming the re-assignment and assignment of certain agreements relating to its position as a debtor with respect to commercial real estate premises in Alberta, and Homburg's release from obligations it had contracted thereunder. Statoil argues that the motions judge did not have the power and jurisdiction to grant the orders sought, that Homburg did not have the legal standing and interest to seek the conclusions of the motion and that the motions judge exercise his powers so as to interfere with the contractual rights of third parties as he did.

HELD: Motion dismissed. To obtain leave to appeal under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act (CCAA), the court must determine whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice, whether the point raised is of significance to the action itself, whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious, or, on the other hand, whether it is frivolous, and whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action. The four recognized criteria are cumulative. Statoil doesn't satisfy the test incumbent upon it to be granted leave. Any appeal would have to proceed based on the trial judge's findings of fact. Whatever could be said of them, Statoil's motion doesn't satisfy the Court that they could be found to be manifestly unfounded with the necessary determinative effect if the Court were to intervene. Moreover, the great latitude given CCAA supervising judges would have weighed heavily against any appeal succeeding given the apparent novelty of some of the questions raised.

JUDGMENT

1 The Debtor Homberg Invest Inc. applied for relief under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act,¹ and an initial order was issued on September 9, 2011. The supervising judge, the Honourable Mr. Justice Louis J. Gouin, rendered judgment on December 5, 2011 granting Homburg's application for an order confirming the re-assignment and assignment of certain agreements relating to its position as a debtor with respect to commercial real estate premises in Alberta, and Homberg's release from obligations it had contracted thereunder. The effect of the order was to immediately enforce the obligations of Statoil Canada Ltd. under those agreements with respect to the landlord and subtenants of the premises. Statoil now seeks leave to appeal that judgment pursuant to sections 13 and 14 of the CCAA.

2 Statoil urges a barrage of reasons why leave should be granted,² which are conveniently summarized in paragraph 52 of its motion:

- a) Did the motions judge have the power and jurisdiction to grant the orders sought in the Motion?
- b) Did Homburg have the legal standing and interest to seek the conclusions of the Motion?
- c) Could the motions judge exercise his powers so as to interfere with the contractual rights of third parties (Statoil, Cadillac Fairview and subtenants) in the manner that he did in the judgment?

3 A threshold issue is the criteria to be considered upon such an application for leave. Based on the judgment of Wittman, J.A., as he then was, in Resurgence Asset Management LLC v. Canadian Airlines Corp.,³ there are four such criteria:

- whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice;
- whether the point raised is of significance to the action itself;
- whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious, or, on the other hand, whether it is frivolous, and;

- whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

4 Judges of this Court to whom such applications have been addressed have held unanimously that the four criteria are cumulative; with the result that an applicant's failure to establish any one of them will result in the dismissal of the application.⁴ In addition, it is also generally understood that an applicant carries a heavy burden in order to obtain leave, and that appellate courts will only grant such applications sparingly.

5 Without disputing the applicability of these four criteria, Statoil urges me to consider that they need not be cumulative, but weighed together, even if one or more of them are not established. In this respect, it points to the reasons of Yamauchi, J., of the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench in Royal Bank of Canada v. Cow Harbour Construction Ltd.,⁵ who was hearing a CCAA leave application of the type before me. In doing so, Yamauchi, J. referred to reasons given in Alberta that advocate a different approach than the one that has been unanimously followed by judges of this Court. Here is what he said:

24 For DLL to obtain leave to appeal under the CCAA, it must meet the test set out by the Alberta Court of Appeal in Fairmont Resort Properties Ltd. (Re), 2009 ABCA 360 at para. 10, where the court said:

The test for leave involves a single criterion subsuming four factors. The single criterion is that there must be serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties. The four factors used to assess whether this criterion is present are (1) whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice; (2) whether the point raised is of significance to the action itself; (3) whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious or, on the other hand, whether it is frivolous; (4) whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

25 Before this Court considers the factors involved in the "test for leave," it is worthwhile to outline the applicable standard of review that the Court of Appeal will apply if leave were to be granted. In Canadian Airlines Corp. (Re), 2000 ABCA 149 at paras. 28-29, the court held that:

28 The elements of the general criterion cannot be properly considered in a leave application without regard to the standard of review that this Court applies to appeals under the CCAA. If leave to appeal were to be granted, the applicable standard of review is succinctly set forth by Fruman, J.A. in Royal Bank v. Fracmaster Ltd. (1999), 244 A.R. 93 (Alta. C.A.) where she stated for the Court at p. 95:

... this is a court of review. It is not our task to reconsider the merits of the various offers and decide which proposal might be best. The decisions made by the Chambers judge involve a good measure of discretion, and are owed considerable deference. Whether or not we agree, we will only interfere if we conclude that she acted unreasonably, erred in principle or made a manifest error.

26 In Smoky River Coal Ltd. (Re) (1999), 237 A.R. 326 (Alta. C.A.), Hunt, J.A., speaking for the unanimous Court, extensively reviewed the CCAA's history and purpose, and observed at p. 341:

The fact that an appeal lies only with leave of an appellate court (s. 13 CCAA) suggests that Parliament, mindful that CCAA cases often require quick decision-making, intended that most decisions be made by the supervising judge. This supports the view that those decisions should be interfered with only in clear cases.

The standard of review of this Court, in reviewing the CCAA decision of the supervising judge, is therefore one of correctness if there is an error of law. Otherwise, for an appellate court to interfere with the decision of the supervising judge, there must be a palpable and overriding error in the exercise of discretion or in findings of fact.

29 Fairmont Resort provides us with the "test for leave." The test is but one test, in which "there must be serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties." To determine whether DLL has met its onus, we must consider the four factors that Fairmont Resort outlines. The question then becomes whether DLL must satisfy all the factors. In other words, if it fails on one (or more), does fail to meet the test? The answer to this question lies in the decision of O'Brien J.A. in Ketch Resources Ltd. v. Gauntlet Energy Corp. (Monitor of), 2005 CarswellAlta 1527, 15 C.B.R. (5th) 235 (C.A.). In that case, Justice O'Brien went through and applied the four factors to the facts with which he was dealing. The applicant in that case had met some of the factors, but not others. Justice O'Brien at para. 15, made his decision not to grant leave after

"weighing all the factors." In other words, success or failure to prove one or more of the factors does not guarantee that the applicant has met the "test for leave." The court must weigh all the factors.
[Emphasis added]

6 In analyzing whether I should follow what was suggested in the foregoing extract or the judicial history that has prevailed in this province, I am mindful that the Supreme Court of Canada granted leave to appeal⁶ the judgment of my colleague Chamberland, J.A. in *Newfoundland and Labrador v. AbitibiBowater*⁷ in which he dismissed an application for leave to appeal. I can only assume the Court decided to hear the appeal to look at the merits of the Superior Court judgment of Gascon, J., as he then was,⁸ rather than to decide whether Chamberland, J.A. had erred by refusing leave. Only time will tell once the Court's judgment on the merits is released.⁹

7 That being said, unless and until the Supreme Court determines a different test to apply by an appellate judge hearing a CCAA leave application, or until a panel of this Court holds that the test articulated in the extract I have quoted in paragraph [5] above is the one that should be followed, I believe that the better course for me is to apply the principles that have been repeatedly stated by judges of this Court. Counsel in Quebec are entitled to stability in knowing what test they will need to satisfy in bringing a CCAA leave application. The parameters of that test should not depend on who, as a matter of chance, happens to be the judge in chambers on the day they present their motion. I will therefore consider Statoil's application on the basis that the four recognized criteria are cumulative.

8 I turn now to the three grounds of appeal mentioned in paragraph [2] above.

9 With respect to the jurisdictional issue, Statoil argues that the motions judge overstepped the limits to which he was subject in a CCAA application of the type with which he was seized because the orders issued were not "necessary"¹⁰ to facilitate Homburg's reorganization and to achieve the CCAA objectives. Instead, it says that he adopted what it characterizes as a "broad and result-driven" approach that is reflected in paragraph [114] of the judgment to the effect that granting the orders sought in Homburg's motion is a "fair, equitable, practical and efficient solution to HII's¹¹ default under the Head Lease".

10 To this argument, Homburg replies that Statoil misstates the law, and notes that section 11 CCAA refers not to necessity but to the power of a supervising judge "to make any order that it considers appropriate in the circumstances". It adds that by releasing Homburg from financial obligations under the agreements, the judgment promotes the remedial purpose of the CCAA by enhancing the possibility of a successful restructuring.

11 Next is the issue of standing.

12 Statoil argues that Homburg had no legal standing, with the exception of one conclusion that it does not contest, to seek declarations that relating to the enforcement of its obligations to Cadillac

Fairview under the Head Lease between it and Statoil, the effect of which is to remove Homburg from the line of fire. Statoil contends that only Cadillac Fairview had the required standing, and that Gouin, J. misconstrued the identity of the proper party before him.

13 As for Homburg, it says that it is at the centre of the various agreements whereby Statoil undertook to step into its shoes in the event of its default under the agreements, which has now happened. All that it sought by the conclusions of the motion, therefore, is a declaration that Statoil live up to the obligations it had contractually undertaken, and acknowledged subsequently in writing.

14 Finally, there is the issue of the interference with the contractual rights of third parties by the effect of the orders, in this case not only Statoil, but also Cadillac Fairview and the subtenants of the premises. All of them are third party non-debtors, and Statoil says that Gouin, J. simply lacked the authority to interfere with the exercise of their respective contractual rights between themselves. Statoil acknowledges what it describes as a "certain jurisprudential controversy on this issue", but says the controlling case is that of the Ontario Court of Appeal in Stelco Inc. (Re).¹² Blair, J.A., for the Court, remarked that the CCAA contains "no mention of dealing with issues that would change the nature of the relationships as between the creditors themselves",¹³ and that the trial judge had been "very careful to say that nothing in his reasons should be taken to determine or affect the relationship between (categories of debenture holders)."¹⁴

15 I note immediately that the issue in Re Stelco arose in a very different context, namely, the classification of categories of debenture holders for voting purposes on a proposed plan of arrangement or compromise of a debtor company. The proposed classification was dismissed at trial and confirmed on appeal by the same panel that granted leave. The ratio of the judgment does not appear to be of much significance to the resolution of the issues that were before Gouin, J.

16 In a nutshell, while at the same time disputing Statoil's interpretation of the contractual agreements, Homburg argues that the issue is not, in and of itself, of any relevance to the ongoing CCAA proceedings, nor likely to be of any precedential value to insolvency practice in Canada.

17 In my view, whether individually or collectively, I do not consider that Statoil has satisfied the test incumbent upon it to be granted leave.

18 Any appeal would have to proceed based on the trial judge's findings of fact. Whatever may be said of them, Statoil's motion does not satisfy me that they could be found to be manifestly unfounded with the necessary determinative effect if the Court were to intervene. Moreover, the great latitude given CCAA supervising judges would weigh heavily against any appeal succeeding given the apparent novelty of some of the questions raised. In addition, although some of the legal issues appear interesting from an objective standpoint, they fall short of being significant to the action in the overall scheme of things, nor do they appear to be prima facie meritorious, although I would hesitate to characterize them as frivolous.

19 One final point, which is in and of itself dispositive, leads to the motion failing.

20 The judgment of Gouin, J. granted the relief claimed with provisional effect notwithstanding appeal, and no attempt was made to suspend provisional execution of the judgment. To the extent the terms of the judgment may already have been implemented, it would be akin to unscrambling scrambled eggs to put matters back where they were before the orders were implemented, not to mention the uncertainty that would be created by the mere fact of leave being granted.

21 Statoil's motion is accordingly dismissed with costs.

2 I omit from consideration any grounds that essentially argue questions of interpretation of fact, which, even in the context of complicated commercial real estate transactions, would be highly unlikely to persuade a judge in chambers to grant leave. I also take no account of its argument that it was more or less bulldozed into a hearing that occurred 13 days after the service of the proceeding, thus, it says, preventing it from adequately conducting pre-trial discovery, since it seeks no relief, such as a new trial, that is directly related to the expedited process about which it complains.

Debtor and creditor -- Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act -- Creditors -- Classification -- Classification of creditors should be determined by their legal rights in relation to debtor company as opposed to their rights as creditors in relation to each other.

The appellant represented unsecured creditors who held convertible unsecured subordinated debentures issued by the debtor company pursuant to a Supplemental Trust Indenture. Their claims were subordinated to Senior Debt Holders. The Supplemental Trust Indenture provided that if the Subordinated Debenture Holders received any payment from the company, or any distribution from the assets of the company, before the Senior Debt was fully paid, they were obliged to remit any such payment or distribution to the Senior Debt Holders until the latter had been paid in full, but that no such payment or distribution by the company shall be deemed to constitute payment on the Subordinated Debenture Holders' debt. The parties referred to these provisions as the "Turnover Payment" provisions. In the company's Proposed Plan, the Subordinated Debenture Holders and the Senior Debt Holders were included in the same class (along with Trade Creditors) for the purposes of voting on the Proposed Plan. The appellant sought an order from the supervising judge classifying the Subordinated Debenture Holders as a separate class for voting purposes, arguing that their interests were different than those of the Senior Debt Holders and that creditors who do not have common interests should not be classified in the same group for voting purposes. The motion was dismissed. The appellant appealed.

Held, the appeal should be dismissed.

The classification of creditors is a fact-driven exercise, dependent upon the circumstances of each particular case. It is determined by the creditors' legal rights in relation to the debtor company, as opposed to their rights as creditors in relation to each other. The supervising judge did not err in finding that there was no material distinction between the legal rights of the Subordinated Debenture Holders and those of the Senior Debt Holders vis-à-vis the company. Each was entitled to be paid the moneys owing under their respective debt contracts. The only difference was that the former creditors were subordinated in interest to the latter and had agreed to pay over to the latter any portion of their recovery received until the Senior Debt had been paid in full. As between the two groups of creditors, this merely reflected the very deal the Subordinated Debenture Holders bought into when they purchased their subordinated debentures. The supervising judge was also entitled to determine that this was not a case involving any confiscation of legal rights. Finally, the supervising judge's finding that there was no realistic conflict of interest between the creditors was supported on the record. [page242] Each had the same general interest in relation to the company, namely to be paid under their contracts, and to maximize the amount recoverable from the company through the Plan negotiation process. The Senior Debt Holders' efforts would not be moderated in some respect because they would be content to make their recovery on the backs of the Subordinated Debenture Holders through the Turnover Payment process. In order to carry the class, the Senior Debt Holders would require the support of the Trade Creditors, whose interest was not affected by the subordination agreement. Thus, the Senior Debt Holders would be required to support the maximization approach.

BLAIR J.A.:--

Background

[1] This appeal arises out of the reorganization of Stelco Inc., and related companies, pursuant to the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act ("CCAA")¹ at the end of the document]. Stelco has been in the midst of this fractious process for approximately 21 months. Justice Farley has been the supervising judge throughout.

[2] Stelco has presented a Proposed Plan of Compromise or Arrangement to its creditors for their approval. The vote was scheduled for Tuesday, November 15, 2005. On Thursday, November 10, a group of creditors known as the Informal Independent Converts' Committee (the "Converts' Committee) sought an order from the supervising judge, amongst other things, classifying the Subordinated Debenture Holders whom they represent as a separate class for voting purposes. Justice Farley dismissed the motion. In the face of the pending vote, the Converts' Committee sought leave to appeal on Thursday afternoon (the courts were closed on Friday, November 11, for Remembrance Day). Rosenberg J.A. dealt with the matter and directed that the application for leave, and if leave be granted, the appeal, be heard by a panel of this court on Monday, November 14, 2005. [page244]

[3] This panel heard the application for leave and the appeal on Monday. We concluded that leave should be granted, but that the appeal must be dismissed, and at the conclusion of argument -- and in order to clarify matters so that the vote could proceed the following day -- we issued a brief endorsement with our decision, but indicating that more detailed reasons would follow.

[4] The endorsement read as follows:

In our view, the appellants have not demonstrated a different legal interest from the other unsecured creditors vis à vis the debtor, nor any basis for setting aside the finding of Farley J. that there are no different practical interests such that the appellants deserve a separate class. We see no legal error or error in principle in his exercise of discretion.

Leave to appeal is granted, but the appeal must therefore be dismissed. Because of the importance of the issue for Ontario practice in this area, we propose to expand somewhat on these reasons in due course.

[5] These are those expanded reasons.

Facts

[6] Stelco's Proposed Plan is made to unsecured creditors only. It is not intended to affect the claims of secured creditors.

[7] The Converts' Committee represents unsecured creditors who hold $90 million of convertible unsecured subordinated debentures issued by Stelco pursuant to a Supplemental Trust Indenture dated January 21, 2002, and due in 2007. With interest, the claims of the Subordinated Debenture Holders now amount to approximately $110 million. Those claims are subordinated to approximately $328 million in favour of Senior Debt Holders. In addition, Stelco has unsecured trade debts totalling approximately $228 million. In the Proposed Plan, these three groups of unsecured creditors -- the Subordinated Debenture Holders (represented by the Converts' Committee), the Senior Debt Holders and the Trade Creditors -- have all been included in the same class for the purposes of voting on the Proposed Plan or any amended version of it.

[8] The Converts' Committee takes issue with this, and seeks to have the Subordinated Debenture Holders classified as a separate class of creditors for voting purposes. They argue that their interests are different than those of the Bondholders and that creditors who do not have common interests should not be classified in the same group for voting purposes. They submit, therefore, that the supervising judge erred in law in not granting them a separate classification. In that regard, they rely upon this court's decision in Elan Corp. v. Comiskey (1990), 1 O.R. (3d) 289, [1990] O.J. No. 2180 (C.A.). They also argue that the supervising [page245] judge was wrong, on the facts contained in the record, in finding that the Subordinated Debenture Holders and the Bondholders did not have conflicting interests.

[9] In making their argument about a different interest, the appellants rely upon their status as subordinated debt holders as shaped particularly by Articles 6.2 and 6.3 of the Supplemental Trust Indenture. In essence those provisions reinforce the subordinated nature of their debt. They stipulate

(a) that if the Subordinated Debenture Holders receive any payment from Stelco, or any distribution from the assets of Stelco, before the Senior Debt is fully paid, they are obliged to remit any such payment or distribution to the Senior Debt Holders until the latter have been paid in full (Art. 6.2(3)), but (b) that no such payment or distribution by Stelco shall be deemed to constitute a payment on the Subordinated Debenture Holders' debt (Art. 6.3). The parties refer to these provisions as the "Turnover Payment" provisions.

[10] In short, although Stelco is obliged to pay both groups of creditors in full, as between the Subordinated Debenture Holders and the Senior Debt Holders, the latter are entitled to be paid in full before the former receive anything. The Supplemental Trust Indenture makes it clear that the provisions of Article 6 "are intended solely for the purpose of defining the relative rights of [the Subordinated Debenture Holders] and the holders of the Senior Debt" (Art. 6.3).

[11] The appellants contend that the Turnover Payment provisions distinguish their interests from those of the Subordinated Debenture Holders when it comes to voting on Stelco's Proposed Plan. They say that the Subordinated Debenture Holders' interest in maximizing the amounts to be made available to unsecured creditors ends once they have received full recovery, in part as a result of the Turnover Payments that the Subordinated Debenture Holders will be required to make from their portion of the funds. On the other hand, the Subordinated Debenture Holders will have an interest in seeking more because their recovery, for practical purposes, will have only begun once that point is reached.

[12] The respondents submit, for their part, that the appellants are seeking a separate classification for a collateral purpose, i.e., so that they will be able to veto the Proposed Plan, or at least threaten to veto it, unless they are granted a benefit to which they are not entitled -- the elimination of their subordinated position by virtue of the Turnover Payment provisions.

[13] Farley J. rejected the appellants' arguments. The thrust of his decision in this regard is found in paras. 13 and 14 of his reasons: [page246]

I would note as well that the primary and most significant attribute of the ConCom debt and that of the BondCom debt/ Senior Debt² at the end of the document] plus the trade debt vis-à-vis Stelco is that it is all unsecured debt. Thus absent valid reason to have separate classes it would be reasonable, logical, rational and practical to have all this unsecured debt in the same class. Certainly that would avoid any unnecessary fragmentation -- and in this respect multiplicity of classes does not mean that that fragmentation starts only when there are many classes. Unless more than one class is necessary, fragmentation would start at two classes. Fragmentation if necessary, but not necessarily fragmentation.

Is it necessary to have more than one class? Firstly, it would not appear to me that as between Stelco and the unsecured creditors overall there is any material distinction.

Secondly, there would not appear to me to be any confiscation of any rights (or the other side of the coin any new imposition of obligations) upon the holders of the ConCom debt. The subrogation issue was something which these holders assumed on the issue of that debt. Thirdly, I do not see that there is a realistic conflict of interest. Each group of unsecured creditors including the ConCom debt holders and the BondCom debt holders has the same general interest vis-à-vis Stelco, namely to extract from Stelco through the Plan the maximum value in the sense of consideration possible That situation is not impacted for our purposes here in this motion by the possibility that in a subsequent dispute between the ConCom holders and the BondCom holders there may be a difference of opinion as to the variation of the consideration obtained.

[14] We agree with his conclusion and see no basis to interfere with his findings in that regard.

The Leave Application

[15] The principles to be applied by this court in determining whether leave to appeal should be granted to someone dissatisfied with an order made in a CCAA proceeding are not in dispute. Leave is only sparingly granted in such matters because of their "real time" dynamic and because of the generally discretionary character underlying many of the orders made by supervising judges in such proceedings. There must be serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties. The court has assessed this criterion on the basis of a four-part test, namely,

- (a) whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice;
- (b) whether the point is of significance to the action;
- (c) whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious or frivolous; and [page247]
- (d) whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

See Stelco Inc. (Re) (2005), 75 O.R. (3d) 5, [2005] O.J. No. 1171 (C.A.), at para. 24; Country Style Food Services Inc. (Re), [2002] O.J. No. 1377, 158 O.A.C. 30 (C.A.), at para. 15; Resurgence Asset Management LLC v. Canadian Airlines Corp., [2000] A.J. No. 610, 19 C.B.R. (4th) 33 (C.A.), at para. 7.

[16] Here, we granted leave to appeal because the proposed appeal raised an issue of significance to the practice, namely the nature of the "common interest" test to be applied by the courts for purposes of the classification of creditors in CCAA proceedings. Although the law seems to have progressed in the lower courts along the lines developed in Alberta, beginning with the decision of Paperny J. in Canadian Airlines Corp. (Re), [2000] A.J. No. 1693, 19 C.B.R. (4th) 12 (Q.B.), this court has not dealt with the issue since its decision in Elan Corp. v. Comiskey, supra, and the Converts' Committee argues that the Alberta line of authorities is contrary to Elan.

[17] A brief further comment respecting the leave process may be in order.

[18] The court recognizes the importance of its ability to react in a responsible and timely fashion to the appellate needs arising in the "real time" dynamics of CCAA restructurings. Often, as in the case of this restructuring, they involve a significant public dimension. For good policy reasons, however, appellate courts in Canada -- including this one -- have developed relatively stringent parameters for the granting of leave to appeal in CCAA cases. As noted, leave is only sparingly granted. The parameters as set out in the authorities cited above remain good law.

[19] Merely because a corporate restructuring is a big one and money is no object to the participants in the process, does not mean that the court will necessarily depart from the normal leave to appeal process that applies to other cases. In granting leave to appeal in these circumstances, we do not wish to be taken as supporting a notion that the fusion of leave applications with the hearing of the appeal in CCAA restructurings -- particularly in major ones such as this one involving Stelco -- has become the practice. Where there is an urgency that a leave application be expedited in the public interest, the court will do so in this area of the law as it does in other areas. However, where what is involved is essentially an attempt to review a discretionary order made on the facts of the case, in a tightly supervised process with which the judge is intimately familiar, the collapsed process that was made available in this particular situation will not generally be afforded. [page248]

[20] As these reasons demonstrate, however, the issues raised on this particular appeal, and the timing factor involved, warranted the expedited procedure that was ordered by Justice Rosenberg.

The Appeal

No error in law or principle

[21] Everyone agrees that the classification of creditors for CCAA voting purposes is to be determined generally on the basis of a "commonality of interest" (or a "common interest") between creditors of the same class. Most analyses of this approach start with a reference to Sovereign Life Assurance Co. v. Dodd (1892), [1891-4] All E.R. Rep. 246, [1892] 2 Q.B. 573 (C.A.) which dealt with the classification of creditors for voting purposes in a winding-up proceeding. Two passages from the judgments in that decision are frequently cited. At pp. 249-50 All E.R., Lord Esher said:

The Act provides that the persons to be summoned to the meeting, all of whom, it is to be observed, are creditors, are persons who can be divided into different classes, classes which the Act³ at the end of the document] recognizes, though it does not define. The creditors, therefore, must be divided into different classes. What is the reason for prescribing such a course? It is because the creditors composing the different classes have different interests, and, therefore, if a different state of facts exists with respect to different creditors, which may affect their minds and judgments differently, they must be separated into different classes.

At p. 251 All E.R., Bowen L.J. stated:

The word "class" used in the statute is vague, and to find out what it means we must look at the general scope of the section, which enables the court to order a meeting of a "class of creditors" to be summoned. It seems to me that we must give such a meaning to the term "class" as will prevent the section being so worked as to produce confiscation and injustice, and that we must confine its meaning to those persons whose rights are not so dissimilar as to make it impossible for them to consult together with a view to their common interest.

[22] These views have been applied in the CCAA context. But what comprises those "not so dissimilar" rights and what are the components of that "common interest" have been the subject of debate and evolution over time. It is clear that classification is a fact-driven exercise, dependent upon the circumstances of each particular case. Moreover, given the nature of the CCAA process and the underlying flexibility of that process -- a flexibility which is its genius -- there can be no fixed rules that must apply in all cases.

[23] In Canadian Airlines Corp. (Re), supra, Paperny J. nonetheless extracted a number of principles to be considered by the courts in dealing with the commonality of interest test. At para. 31 she said: [page249]

In summary, the cases establish the following principles applicable to assessing commonality of interest:

1. Commonality of interest should be viewed based on the non-fragmentation test, not on an identity of interest test;
2. The interests to be considered are the legal interests that a creditor holds qua creditor in relationship to the debtor company prior to and under the plan as well as on liquidation;
3. The commonality of interests are to be viewed purposively, bearing in mind the object of the C.C.C.A., namely to facilitate reorganizations if at all possible;
4. In placing a broad and purposive interpretation on the C.C.C.A., the court should be careful to resist classification approaches which would potentially jeopardize viable plans.
5. Absent bad faith, the motivations of creditors to approve or disapprove [of the Plan] are irrelevant.
6. The requirement of creditors being able to consult together means being able to assess their legal entitlement as creditors before or after the plan in a similar manner.

[24] In developing this summary of principles, Paperny J. considered a number of authorities from across Canada, including the following: Sklar-Peppler Furniture Corp. v. Bank of Nova Scotia, [1991] O.J. No. 2288, 86 D.L.R. (4th) 621 (Gen. Div.); Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. v. Oakwood Petroleum Ltd., [1988] A.J. No. 1226, 72 C.B.R. (N.S.) 20 (Q.B.); Fairview Industries Ltd. (Re), [1991] N.S.J. No. 456, 11 C.B.R. (3d) 71 (T.D.); Woodward's Ltd. (Re), [1993] B.C.J. No. 852, 84

B.C.L.R. (2d) 206 (S.C.); Northland Properties Ltd. (Re), [1988] B.C.J. No. 1530, 73 C.B.R. (N.S.) 166 (S.C.); Northland Properties Ltd. v. Excelsior Life Insurance Co. of Canada, [1989] B.C.J. No. 63, 73 C.B.R. (N.S.) 195 (C.A.); NsC Diesel Power Inc. (Re), [1990] N.S.J. No. 484, 79 C.B.R. (N.S.) 1 (T.D.); Savage v. Amoco Acquisition Co., [1988] A.J. No. 330, 68 C.B.R. (N.S.) 154 (C.A.) (sub nom. Amoco Acquisition Co. v. Savage); Wellingt on Building Corp. (Re), [1934] O.R. 653, 16 C.B.R. 48 (H.C.J.). Her summarized principles were cited by the Alberta Court of Appeal, apparently with approval, in a subsequent Canadian Airlines decision: Canadian Airlines Corp. (Re), supra, at para. 27.

[25] In the passage from his reasons cited above (paras. 13 and 14) the supervising judge in this case applied those principles. In our view, he was correct in law in doing so.

[26] We do not read the foregoing principles as being inconsistent with the earlier decision of this court in Elan Corp. v. Comiskey. There the court applied a common interest test in determining that the two creditors in question ought not to be grouped in the same class of creditors for voting purposes. But the differing interests in question were not different legal interests as between the [page250] two creditors; they were different legal interests as between each of the creditors and the debtor company. One creditor (the Bank) held first security over the debtor company's receivables and the other creditor (RoyNat) held second security on those assets; RoyNat, however, held first security over the debtor's building and realty, whereas the Bank was second in priority in relation to those assets. The two creditors had differing commercial interests in how the assets should be dealt with (it was in the interests of the bank, with a smaller claim, to collect and retain the more realizable receivable assets, but in the interests of RoyNat to preserve the cash flow and have the business sold as a going concern). Those differing commercial interests were rooted in differing legal interests as between the individual creditors and the debtor company, arising from the different security held. Because of the size of its claim, RoyNat would dominate any group that it was in, and Finlayson J.A. was of the view that RoyNat, as the holder of second security, should not be able to override the Bank's legal interest as the first secured creditor with respect to the receivables by virtue of its voting rights. On the basis that there was "no true community of interest" between the secured creditors (p. 299 O.R.), given their different legal interests, he ordered that the Bank be placed in a separate class for voting purposes.

[27] Elan Corp. v. Comiskey did not deal with the issue of whether creditors with divergent interests as amongst themselves -- as opposed to divergent legal interests vis-à-vis the debtor company -- could be forced to vote as members of a common class. Nor did it apply an "identity of interest" test -- a test that has been rejected as too narrow and too likely to lead to excessive fragmentation: see Sklar-Peppler Furniture Corp. v. Bank of Nova Scotia, supra); Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. v. Oakwood Petroleums Ltd., supra; Fairview Industries Ltd. (Re), supra; Woodward's Ltd. (Re), supra. In our view, there is nothing in the decision in Elan Corp. that is inconsistent with the evolutionary set of principles developed in the Alberta jurisprudence and applied by the supervising judge here.

[28] In addition to commonality of interest concerns, a court dealing with a classification of creditors issue needs to be alert to concerns about the confiscation of legal rights and about avoiding what the parties have referred to as "a tyranny of the minority". Examples of the former include *Elan Corp. v. Comiskey*⁴ at the end of the document] and [page251] Wellington Building Corp. Ltd. (Re), supra⁵ at the end of the document]. Examples of the latter include Sklar-Peppler, supra⁶ at the end of the document] and Campeau Corp. (Re), [1991] O.J. No. 2338, 10 C.B.R. (3d) 100 (Gen. Div.)⁷ at the end of the document].

[29] Here, as noted earlier in these reasons, the respondents argue that the appellants are seeking a separate classification in order to extract a benefit to which they are not entitled, namely a concession that the Turnover Payment requirements of their subordinated position be extinguished by the Proposed Plan, thus avoiding their obligation to transfer payments to the Senior Debt Holders until they have been paid in full, and freeing up all of the distribution the appellants will receive from Stelco for payment on account of their own claims. On the other hand, the appellants point to this conflict between the Subordinated Debenture Holders and the Senior Debt Holders as evidence that they do not have a commonality of interest or the ability to consult together with a view to whatever commonality of interest they may have vis-à-vis Stelco.

[30] We agree with the line of authorities summarized in Canadian Airlines (Re) and applied by the supervising judge in this case which stipulate that the classification of creditors is determined by their legal rights in relation to the debtor company, as opposed to their rights as creditors in relation to each other. To the extent that other authorities at the trial level in other jurisdictions may suggest to the contrary -- see, for example NsC Diesel Power Inc. (Re), supra -- we prefer the Alberta approach.

[31] There are good reasons for such an approach.

[32] First, as the supervising judge noted [at para. 7], the CCAA itself is more compendiously styled "An Act to facilitate compromises and arrangements between companies and their creditors." There is no mention of dealing with issues that would change the nature of the relationships as between the creditors themselves. As Tysse J. noted in Pacific Coastal Airlines Ltd. v. Air Canada, [2001] B.C.J. No. 2580, 19 B.L.R. (3d) 286 (S.C.), at para. 24 [page252] (after referring to the full style of the legislation):

[The purpose of the CCAA proceeding] is not to deal with disputes between a creditor of a company and a third party, even if the company was also involved in the subject matter of the dispute. While issues between the debtor company and non-creditors are sometimes dealt with in CCAA proceedings, it is not a proper use of a CCAA proceeding to determine disputes between parties other than the debtor company.

[33] In this particular case, the supervising judge was very careful to say that nothing in his reasons should be taken to determine or affect the relationship between the Subordinate Debenture Holders and the Senior Debt Holders.

[34] Secondly, it has long been recognized that creditors should be classified in accordance with their contract rights, that is, according to their respective interests in the debtor company: see Stanley E. Edwards, "Reorganizations Under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act" (1947) 25 Can. Bar Rev. 587, at p. 602.

[35] Finally, to hold the classification and voting process hostage to the vagaries of a potentially infinite variety of disputes as between already disgruntled creditors who have been caught in the maelstrom of a CCAA restructuring runs the risk of hobbling that process unduly. It could lead to the very type of fragmentation and multiplicity of discrete classes or sub-classes of classes that judges and legal writers have warned might well defeat the purpose of the Act: see Stanley Edwards, "Reorganizations under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act", supra; Ronald N. Robertson Q.C., "Legal Problems on Reorganization of Major Financial and Commercial Debtors", Canadian Bar Association -- Ontario Continuing Legal Education, April 5, 1983 at 19-21; Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. v. Oakwood Petroleum Ltd., supra, at para. 27; Northland Properties Ltd. v. Excelsior Life Insurance Co. of Canada, supra; Sklar-Peppler, supra; Woodward Ltd. (Re), supra.

[36] In the end, it is important to remember that classification of creditors, like most other things pertaining to the CCAA, must be crafted with the underlying purpose of the CCAA in mind, namely facilitation of the reorganization of an insolvent company through the negotiation and approval of a plan of compromise or arrangement between the debtor company and its creditors, so that the debtor company can continue to carry on its business to the benefit of all concerned. As Paperny J. noted [at para. 31] in Canadian Airlines (Re), "the Court should be careful to resist classification approaches that would potentially jeopardize viable plans". [page253]

Discretion and fact finding

[37] Having concluded that the supervising judge made no error in law or principle in his approach to the classification issue, we can find no error in his factual findings or in his exercise of discretion in determining that the Subordinate Debenture Holders should remain in the same class as the Senior Debt Holders and Trade Creditors in the circumstances of this case.

[38] We agree that there is no material distinction between the legal rights of the Subordinated Debenture Holders and those of the Senior Debt Holders vis-à-vis Stelco. Each is entitled to be paid the moneys owing under their respective debt contracts. The only difference is that the former creditors are subordinated in interest to the latter and have agreed to pay over to the latter any portion of their recovery received until the Senior Debt has been paid in full. As between the two groups of creditors, this merely reflects the very deal the Subordinated Debenture Holders bought into when they purchased their subordinated debentures. For that reason, the supervising judge was also entitled to determine that this was not a case involving any confiscation of legal rights.

[39] Finally, the supervising judge's finding that there is no "realistic conflict of interest" between the creditors is supported on the record. Each has the same general interest in relation to Stelco, namely to be paid under their contracts, and to maximize the amount recoverable from the debtor company through the Plan negotiation process. We do not accept the argument that the Senior Debt Holder's efforts will be moderated in some respect because they will be content to make their recovery on the backs of the Subordinated Debenture Holders through the Turnover Payment process. In order to carry the class, the Senior Debt Holders will require the support of the Trade Creditors, whose interest is not affected by the subordination agreement. Thus the Senior Debt Holders will be required to support the maximization approach.

[40] We need not deal with whether a realistic and genuine conflict of interest, produced by different legal positions of creditors vis-à-vis each other, could ever warrant separate classes, as we are satisfied that even if it could, this is not such a case.

Disposition

[41] Accordingly, we would not interfere with the supervising judge's decision that the appellants had not made out a case for a separate class. The appeal is therefore dismissed.

Appeal dismissed. [page254]

Note 1: R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended.

Note 2: Farley J. uses the term "ConCom debt" to refer to the debt represented by the Converts' Committee (i.e., that of the Subordinated Debenture Holders), and the term "BondCom debt" to refer to that of the Senior Debt Holders.

Note 3: The Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act 1870 (U.K.), 33 & 34 Vict., c. 104.

Note 4: A second secured creditor with superior voting power was separated from a first secured creditor for the voting purposes, in order [to] prevent the former from utilizing its superior voting strength to adversely affect the latter's prior security position.

Note 5: The court refused to allow subsequent mortgagees to vote in the same class as a first mortgagee because in the circumstances the subsequent mortgagees would be able to use their voting power to destroy the priority rights and security of the first mortgagee.

Note 6: Borins J., as he then was, warned against the dangers of "excessive fragmentation" and of creating "a special class simply for the benefit of the opposing creditor, which would give that creditor the potential to exercise an unwarranted degree of power" [at p. 627 D.L.R.].

Note 7: Montgomery J. declined to grant a separate classification to a minority group of creditors who would use that classification to extract benefits to which it was not otherwise entitled.

Debtor and creditor -- Insolvency -- Creditors arrangements -- Stay of all proceedings against insolvent debtor -- Statutory severance payments -- Creation of trust fund to secure making of severance payments.

Application for leave to appeal an order made under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act.

The petitioner applied to establish a trust fund to indemnify its directors and officers with respect to statutory severance payments. In the alternative, it wished to use available funds to meet those payments. There was no evidence that the operations of the petitioner would be impaired if the payments were not made. Its applications were refused. It argued that the trial judge erred in ordering the debtor not to abide by relevant mandatory statutory provisions.

HELD: Application dismissed. The Act preserved the status quo and protected all creditors while a re-organization was being attempted. The steps sought to be taken by the petitioner in this case would amount to an unacceptable alteration of that status quo. In exercising its powers under this statute, the court sought to serve creditors which included shareholders and employees. If in doing so, a decision of the court conflicted with provincial legislation, the pursuit of the purposes of the Act must prevail.

MACFARLANE J.A. (refusing leave to appeal):-- This is an application for leave to appeal an order of Mr. Justice Brenner pronounced the 17th day of August, 1992, pursuant to the Companies Creditors Arrangement Act R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36 (the "C.C.A.A.").

1 The petitioners had become insolvent prior to July 22, 1992, when they made an application under the C.C.A.A. for a stay of all proceedings so that they might attempt a reorganization of their affairs as contemplated by the C.C.A.A..

2 Mr. Justice Brenner made an ex parte order on July 23, 1992. The effect of the order was to stay all proceedings against the petitioners.

3 The order permitted the petitioners to maintain in trust a sum not exceeding $1,500,000.00, to satisfy the potential liabilities of directors and officers of the petitioner companies with respect to the payment of wages under provincial legislation and remittances in connection therewith pursuant to federal legislation. The petitioners had previously established that fund to protect its directors and officers from potential personal liability under the Employment Standards Act S.B.C. 1979, c. 10 for failing to make the payments mandated by that statute.

4 On July 31, 1992, Mr. Justice Brenner heard a number of applications brought by various interested parties seeking to set aside the ex parte stay order or, if the stay order was not set aside, to vary its terms. Mr. Justice Brenner amended and replaced the stay order with an order on terms proposed by the parties. That order has not yet been entered and has gone through a number of amendments. The order provided that on an interim basis, pending the hearing and determination of an application on the merits of the issues, the petitioners should not, without further order of the Court, make any payment to any employee or employees of the petitioners in respect of unpaid wages, severance, termination, lay-off, vacation pay or other benefits arising or otherwise payable as a result of the termination of an employee or employees.

5 The merits were argued in August and on August 17 Mr. Justice Brenner delivered the reasons for judgment and made the order which is the subject of this application.

6 The operative portions of the order read as follows:

THIS COURT ORDERS that the application by the Petitioners to make statutory severance payments or to maintain a trust fund to indemnify its directors and officers with respect to statutory severance payments is dismissed;

THIS COURT FURTHER ORDERS that any proceedings that may be brought by employees of the Petitioners to compel payment of statutory severance payments are stayed.

7 The appeal concerns the order made under the first paragraph of the order, not against the stay granted in the second paragraph.

8 The reasons for judgment of Mr. Justice Brenner are careful and detailed and are contained in 17 pages. The reasons contain a review of the essential facts, including the circumstances which gave rise to the financial difficulties of the petitioners, the competing arguments with respect to the need and the ability to make severance payments to employees whose services had been terminated, a consideration of the purposes of the C.C.A.A., the principle derived from the judgment of Mr. Justice Macdonald in Westar Mining Ltd., unreported reasons for judgment, August 11, 1992 (which dealt with a similar issue), and the application of that principle to the facts of this case.

9 The essential facts are that the petitioners are a group of inter-related companies that have carried on a leasing business for some years. Just prior to the commencement of the C.C.A.A. proceedings the petitioners had over $246,000,000.00 in lease portfolios under administration. They had a workforce of approximately 230 which, by the time Mr. Justice Brenner gave his reasons on August 17, 1992, had been reduced to 60. The provisions of the Employment Standards Act had not, by August 17, 1992, given rise to any actual liability with respect to the severance of the employees who had left the company. The potential liability was not known but the company said that it could be as much as $1,500,000.

10 Mr. Skelly informed me, upon the hearing of the application, that the latest information indicated a liability for severance pay in an amount of approximately $850,000.00 and for vacation pay in an amount of approximately $150,000.00 for a total potential liability of $1,000,000.00. I understand from counsel that once the Funders are repaid there may be as much as $61,000,000.00 available to meet other liabilities.

11 Mr. Clark, for the petitioners, was not prepared to concede that the potential liability had been reduced, and submits that a trust fund of about $1,300,000.00 is required.

12 The petitioners were in the business of purchasing equipment or vehicles and entering into leases with third parties. The initial purchases were financed with security on such leases granted in favour of National Bank of Canada and by way of a trust deed in favour of Canada Trust Company and Royal Trust Company. Additional financial advances were obtained from the other respondents, who are 27 other financial institutions, referred to in the material as the "Funders". The Funders advanced monies and took security, in part by way of assignment of the lease revenue stream. The monies advanced by the Funders exceeded the amount which the petitioners had paid for the equipment or vehicles. The difference, together with other revenue, was the petitioners' profit.

13 The arrangements with the Funders provided that the petitioners would continue the ongoing administration of the leases, including collection of the monthly lease payments, which would be forwarded to the Funders.

14 The petitioners got into financial difficulties, which they revealed to the Funders. The Funders and the petitioners were not able to agree to a plan to deal with this crisis. As a result the petitioners sought protection under the C.C.A.A..

15 The appellants seek an order of this Court setting aside the order made August 17, 1992, and authorizing the petitioners to comply with the statutes governing their operations (and in particular the Employment Standards Act) and permitting them to continue to maintain the Trust Funds with respect to possible claims against directors and officers arising out of the various federal and provincial statutes.

[para16] The petitioners assert that Mr. Justice Brenner erred:-

1. In ordering the appellants not to abide by the relevant mandatory statutory provisions including those under the Employment Standards

Act, requiring the appellants to pay all the statutory payments in full, and thereby order the appellants to breach a mandatory statute regarding statutory payments.

2. In ruling that he had the inherent jurisdiction under the Companies Creditors Arrangement Act or otherwise to order the appellants to breach the Employment Standards Act regarding statutory payments and thereby order the petitioners to commit offences under such statute.
3. In failing to properly apply the relevant legal principles applicable to a decision regarding the payment of statutory payments including such payments to former employees.
4. In ruling that the payment of unpaid wages and holiday and vacation pay accruing to the appellants' employees was to be treated in the same manner as severance pay.
5. In suspending the provisions of the July 23, 1992 order authorizing the Trust Fund.
6. In failing to provide any protection to the directors and officers of the appellants by way of the Trust Fund when ordering the petitioners to breach the Employment Standards Act, thereby exposing the directors and officers of the petitioners to liabilities under that statute and to prosecution for offences thereunder.

17 I understand the submission of the respondents to be that the real issue is whether a judge, acting pursuant to the powers given by the C.C.A.A., may make an order the purpose of which is to hold all creditors at bay pending an attempted reorganization of the affairs of a company, and which is intended to prevent a creditor obtaining a preference which it would not have if the attempted re-organization fails, and bankruptcy occurs.

18 I think that the answer is given in Chef Ready Foods Ltd. v. Hong Kong Bank of Canada (1990), B.C.L.R. (2d) 84. In that case Mr. Justice Gibbs, at pp. 88-89, said:

The purpose of the C.C.A.A. is to facilitate the making of a compromise or arrangement between an insolvent debtor company and its creditors to the end that the company is able to continue in business. It is available to any company incorporated in Canada with assets or business activities in Canada that is not a bank, a railway company, a telegraph company, an insurance company, a trust company, or a loan company. When a company has recourse to the C.C.A.A. the Court is called upon to play a kind of supervisory role to preserve the status quo to move the process along to the point where a compromise or arrangement is approved or it is evident that the attempt is doomed to failure. Obviously time is critical. Equally obviously, if the attempt at a compromise or arrangement is to have any prospect of success, there must be a means of holding the creditors at bay. Hence the powers vested in the Court under Section 11.

19 In the same case, at p. 92, Mr. Justice Gibbs considered whether security given under the Bank Act gave preference to the Bank over other creditors, despite the provisions of the C.C.A.A.. He said:

It is apparent from these excerpts and from the wording of the statute, that in contrast with ss. 178 and 179 of the Bank Act which are preoccupied with the competing rights and duties of the borrower and the lender, the C.C.A.A. serves the interests of a broad constituency of investors, creditors and employees. If a bank's right in respect of s. 178 security are accorded a unique status which renders those rights immune from the provisions of the C.C.A.A., the protection afforded that constituency for any company which has granted s. 178 security will be largely illusory. It will be illusory because almost inevitably the realization by the bank on its security will destroy the company as a going concern. Here, for example, if the bank signifies and collects the accounts receivable, Chef Ready will be deprived of working capital. Collapse and liquidation must necessarily follow. The lesson will be that where s. 178 security is present a single creditor can frustrate the public policy objectives of the C.C.A.A. There will be two classes of debtor companies: those for whom there are prospects for recovery under the C.C.A.A.; those for whom the C.C.A.A. may be irrelevant dependent upon the whim of the s. 178 security holder. Given the economic circumstances which prevailed when the C.C.A.A. was enacted, it is difficult to imagine that the legislators of the day intended that result to follow.

20 Mr. Justice Brenner, after reviewing that and other authorities, said:

- (1) The purpose of the C.C.A.A. is to allow an insolvent company a reasonable period of time to reorganize its affairs and prepare and file a plan for its continued operation subject to the requisite approval of the creditors and the Court. (2) The C.C.A.A. is intended to serve not only the company's creditors but also a broad constituency which includes the shareholders and the employees. (3) During the stay period the Act is intended to prevent maneuvers (sic) for positioning amongst the creditors of the company. (4) The function of the Court during the stay period is to play a supervisory role to preserve the status quo and to move the process along to the point where a compromise or arrangement is approved or it is evident that the attempt is doomed to failure. (5) The status quo does not mean preservation of the relative pre-debt status of each creditor. Since the companies under C.C.A.A. orders continue to operate and having regard to the broad constituency of interests the Act is intended to serve, preservation of the status quo is not intended to create a rigid freeze of relative pre-stay positions. (6) The Court has a broad discretion to apply these principles to the facts of a particular case.

21 Mr. Justice Brenner then referred to the judgment of Mr. Justice Macdonald in Westar, and concluded:

In my view, to allow the Petitioners to make statutory severance payments or to authorize a fund out of the company's operating revenues for that purpose would be an unacceptable alteration of the status quo in effect when the order was granted.

22 He said earlier that he did not understand Mr. Justice Macdonald to be saying in Westar that in no case should a court ever authorize severance payments when a company is operating under the C.C.A.A.

23 He held, in effect, that it was a proper exercise of the discretion given to a judge under the C.C.A.A. to order that no preference be given to any creditor while a reorganization was being attempted under the C.C.A.A.

24 It appears to me that an order which treats creditors alike is in accord with the purpose of the C.C.A.A. Without the provisions of that statute the petitioner companies might soon be in bankruptcy, and the priority which the employees now have would be lost. The process provided by the C.C.A.A. is an interim one. Generally, it suspends but does not determine the ultimate rights of any creditor. In the end it may result in the rights of employees being protected, but in the meantime it preserves the status quo and protects all creditors while a re-organization is being attempted.

25 So far as the directors and officers are concerned, they were personally liable for potential claims under the Employment Standards Act before July 22. Nothing has changed. No authority has been cited to show that the directors and officers have a preferred right over other potential creditors.

26 This case is not so much about the rights of employees as creditors, but the right of the court under the C.C.A.A. to serve not the special interests of the directors and officers of the company but the broader constituency referred to in Chef Ready Foods Ltd. Such a decision may inevitably conflict with provincial legislation, but the broad purposes of the C.C.A.A. must be served.

27 In this case Mr. Justice Brenner reviewed the evidence and made certain findings of fact. He concluded that it would be an unacceptable alteration of the status quo for the petitioners to make statutory severance payments or to authorize a fund out of the companies' operating revenues for that purpose. He also found that there was no evidence before him that the petitioners' operation will be impaired if terminated employees do not receive severance pay and instead become creditors of the company. He said that there was no evidence that the directors and officers will resign and be unavailable to assist the company in its organization plans.

28 Despite what I have said, there may be an arguable case for the petitioners to present to a panel of this Court on discreet questions of law. But I am of the view that this Court should exercise its powers sparingly when it is asked to intervene with respect to questions which arise under the C.C.A.A. The process of management which the Act has assigned to the trial Court is an ongoing one. In this case a number of orders have been made. Some, including the one under appeal, have not been settled or entered. Other applications are pending. The process contemplated by the Act is continuing.

29 A colleague has suggested that a judge exercising a supervisory function under the C.C.A.A. is more like a judge hearing a trial, who makes orders in the course of that trial, than a chambers judge who makes interlocutory or proceedings for which he has no further responsibility.

30 Also, we know that in a case where a judgment has not been entered, it may be open to a judge to reconsider his or her judgment, and alter its terms. In supervising a proceeding under the C.C.A.A. orders are made, and orders are varied as changing circumstances require. Orders depend upon a careful and delicate balancing of a variety of interests and of problems. In that context appellate proceedings may well upset the balance, and delay or frustrate the process under the C.C.A.A. I do not say that leave will never be granted in a C.C.A.A. proceeding. But the effect upon all parties concerned will be an important consideration in deciding whether leave ought to be granted.

WITTMANN J.:-

INTRODUCTION

1 This is an application by Resurgence Asset Management LLC ("Resurgence") for leave to appeal the order of Paperny, J., dated June 27, 2000, pursuant to proceedings under the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended, ("CCAA"). The order sanctioned a plan of compromise and arrangement ("the Plan") proposed by Canadian Airlines Corporation ("CAC") and Canadian Airlines International Ltd. ("CAIL") (together, "Canadian") and dismissed an application by Resurgence for a declaration that Resurgence was an unaffected creditor under the Plan.

BACKGROUND

2 Resurgence was the holder of 58.2 per cent of $100,000,000.00 (U.S.) of the unsecured notes issued by CAC.

3 CAC was a publicly traded Alberta corporation which, prior to the June 27 order of Paperny, J., owned 100 per cent of the common shares of CAIL, the operating company of Canadian Airlines.

4 Air Canada is a publicly traded Canadian corporation. Air Canada owned 10 per cent of the shares of 853350 Alberta Ltd. ("853350"), which prior to the June 27 order of Paperny, J., owned all the preferred shares of CAIL.

5 As described in detail by the learned chambers judge in her reasons, Canadian had been searching for a decade for a solution to its ongoing, significant financial difficulties. By December 1999, it was on the brink of bankruptcy. In a series of transactions including 853350's acquisition of the preferred shares of CAIL, Air Canada infused capital into Canadian and assisted in debt restructuring.

6 Canadian came to the conclusion that it must conclude its debt restructuring to permit the completion of a full merger between Canadian and Air Canada. On February 1, 2000, to secure liquidity to continue operating until debt restructuring was achieved, Canadian announced a moratorium on payments to lessors and lenders. CAIL, Air Canada and lessors of 59 aircraft reached an agreement in principle on a restructuring plan. They also reached agreement with other secured creditors and several major unsecured creditors with respect to restructuring.

7 Canadian still faced threats of proceedings by secured creditors. It commenced proceedings under the CCAA on March 24, 2000. Pricewaterhouse Coopers Inc. was appointed as Monitor by court order.

8 Arrangements with various aircraft lessors, lenders and conditional vendors which would benefit Canadian by reducing rates and other terms were approved by court orders dated April 14, 2000 and May 10, 2000.

9 On April 25, 2000, in accordance with the March 24 court order, Canadian filed the Plan which was described as having three principal objectives:

- (a) To provide near term liquidity so that Canadian can sustain operations;
- (b) To allow for the return of aircraft not required by Canadian; and
- (c) To permanently adjust Canadian's debt structure and lease facilities to reflect the current market for asset value and carrying costs in return for Air Canada providing a guarantee of the restructured obligations.

10 The Plan generally provided for stakeholders by category as follows:

- (a) Affected unsecured creditors, which included unsecured noteholders, aircraft claimants, executory contract claimants, tax claimants and various litigation claimants, would receive 12 cents per dollar (later changed to 14 cents per dollar) of approved claims;
- (b) Affected secured creditors, the senior secured noteholders, would receive 97 per cent of the principal amount of their claim plus interest and costs in respect of their secured claim, and a deficiency claim as unsecured creditors for the remainder;
- (c) Unaffected unsecured creditors, which included Canadian's employees, customers and suppliers of goods and services, would be unaffected by the Plan;
- (d) Unaffected secured creditor, the Royal Bank, CAIL's operating lender, would not be affected by the Plan.

11 The Plan also proposed share capital reorganization by having all CAIL common shares held by CAC converted into a single retractable share, which would then be retracted by CAIL for $1.00, and all CAIL preferred shares held by 853350 converted into CAIL common shares. The Plan provided for amendments to CAIL's articles of incorporation to effect the proposed reorganization.

12 On May 26, 2000, in accordance with the orders and directions of the court, two classes of creditors, the senior secured noteholders and the affected unsecured creditors voted on the Plan as amended. Both classes approved the Plan by the majorities required by ss. 4 and 5 of the CCAA.

13 On May 29, 2000, by notice of motion, Canadian sought court sanction of the Plan under s. 6 of the CCAA and an order for reorganization pursuant to s. 185 of the Business Corporations Act (Alberta), S.A. 1981, c. B-15 as amended ("ABCA"). Resurgence was among those who opposed the Plan. Its application, along with that of four shareholders of CAC, was ordered to be tried during a hearing to consider the fairness and reasonableness of the Plan ("the fairness hearing").

14 Resurgence sought declarations that the actions of Canadian, Air Canada and 853350 constitute an amalgamation, consolidation or merger with or into Air Canada or a conveyance or transfer of all or substantially all of Canadian's assets to Air Canada; that any plan of arrangement involving Canadian will not affect Resurgence and directing the repurchase of their notes pursuant to provisions of their trust indenture and that the actions of Canadian, Air Canada and 853350 were oppressive and unfairly prejudicial to it pursuant to s. 234 of the ABCA.

15 The fairness hearing lasted two weeks during which viva voce evidence of six witnesses was heard, including testimony of the chief financial officers of Canadian and Air Canada. Submissions by counsel were made on behalf of the federal government, the Calgary and Edmonton airport authorities, unions representing employees of Canadian and various creditors of Canadian. The court also received two special reports from the Monitor.

16 As part of assessing the fairness of the Plan, the learned chambers judge received a liquidation analysis of CAIL, prepared by the Monitor, in order to estimate the amounts that might be recovered by CAIL's creditors and shareholders in the event that CAIL's assets were disposed of by a receiver or trustee. The Monitor concluded that liquidation would result in a shortfall to certain secured creditors, that recovery by unsecured creditors would be between one and three cents on the dollar, and that there would be no recovery by shareholders.

17 The learned chambers judge stated that she agreed with the parties opposing the Plan that it was not perfect, but it was neither illegal, nor oppressive, and therefore, dismissed the requested declarations and relief sought by Resurgence. Further, she held that the Plan was the only alternative to bankruptcy as ten years of struggle and failed creative attempts at restructuring clearly demonstrated. She ruled that the Plan was fair and reasonable and deserving of the sanction of the court. She granted the order sanctioning the Plan, and the application pursuant to s. 185 of the ABCA to reorganize the corporation.

LEAVE TO APPEAL UNDER THE CCAA

18 The CCAA provides for appeals to this Court as follows:

13. Except in the Yukon Territory, any person dissatisfied with an order or a decision made under this Act may appeal therefrom on obtaining leave of the judge appealed from or of the court or a judge or the court to which the appeal lies and on such terms as to security and in other respects as the judge or court directs.

19 As set out in Resurgence Asset Management LLC v. Canadian Airlines Corporation, 2000 ABCA 149 (Online: Alberta Courts)("Resurgence No. 1"), a decision on a leave application sought earlier in this action, and as conceded by all the parties to this application, the criterion to be applied in an application for leave to appeal is that there must be serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties. This criterion subsumes four factors to be considered by the court:

- (1) whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice;
- (2) whether the point raised is of significance to the action itself;
- (3) whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious or, on the other hand, whether it is frivolous; and
- (4) whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

20 The respondents argue that apart from the test for leave, mootness is an additional overriding factor in the present case which is dispositive against the granting of leave to appeal.

MOOTNESS

21 In Galcor Hotel Managers Ltd. v. Imperial Financial Services Ltd. (1993), 81 B.C.L.R. (2) 142 (C.A.), an order authorizing the distribution of substantially all the assets of a limited partnership had been fully performed. The appellants appealed, seeking to have the order vacated. The appellants had unsuccessfully applied for a stay of the order. In deciding whether to allow the appeal to be presented, Gibbs, J.A., for the court, said there was no merit, substance or prospective benefit that could accrue to the appellants, and that the appeal was therefore moot.

22 In Borowski v. Canada (Attorney General), [1989] 1 S.C.R. 342, Sopinka, J. for the court, held that where there is no longer a live controversy or concrete dispute, an appeal is moot.

23 No stay of the June 27 order was obtained or even sought. In reliance on that order, most of the transactions contemplated by the Plan have been completed. According to the Affidavit of Paul Brotto, sworn July 6, 2000, filed July 7, 2000, the following occurred:

5. The transactions contemplated by the Plan have been completed in reliance upon the Sanction Order. The completion of the transactions has involved, among other things, the following steps:

- (a) Effective July 4, 2000, all of the depreciable property of CAIL was transferred to a wholly-owned subsidiary of CAIL and leased back from such subsidiary by CAIL;
- (b) Articles of Reorganization of CAIL, being Schedule "D" to the Plan (which is Exhibit "A" to the Sanction Order), were filed and a Certificate of Amendment and Registration of Restated Articles was issued by the Registrar of Corporations pursuant to the Sanction Order, and in accordance with sections 185 and 255 of the Business Corporations Act (Alberta) (the "Certificate") on July 5, 2000. Pursuant to the Articles of Reorganization, the common shares of CAIL formerly held by CAC were converted to retractable preferred shares and the same were retracted. All preferred shares of CAIL held by 853350 Alberta Ltd. ("853350") were converted into CAIL common shares;
- (c) The "Section 80.04 Agreement" referred to in the Plan between CAIL and CAC, pursuant to which certain forgiveness of debt obligations under s. 80 of the Income Tax Act were transferred from CAIL to CAC, has been entered into as of July 5, 2000;
- (d) Payment of $185,973,411 (US funds) has been made to the Trustee on behalf of all holders of Senior Secured Notes as provided for in the Plan and 853350 has acquired the Amended Secured Intercompany Note; and
- (e) Payments have been made to Affected Unsecured Creditors holding Unsecured Proven Claims and further payments will be made upon the resolution of disputed claims by the Claims officer; and
- (f) It is expected that payment will be made within several days of the date of this Affidavit to the Trustee, on behalf of the Unsecured Notes, in the amount 14 percent of approximately $160,000,000.

24 In Norcan Oils Ltd. v. Fogler, [1965] S.C.R. 36, it was held that the Alberta Supreme Court Appellate Division could not set aside or revoke a certificate of amalgamation after the registrar of companies had issued the certificate in accordance with a valid court order and the corporations legislation. A notice appealing the order had been served but no stay had been obtained. Absent express legislative authority to reverse the process once the certificate had been issued, the majority of the Supreme Court of Canada held the amalgamation could not be unwound and therefore, an appellate court ought not to make an order which could have no effect.

25 Courts following Norcan have recognized that any right to appeal will be lost if a party does not obtain a stay of the filing of an amalgamation approval order: Re Universal Explorations Ltd. and Petrol Oil & Gas Company Limited (1982), 35 A.R. 71 (Q.B.) and Re Gibbex Mines Ltd. et al., [1975] 2 W.W.R. 10 (B.C.S.C.).

26 Norcan applies to bind this Court in the present action where CAIL's articles of reorganization were filed with the Registrar of Corporations on July 5, 2000 and pursuant to the provisions of the ABCA, a certificate amending the articles was issued. The certificate cannot now be rescinded. There is no provision in the ABCA for reversing a reorganization.

27 The respondents point out that there are other irreversible changes which have occurred since the date of the June 27, 2000 order. They include changes in share structure, changes in management personnel, implementation of a restructuring plan that included a repayment agreement with its principal lender and other creditors and payments to third parties. [Affidavit of Paul Brotto, paras. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.]

28 The applicant relies on Re Blue Range Resource Corp. (1999), 244 A.R. 103, (C.A.), to argue that leave to appeal can be granted after a CCAA plan has been implemented. In that case, as noted by Fruman, J.A. at 106, a plan was in place and an appeal of the issues which were before her would not unduly hinder the progress of restructuring.

29 In this case, however, the proposed appeal by Resurgence would interfere with the restructuring since the remedies it seeks requires that the Plan be set aside. One proposed ground of appeal attacks the fairness and reasonableness of the Plan itself when the Plan has been almost fully implemented. It cannot be said that the proposed appeal would not unduly hinder the progress of restructuring.

30 If the proposed appeal were allowed, this Court cannot rewrite the Plan; nor could it remit the matter back to the CCAA supervising judge for such purpose. It must either uphold or set aside the approval of the Plan granted by the court below. In effect, if Resurgence succeeded on appeal, the Plan would be vacated. However, that remedy is no longer possible, at minimum, because the certificate issued by the Registrar cannot be revoked. As stated in Norcan, an appellate court cannot order a remedy which could have no effect. This Court cannot order that the Plan be undone in its entirety.

31 Similarly, the other ground of Resurgence's proposed appeal, oppression under s. 234 of the ABCA, cannot be allowed since that remedy must be granted within the context of the CCAA proceedings. As recognized by the learned chambers judge, allegations of oppression were considered in the test for fairness when seeking judicial sanction of the Plan. As she discussed at paragraphs 140-145 of her reasons, the starting point in any determination of oppression under the ABCA requires an understanding of the rights, interests and reasonable expectations which must be objectively assessed. In this action, the rights, interests and reasonable expectations of both shareholders and creditors must be considered through the lens of CCAA insolvency legislation. The complaints of Resurgence, that its rights under its trust indenture have been ignored or eliminated, are to be seen as the function of the insolvency, and not of oppressive conduct. As a consequence, even if Resurgence were to successfully appeal on the ground of oppression, the remedy would not be to give effect to the terms of the trust indenture. This Court could only hold that the fairness test for the court's sanction was not met and therefore, the approval of the Plan should be set aside. Again, as explained above, reversing the Plan is no longer possible.

32 The applicant was unable to point to any issue where this Court could grant a remedy and yet leave the Plan unaffected. It proposed on appeal to seek a declaration that it be declared an unaffected unsecured creditor. That is not a ground of appeal but is rather a remedy. As the respondents argued, the designation of Resurgence as an affected unsecured creditor was part of the Plan. To declare it an unaffected unsecured creditor requires vacating the Plan. On every ground proposed by the applicant, it appears that the response of this Court can only be to either uphold or set aside the approval of the court below. Setting aside the approval is no longer possible since essential elements of the Plan have been implemented and are now irreversible. Thus, the applicant cannot be granted the remedy it seeks. No prospective benefit can accrue to the applicant even if it succeeded on appeal. The appeal, therefore, is moot.

DISCRETION TO HEAR MOOT APPEALS

33 Even if an appeal could provide no benefit to the applicants, should leave be granted?

34 In Borowski, supra, Sopinka, J. described the doctrine of mootness at 353. He said that, as an aspect of a general policy or practice, a court may decline to decide a case which raises merely a hypothetical or abstract questions and will apply the doctrine when the decision of the court will have no practical effect of resolving some controversy affecting the rights of parties.

35 After discussing the principles involved in deciding whether an issue was moot, Sopinka, J. continued at 358 to describe the second stage of the analysis by examining the basis upon which a court should exercise its discretion either to hear or decline to hear a moot appeal. He examined three underlying factors in the rationale for the exercise of discretion in departing from the usual practice. The first is the requirement of an adversarial context which helps guarantee that issues are well and fully argued when resolving legal disputes. He suggested the presence of collateral consequences may provide the necessary adversarial context. Second is the concern for judicial economy which requires that special circumstances exist in a case to make it worthwhile to apply scarce judicial resources to resolve it. Third is the need for the court to demonstrate a measure of awareness of its proper law-making function as the adjudicative branch in the political framework. Judgments in the absence of a dispute may be viewed as intruding into the role of the legislative branch. He concluded at 363:

In exercising its discretion in an appeal which is moot, the court should consider the extent to which each of the three basic rationalia for enforcement of the mootness doctrine is present. This is not to suggest that it is a mechanical process. The principles identified above may not all support the same conclusion. The presence of one or two of the factors may be overborne by the absence of the third and vice versa.

36 The third factor underlying the rationale does not apply in this case. As for the first criterion, the circumstances of this case do not reveal any collateral consequences, although, it may be assumed that the necessary adversarial context could be present. However, there are no special circumstances making it worthwhile for this Court to ration scarce judicial resources to the resolution of this dispute. This outweighs the other two factors in concluding that the mootness doctrine should be enforced.

38 I am supported in this conclusion by similar cases before the British Columbia Court of Appeal, Sparling v. Northwest Digital Ltd. (1991), 47 C.P.C. (2d) 124 and Galcor, supra.

39 In Sparling, a company sought to restructure its financial basis and called a special meeting of shareholders. A court order permitted the voting of certain shares at the shareholders' meeting. A director sought to appeal that order. On the basis of the initial order, the meeting was held, the shares were voted and some significant changes to the company occurred as a result. Hollinrake, J.A. for the court described these as substantial changes which are irreversible. He found that the appeal was moot because there was no longer a live controversy. After considering Borowski, he also concluded that the court should not exercise its discretion to depart from the usual practice of declining to hear moot appeals.

40 In Galcor, as stated earlier, an order authorizing the distribution of certain monies to limited partners was appealed. A stay was sought but the application was dismissed. An injunction to restrain the distribution of monies was also sought and refused. The monies were distributed. The B.C. Court of Appeal held there was no merit, no substance and no prospective benefit to the appellants nor could they find any merit in the argument that there would be a collateral advantage if the appeal were heard and allowed. None of the criteria in Borowski were of assistance as there was no issue of public importance and no precedent value to other cases. Gibbs, J.A. was of the opinion it would not be prudent to use judicial time to hear a moot case as the rationing of scarce judicial resources was of importance and concern to the court.

APPLICATION OF THE CRITERIA FOR LEAVE

42 In particular, the applicant has not established prima facie meritorious grounds. The issue in the proposed appeal must be whether the learned chambers judge erred in determining that the Plan was fair and reasonable. As discussed in Resurgence No. 1, regard must be given to the standard of review this Court would apply on appeal when considering a leave application. The applicant has been unable to point to an error on a question of law, or an overriding and palpable error in the findings of fact, or an error in the learned chambers judge's exercise of discretion.

43 Resurgence submits that serious and arguable grounds surround the following issues: (a) Should Resurgence be treated as an unaffected creditor under the Plan? and (b) Should the Plan have been sanctioned under s. 6 of the CCAA? The applicant cannot show that either issue is based on an appealable error.

44 On the second issue, the main argument of the applicant is that the learned chambers judge failed to appreciate that the vote in favour of the Plan was not fair. At bottom, most of the submissions Resurgence made on this issue are directed at the learned chambers judge's conclusion that shareholders and creditors of Canadian would not be better off in bankruptcy than under the Plan. To appeal this conclusion, based on the findings of fact and exercise of discretion, Resurgence must establish that it has a prima facie meritorious argument that the learned chambers judge's error was overriding and palpable, or created an unreasonable result. This, it has not done.

45 Resurgence also argues that the acceptance of the valuations given by the Monitor to certain assets, in particular, Canadian Regional Airlines Limited ("CRAL"), the pension surplus and the international routes was in error. The Monitor did not attribute value to these assets when it prepared the liquidation analysis. Resurgence argued that the learned chambers judge erred when she held that the Monitor was justified in making these omissions.

46 Resurgence argued that CRAL was worth as much as $260 million to Air Canada. The Monitor valued CRAL on a distressed sale basis. It assumed that without CAIL's national and international network to feed traffic and considering the negative publicity which the failure of CAIL would cause, CRAL would immediately stop operations.

47 The learned chambers judge found that there was no evidence of a potential purchaser for CRAL. She held that CRAL had a value to CAIL and could provide value of Air Canada, but this was attributable to CRAL's ability to feed traffic to and take traffic from the national and international service of CAIL. She held that the Monitor properly considered these factors. The $260 million dollar value was based on CRAL as a going concern which was a completely different scenario than a liquidation analysis. She accepted the liquidation analysis on the basis that if CAIL were to cease operations, CRAL would be obliged to do so as well and that would leave no going concern for Air Canada to acquire.

48 CRAL may have some value, but even assuming that, Resurgence has not shown that it has a prima facie meritorious argument that the learned chambers judge committed an overriding and palpable error in finding that the Monitor was justified in concluding CRAL would not have any value assuming a windup of CAIL. She found that there was no evidence of a market for CRAL as a going concern. Her preference for the liquidation analysis was a proper exercise of her discretion and cannot be said to have been unreasonable.

49 Resurgence also argued that the pension plan surplus must be given value and included in the liquidation analysis because the surplus may revert to the company depending upon the terms of the plan. There was some evidence that in the two pension plans, with assets over $2 billion, there may be a surplus of $40 million. The Monitor attributed no value because of concerns about contingent liabilities which made the true amount of any available surplus indefinite and also because of the uncertainty of the entitlement of Canadian to any such amount.

50 The learned chambers judge found that no basis had been established for any surplus being available to be withdrawn from an ongoing pension plan. She also found that the evidence showed the potential for significant contingencies. Upon termination of the plan, further reductions for contingent benefits payable in accordance with the plans, any wind up costs, contribution holidays and litigation costs would affect a determination of whether there was a true surplus. The evidence before the learned chambers judge included that of the unionized employees who expected to dispute all the calculations of the pension plan surplus and the entitlement to the surplus. The learned chambers judge observed also that the surplus could quickly disappear with relatively minor changes in the market value of the securities held or in the calculation of liabilities. She concluded that given all variables, the existence of any surplus was doubtful at best and held that ascribing a zero value was reasonable in the circumstances.

51 In addition to the evidence upon which the learned chambers judge based her conclusion, she is also supported by the case law which demonstrates that even if a pension surplus existed and was accessible, entitlement is a complex question: Schmidt v. Air Products of Canada Ltd., [1994] 2 S.C.R. 611 (S.C.C.).

52 Resurgence argued that the international routes of Canadian should have been treated as valuable assets. The Monitor took the position that the international routes were unassignable licences in control of the Government of Canada and not property rights to be treated as assets by the airlines. Resurgence argues that the Monitor's conclusion was wrong because there was evidence that the international routes had value. In December 1999, CAIL sold its Toronto - Tokyo route to Air Canada for $25 million. Resurgence also pointed to statements made by Canadian's former president and CEO in mid-1999 that the value of its international routes was $2 billion. It further noted that in the United States, where the government similarly grants licences to airlines for international routes, many are bought and sold.

53 The learned chambers judge found the evidence indicated that the $25 million paid for the Toronto-Tokyo route was not an amount derived from a valuation but was the amount CAIL needed for its cash flow requirements at the time of the transaction in order to survive. She found that the statements that CAIL's international routes were worth $2 billion reflected the amount CAIL needed to sustain liquidity without its international routes and was not the market value of what could realistically be obtained from an arm's length purchaser. She found there was no evidence of the existence of an arm's length purchaser. As the respondents pointed out, the Canadian market cannot be compared to the United States. Here in Canada, there is no other airline which would purchase international routes, except Air Canada. Air Canada argued that it is pure speculation to suggest it would have paid for the routes when it could have obtained the routes in any event if Canadian went into liquidation.

54 Even accepting Resurgence's argument that those assets should have been given some value, the applicant has not established a prima facie meritorious argument that the learned chambers judge was unreasonable to have accepted the valuations based on a liquidation analysis rather than a market value or going concern analysis nor that she lacked any evidence upon which to base her conclusions. She found that the evidence was overwhelming that all other options had been exhausted and have resulted in failure. As described above, she had evidence upon which to accept the Monitor's valuations of the disputed assets. It is not the role of this Court to review the evidence and substitute its opinion for that of the learned chambers judge. She properly exercised her discretion and she had evidence upon which to support her conclusions. The applicant, therefore, has not established that its appeal is prima facie meritorious.

55 On the first issue, Resurgence argues that it should be an unaffected creditor to pursue its oppression remedy. As discussed above, the oppression remedy cannot be considered outside the context of the CCAA proceedings. The learned chambers judge concluded that the complaints of Resurgence were the result of the insolvency of Canadian and not from any oppressive conduct. The applicant has not established any prima facie error committed by the learned chambers judge in reaching that conclusion.

56 Thus, were this appeal not moot, leave would not be granted as the applicant has not met the threshold for leave to appeal.

CONCLUSION

57 The application for leave to appeal is dismissed because it is moot, and in any event, no serious and arguable grounds have been established upon which to found the basis for granting leave.

The Initial Order was made in December 2009 and stayed the existing Laneville action against the corporation. 100 per cent of affected creditors voted in favour of the plan, which the Corporation would have been unable to carry on without, and the Sanction Order was made. In the Laneville action, the shareholders alleged the corporation, directors and officers were liable for negligence, misrepresentation and oppression. The plaintiffs sought to continue the Laneville action against the directors. After the Sanction Order was made, the Love action was commenced by shareholders against the directors, officers and Corporation's underwriters and claimed negligence and failure to disclose transactions.

HELD: Motions allowed. Cross-motion dismissed. The release contained in the Sanction Order clearly permitted only those claims against directors that were contemplated by s. 5.1(2). These claims were not the type of claims contemplated by s. 5.1(2). It would be inconsistent with the CCAA to allow the plaintiffs to proceed with their oppression claim against the directors for acts or omissions undertaken in the Corporation's name prior to the Initial Order being made. The plaintiffs did not oppose the Sanction Order, so took their chances that the order would permit their claim to proceed. Allowing the claim to proceed would permit an inappropriate sort of priority for unsecured creditors. The claims against the directors in both actions were enjoined. Protection for the underwriters was not discussed when the Sanction Order was approved, but s. 5.1(2) was to be read narrowly to ensure to objectives of the CCAA. Furthermore, s. 5.1(2) could not be used to create a cause of action that would otherwise require court approval and leave. The plaintiffs had plenty of opportunity to seek leave to commence a derivative action but never did. The terms of the release in the Sanction Order deprived the underwriters of any indemnity they would otherwise be entitled to from the Corporation. The claim against the underwriters was struck in negligence and misrepresentation. Had the plaintiffs claimed and provided full particulars of fraud, such a claim may have survived as the terms of the release did not extend to fraud. The plaintiffs' motion to vary the terms of the Sanction Order was dismissed. It would be inappropriate to vary an order that was relied on by all parties and approved by all affected creditors.

REASONS FOR DECISION

1 C.L. CAMPBELL J.:-- Two motions were heard together: the first by former directors and officers of Allen-Vanguard to enforce the terms of a Sanction Order, which the directors and officers say release them as well as Allen-Vanguard from all claims except those specifically provided for in section 5.1(2) of the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended (the "CCAA.") In addition, the former directors assert that the claims of the Plaintiffs in two proposed Class Actions are not sustainable against them in law under s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA.

2 The second motion by the Underwriters of Allen-Vanguard seeks to dismiss or stay the action brought against the Underwriters by shareholders in a proposed Class Action.

3 A cross-motion brought by Plaintiffs in the two proposed Class Actions seeks, if required, variation of the terms contained in the Sanction Order granted December 16, 2009, to permit the Class Actions to proceed.

4 By way of an endorsement dated February 9, 2011, the Court sought further information from the parties with respect to the factual circumstances that surrounded the agreement that was embodied in the terms of the Sanction Order. That information has been provided and will be referred to later in these Reasons.

5 The claims that the directors who are the moving parties seek to effectively enjoin are those brought in two Class Actions (hereinafter the "Laneville action" and the "Love action"), wherein former shareholders seek damages against directors, officers and Underwriters based on alleged misrepresentation to shareholders by the Defendants about the effect on Allen-Vanguard of its purchase of another company in 2007.

Background

6 As of December 2009, Allen-Vanguard was insolvent. An Application was made on December 9 for an Initial Order under the CCAA, appointment of a Monitor and a Plan Filing and Meeting Order. The effect of the Initial Order among other matters stayed the existing Class proceeding.

7 The circumstances that surrounded the Plan Filing/Meeting Order, the Court was advised, were necessary to avoid a bankruptcy. The subsequent vote on December 9, 2010 was approved in favour of the Plan by 100% of affected creditors.

8 The circumstances that surrounded the December 9, 2010 Application and Order were a variation on a CCAA process that has come to be known as a "pre-packaged" Application. The secured creditors agreed to a restructuring of their secured debt in circumstances involving a going concern sale of assets where, had a bankruptcy ensued, there would have been no recovery for creditors or shareholders beyond very incomplete recovery for those secured creditors.

9 The First Report of the then proposed Monitor, Deloitte and Touche, in support of the Initial Order, outlined the transaction that had been proposed to all creditors as early as September 2009, posted on SEDAR and to which (apart from the question of releases) no party was opposed on December 9.

10 The Plan provided for the Secured Lenders foregoing a portion of their existing debt and fees, converting the remainder of the existing debt into a multi-year restructured term loan with terms more favourable to the Company and a new revolving credit facility.

11 The Court accepted the opinion of Deloitte & Touche that without the proposed transaction, the Company would likely not be able to meet its financial obligations as they became due and would likely be unable to carry on the business beyond the very short-term, which would then necessitate liquidation.

12 The conclusion by Deloitte & Touche, accepted by the Court, was that the restructuring process in the Plan maximized the value of the Company for the benefit of all stakeholders and represented the best offer from that process.

13 The alternative faced by the Company was that of a forced liquidation, which as estimated by the Monitor would result in a shortfall to secured lenders in excess of $100 million.

The Laneville Action

14 The proposed Class Action Plaintiff in the Laneville action issued on October 9, 2009 a Statement of Claim dated November 26, 2009, which sought appointment on behalf of a Representative Plaintiff and for a class of Allen-Vanguard shareholders who allege that Allen-Vanguard Corporation and its directors and officers are liable for various misrepresentations, negligence and oppression.

15 The Statement of Claim detailed a transaction that occurred in 2007 for which the Class Plaintiffs claim the directors and officers failed to properly value and account for in the financial statements of Allen-Vanguard, when Allen-Vanguard purchased all of the shares of a private corporation called Mid-Eng Systems Inc.

16 In addition, the Class Plaintiff claims damages for negligent misrepresentation not only under the common law but as well under s. 138.3 of the Ontario Securities Act in connection with the same transaction.

17 The only creditor objection to the Plan taken at the time of the Initial Order was from counsel for the Proposed Class Plaintiff in the Laneville action, who sought an adjournment of the vote based on the wording of the proposed release terms.

18 The adjournment of the vote was not granted given the financial fragility of Allen-Vanguard, and the sanction hearing, which was to deal with the wording of the proposed release terms, was set for December 16, 2009.

19 The Second Report of the Monitor, dated December 10, 2010, advised the Court of the terms of the release and injunctions that had been negotiated, the terms of which were put forward for approval on an unopposed basis. No objection was taken at the sanction hearing by counsel for the Class Plaintiff and no amendment to the Release portion of the Sanction Order sought. Whatever had been negotiated between the parties came before the Court on an unopposed basis. Counsel for the Class Action Plaintiffs and for the Defendant directors had input into and agreed to the wording.

20 The Court has been advised that by agreement of counsel, the wording of the Release was negotiated by the parties with the recognition that there would likely remain an issue on which the Court would have to rule. That issue is now the subject of the first motion and the cross motion. I have been advised as a result of the inquiry of February 9, 2011 and what is now obvious as a result of the recent correspondence (including an affidavit sworn June 30, 2011 and objected to) is that Plaintiffs' counsel in the Laneville action and counsel for the directors had quite different views in respect of the kinds of claims that could be included in s. 5.1(2).

21 As I now understand it, counsel for the Allen-Vanguard Corporation made no representation or agreement that the claims in the Laneville action were within those permitted by s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA.

22 Counsel for the Plaintiff in the Laneville action believe that the language in the Sanction Order preserves the claims in both the Laneville action and the Love action, including the claims against the Underwriters. It is submitted by the Plaintiff that the jurisprudence in respect of s. 5.1(2) permits not only claims against directors but as well officers to the extent there is insurance coverage, and that the Plaintiffs' position is consistent with the jurisprudence under s. 5.1(2).

23 Counsel for the Directors and for Underwriters submit that counsel for the Plaintiff knew or ought to have known at the time they agreed to the language of the Plan of Arrangement and the draft Sanction Order that the claims asserted against the Directors and Officers of Allen-Vanguard might nevertheless fail to meet one of the exceptions set out in s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA.

24 In the result, the issue of what was or was not agreed to as part of the Sanction Order comes down to the question of whether or not the wording of s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA, read in context of statutory interpretation, is sufficient to permit continuance of claims in the Laneville and Love actions.

25 As reported by the Monitor in the First Report, the Plan contemplated two releases: a General Release and an Equity Claims Release, both of which had been contemplated in the proposed Plan.

Neither the Equity Claims Release nor the General Release was intended to release or deal with or affect in any respect claims under ss. 5.1(1), (2) and (3) of the CCAA, which read:

5.1(1) a compromise or arrangement made in respect of a debtor company may include in its terms provision for the compromise of claims against directors of the company that arose before the commencement of proceedings under this Act and that relate to the obligations of the company where the directors are by law liable in their capacity as directors for the payment of such obligations.

5.1(2) A provision for the compromise of claims against directors may not include claims that

- (a) relate to contractual rights of one or more creditors; or
- (b) are based on allegations of misrepresentations made by directors to creditors or of wrongful or oppressed conduct of directors.

5.1(3) the court may declare that a claim against directors shall not be compromised if it is satisfied that the compromise would not be fair and reasonable in the circumstances.

26 The Monitor in its Second Report remarked as follows:

- 28. The injunctions provided in the Plan are limited by section 5.1(2) of the CCAA. The injunctions barring any person from commencing, continuing or pursuing any proceeding on or after the Effective Time for a claim that such person may have against the Company or any current or former officer of the Company of the type referred to in subsection 5.1(2) of the CCAA ... but permit any such subsection 5.1(2) claim to proceed against a current or former director of the company except that any such claim against a current or former director of the company is permitted recourse, and sole recourse, to the Company's insurance policies in respect of its current and former directors. The estimated value of any coverage under such insurance is $30 million as per the Luxton Affidavit.
- 29. The Monitor is aware of at least one group of stakeholders affected and by the Supplemental Injunction, being a group of current and former shareholders of the Company that have served a Notice of Action and Statement of Claim on the Company seeking approximately $80 million in damages from the Company and its directors and officers, as further described in the monitors First Report. As stated above the terms of the Supplemental Injunction would permit this claim to survive against the current and former directors of the Company with recourse limited to the Companies insurance as referenced above."

27 The Releases and Sanctions are contained in the language of the Sanction Order. A summary of the provisions with paragraph references to the Sanction Order is as follows:

22. Releases are essential to the Plan
23. All Persons give full release to each of the Released Parties including contribution and indemnity but directors not released in respect of any claim of the kind referred to in section 5.1(2) of the CCAA.
24. Release of Applicant and current and former directors provided that nothing therein releases a director or current or former officer in respect of any claim of the kind referred to in section 5.1(2) of the CCAA.
25. All Persons enjoined and estopped from commencing or continuing actions with the exception of any claim against the directors of the kind referred to in section 5.1(2) of the CCAA..
26. Injunction and bar with respect to section 5.1(2) against the applicant ... and that the sole recourse for any claims against a current or former director or officer of the Applicant Limited to any recoveries from the Applicants insurance policies in respect of current or former directors and officers
27. Laneville Action dismissed as against the Applicant without prejudice to discovery rights against representative of the Applicant.

The Love Action

28 On February 8, 2010, after the Sanction Order had been made, another Proposed Representative Plaintiff, Gordon Love, commenced a second action and is represented by the same counsel as in the Laneville action. The Statement of Claim, dated March 10, 2010 against the directors and officers of Allen-Vanguard Corporation, includes claims against Cannacord Financial Ltd (and others collectively referred to as "Underwriters.")

29 An Amended Statement of Claim dated August 10, 2010 asserts in the Love action claims for negligence against directors, officers and Underwriters, all arising out of the transaction and alleged failure to properly disclose the transaction in the financial statements and transaction referred to in paragraph 15 above in respect of a 2007 acquisition.

Issues

1. Do the Laneville action and the Love action and their proposed class claims fall within those claims non-exempt under s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA?
2. Does the language of the Release contained in the Sanction Order apart from s. 5.1(2) permit either the Laneville or Love actions, including that against Underwriters, to continue?
3. Is there any basis on which the Court could or should vary the terms of the Release section of the Sanction Order?

30 Having reviewed the language of the Releases contained in the Sanction Order, I am satisfied that the only basis that the release language permits claims as against the directors is if they are those contemplated in s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA not to be released.

31 The object of the CCAA is to facilitate the restructuring of an insolvent corporation. In order to effect restructuring, a compromise of creditors' claims is almost inevitably an essential ingredient of a Plan under the CCAA.

32 The Plan, to be effective and to obtain Court approval, requires consensus and agreement by various classes of creditors. Many of the issues that arise before a Plan is approved by the Court involve a contestation between creditor groups as to how they should be classified and what extent of what group approval should be appropriately required. No motion was brought to seek to lift the stay in respect of actions provided for in the Initial Order.

33 In this case, no creditor came forward to oppose approval of the Plan, including the terms of the release language as set out in the Sanction Order. The effect of a Sanction Order is to create a contract between creditors. (See Canadian Red Cross Society (2002), 35 C.B.R. (4th) 43 (Ont. S.C.J.)).

34 The most significant feature of the CCAA Applications that have come before the Court in the last two or three years is that the negotiation has taken place to achieve consensus among creditors often before the Initial Order under the statute.

35 One can rightly understand the reluctance on the part of a provider of interim financing to continue to do so on an indefinite basis, when the approval process may be dragged out for days, weeks or months.

36 All secured creditors whose security continues to deteriorate during the period of negotiation will seek an early determination of the consensus necessary for approval of a Plan; otherwise, liquidation may be preferable.

37 Such consensus requires agreement among many stakeholders, including not just creditors but as well current and former directors and officers, many of whose continued cooperation is necessary and integral to a Plan's success.

38 To avoid the inequity that would result from creditor claims that were outstanding as against directors at the time of a CCAA application, s. 5.1(2) was amended in 1997 to its present form. As Hart J. noted in Re-Liberty Oil & Gas Ltd. 2002 ABQB 949 at paragraph 4, before the enactment of this section, the legislation provided for compromises of claims only against the petitioning company. The new section extends relief against directors of the petitioning company subject to exceptions.

39 It is appropriate to approach statutory interpretation with the assumption that meaning is to be accorded to each of the words used in the provision within the overall purpose of the CCAA. The absence of other words can also be purposeful.

40 The CCAA has been said to be a skeletal statute designed to give flexibility and expediency in the ability of the company, with the concurrence of its creditors, to accomplish a restructuring of its debt in the avoidance of liquidation or bankruptcy, and does not contain a comprehensive code that lays out all that is permitted or barred. (See ATB Financial v. Metcalfe & Mansfield Alternative Investments 11 Corp., 2008 ONCA 587 per Blair J.A. para. 44.)

41 Since the hearing in this matter, the Supreme Court of Canada has rendered a decision in Century Services Inc. v. Canada (Attorney General) 2010 SCC 60, which endorses the broad principles of the CCAA and the discretion granted to the Court to effect a restructuring if possible or an orderly liquidation.

42 The case involved a contest between the deemed trust provisions of the Excise Tax Act and the CCAA. Madam Justice Deschamps, speaking for the majority, noted the need for clarity of the underlying purpose with respect to the CCAA.

43 Paragraphs 12 to 14, 17, 58-59 and 63 of that decision read as follows:

12. Insolvency is the factual situation that arises when a debtor is unable to pay creditors (see generally, R.J. Wood, Bankruptcy and Insolvency Law (2009), at p. 16). Certain legal proceedings become available upon insolvency, which typically allow a debtor to obtain a court order staying its creditors' enforcement actions and attempt to obtain a binding compromise with creditors to adjust the payment conditions to something more realistic. Alternatively, the debtor's assets may be liquidated and debts paid from the proceeds according to statutory priority rules. The former is usually referred to as reorganization or restructuring while the latter is termed liquidation.
13. Canadian commercial insolvency law is not codified in one exhaustive statute. Instead, Parliament has enacted multiple insolvency statutes, the main one being the BIA. The BIA offers a self-contained legal regime providing for both reorganization and liquidation. Although bankruptcy legislation has a long history, the BIA itself is a fairly recent statute -- it was enacted in 1992. It is characterized by a rules-based approach to proceedings. The BIA is available to insolvent debtors owing $1000 or more, regardless of whether they are natural or legal persons. It contains mechanisms for debtors to make proposals to their creditors for the adjustment of debts. If a proposal fails, the BIA contains a bridge to bankruptcy whereby the debtor's assets are liquidated and the proceeds paid to creditors in accordance with the statutory scheme of distribution.
14. Access to the CCAA is more restrictive. A debtor must be a company with liabilities in excess of $5 million. Unlike the BIA, the CCAA contains no provisions for liquidation of a debtor's assets if reorganization fails. There are three ways of exiting CCAA proceedings. The best outcome is achieved when the stay of proceedings provides the debtor with some breathing space during which solvency is restored and the CCAA process terminates without reorganization being needed. The second most desirable outcome occurs when the debtor's compromise or arrangement is accepted by its creditors and the reorganized company emerges from the CCAA proceedings as a going concern. Lastly, if the compromise or arrangement fails, either the company or its creditors usually seek to have the debtor's assets liquidated under the applicable provisions of the BIA or to place the debtor into receivership. As discussed in greater detail below, the key difference between the reorganization regimes under the BIA and the CCAA is that the latter offers a more flexible mechanism with greater judicial discretion, making it more responsive to complex reorganizations.

17. Parliament understood when adopting the CCAA that liquidation of an insolvent company was harmful for most of those it affected -- notably creditors and employees -- and that a workout which allowed the company to survive was optimal (Sarraf, Creditor Rights, at pp. 13-15).

58. CCAA decisions are often based on discretionary grants of jurisdiction. The incremental exercise of judicial discretion in commercial courts under conditions one practitioner aptly describes as "the hothouse of real-time litigation" has been the primary method by which the CCAA has been adapted and has evolved to meet contemporary business and social needs (see Jones, at p. 484).
59. Judicial discretion must of course be exercised in furtherance of the CCAA's purposes. The remedial purpose I referred to in the historical overview of the Act is recognized over and over again in the jurisprudence. To cite one early example:

The legislation is remedial in the purest sense in that it provides a means whereby the devastating social and economic effects of bankruptcy or creditor initiated termination of ongoing business operations can be avoided while a court-supervised attempt to reorganize the financial affairs

Elan Corp. v. Comiskey reflex, (1990), 41 O.A.C. 282, at para. 57, per Doherty J.A., dissenting.)

63. Judicial innovation during CCAA proceedings has not been without controversy. At least two questions it raises are directly relevant to the case at bar: (1) what are the sources of a court's authority during CCAA proceedings? (2) what are the limits of this authority?

44 I have quoted from the above decision at length to stress the nature of the discretion that is inherent in the CCAA statute to allow the Court to fashion a structure or process to best benefit stakeholders. Consistent with that purpose and as a matter of statutory interpretation, it is appropriate to look at the interpretation of s. 5.1(1) and (2) of the CCAA. Section 5.1(1) deals with "obligations of the company where the directors are by law liable in their capacity as directors for the payment of such obligations."

45 A Plan can therefore provide for the compromise of claims against directors where a director may in law be liable for the payment of a company's obligation with the exceptions set out in s. 5.1(2).

46 In my view, the best that can be said of s. 5 is that it is not as clearly drafted as it might have been.

47 It is noteworthy that in the first line of s. 5.1(2), the only claims that may not be excluded in a compromise are those against "directors." Claims that can be excluded in a compromise include those against "officers" and the "company" itself. Why is this the case? One reason undoubtedly is the personal liability that directors face under both Federal and Provincial legislation, or the personal undertaking of a director to a creditor such as a personal guarantee. (See C.I.T. Financial v Lambert 2005 BCSC 1779.)

48 By way of example, s. 131(1) of the OBCA provides that directors are made personally liable for unpaid wages of the corporation's employees to a maximum of six months. Reading through s. 5.1(1) and (2), there is nothing in the wording that would prevent the compromise of such claims against officers or the company itself, but not as against directors. The CCAA does not contain a definition of the word "creditor" but does of the terms "secured creditor," "unsecured creditor" and "shareholder." It would seem that for the purposes of the CCAA and in particular s. 5.1(2), a creditor would include both a secured creditor and an unsecured creditor, but would not include a shareholder.

49 Section 5.1(2) refers only to creditors and not shareholders as prospective claimants, whether in contract, tort or statutory oppression.

50 In this case, the claims by the Class Action Plaintiffs are on behalf of shareholders against directors, since the effect of the CCAA stayed the action against the company Allen-Vanguard. The claims arise with respect to a 2007 transaction and the pre-filing financial statements, but the claims do not involve officers or the company, only directors.

51 While framed in negligence, the claims in these actions seek to involve the remedy of oppression under the OBCA to enlist the broad scope of remedy possible under that statute. However, it is only in respect of unpaid obligations of the company and other contract-type claims where the law imposes liability on the Defendant directors that invokes the exception in s. 5.1(2). It is noteworthy that the word "negligence" does not appear in the section at all.

52 In their essence, the claims in the two actions allege a failure on the part of the directors in 2007 and the company to enter into a provident transaction and the transaction represented a misrepresentation to shareholders of the value of the transaction causing a reduction in shareholder value. Such claims are not of the same kind as those contemplated in section 5.1(1). They do not relate to "obligations of the company where the directors are by law liable."

53 The claims relate to transactions that were well in advance of the Initial CCAA Order. In Re Canadian Airlines Corp. 2000 ABQB 442 (leave refused to ABCA, [2000] A.J. No. 1028, and to SCC, [2001] S.C.C.A. No. 60), it was held that claims against the directors should only be released if they arose prior to the date of the CCAA proceeding.

54 I agree that the oppression remedy is expansive in scope and empowers the Court to make determinations and orders that can have a direct and even a radical impact on the internal management and status of a corporation, including even an order winding up the corporation. (See 820099 Ontario Inc. v. Harold E. Ballard Ltd. (1991), 3 B.L.R. (2d) 113 (Ont. Div. Ct.) and Incorporated Broadcasters Ltd. v. CanWest Global, [2001] O.J. No. 4882, 2001 CanLII 28395 (Ont. S.C.) at paragraphs 101-105.) Oppression as it occurs within s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA must be read within the context of the section itself.

55 The claims in the Love and Laneville actions are in negligence and no other remedy is sought apart from a claim for damages and access to whatever insurance may be available to respond to claims against directors and officers. There is nothing before the Court to suggest that the insurers, assuming there is a valid policy, are aware of the restriction on remedy.

56 I see no basis from the pleadings in this action for which it would be appropriate to consider the scope of relief that might otherwise apply under the oppression remedy section of the OBCA. Counsel for the Plaintiffs in the Proposed Class Actions cannot bolster their position by limiting recovery to the applicable Directors and Officers Insurance, when there is no basis for the claim at all, either under the language of the Release or the meaning to be accorded to s. 5.1(2).

57 In BCE Inc. v. 1976 Debentureholders, [2008] 3 S.C.R. 560, the Supreme Court of Canada commented on the expectations of stakeholders including but not limited to shareholders, in considering a Plan of Arrangement in the context of an oppression claim. Part of the test for "oppression" referred to in that decision is an expectation on the part of the claimant to be "treated in a certain way and that failure to meet the expectation involved unfair conduct."

58 I fail to understand how the expectation of one or more shareholder groups can be any different with respect to the impugned transaction than those of creditors or indeed the company itself vis-à-vis the directors, particularly since neither the officers nor the company itself is pursued.

59 The Sanction Order in this case by its terms provided release of the claims now sought to be pursued. By the terms of the Sanction Order, the only reasonable expectation of stakeholders would be that unless specifically authorized by the Order, any claim against directors would be barred. Potential claims against directors were not assigned to class plaintiffs nor was direction sought by any party about the effect of s. 5.1 prior to the issuance of the Order. Given the issue now before the Court and the disagreement of the parties, perhaps the better practice would have been to advise the Court of the issue and "carve" it out of the Plan.

60 The Court is put in a difficult position when asked in a very constrained timeframe to approve the restructuring with releases. It should certainly not be the expectation that in every instance, releases of the type here should be granted as a matter of course. Those with unpaid obligations of the company may assert that directors are liable if they fail to fulfill the company's obligation when they are legally bound to do so.

61 I am of the view that third-party releases in particular should be the exception rather than the rule. There may very well be instances in which the releases are not integral or necessary to the restructuring and should not be approved. That was not suggested in the approval process here. There was no evidence presented at the time of the granting of the Sanction Order to suggest that directors were not important to the restructuring. Indeed, the only evidence before the Court was to the contrary: that the directors were integral to the Plan's success.

62 In this case, the putative Plaintiffs did not oppose the granting of the Sanction Order and in effect took their chances that the Order might after the fact permit the limited claim referred to in the Monitor's Report.

63 All of the other stakeholders, including the secured creditors, directors, officers and the Applicant Company, approved the form of Order.

64 It is certainly speculative at this time to consider, had the form of Order proposed been objected to, to what extent the Court would have any jurisdiction to grant the language now sought by the Plaintiffs, without rejecting the Plan entirely.

65 The duty of directors is first and foremost to the company itself. The oppression remedy does not in my view permit one group (shareholders) to claim oppression when other stakeholders, for example employees or creditors or indeed the company itself, have allegedly suffered a loss that results in insolvency and are unable to seek redress and still preserve restructuring.

66 To vary or amend the Sanction Order now to permit the claims to continue might at the very least require the presence and concurrence of all of those who supported the form of Order in the first place.

67 Counsel for the proposed Plaintiffs refer to several decisions, which they urged support the proposition that shareholder actions for oppression against directors are permitted under s. 5.1(2) of the CCA.

68 Each of those decisions, while fact-specific, in my view is consistent with a narrow range of actions warranted for a shareholder against the director under the exception to s. 5.1(2).

69 In Re-Liberty Oil & Gas Ltd., 2002 ABQB 949, where the action did proceed, the allegation involved a personal representation, indeed a fraudulent one, by the defendant director to two individuals who happened to be shareholders. The complained acts were not those of the company (as here), but rather personal and direct as between the director and shareholder. In other words, there was the proximity that one would expect in a tort situation.

70 In Worldwide Pork Corp., 2009 SKQB 414, the action was not permitted to proceed. At paragraphs 14 and 15 Justice Dawson said:

It must be remembered that the oppression remedy is not designed to settle every dispute of a corporation but only those that involve and abuse of the corporate system and for which a common-law remedy does not exist.

As well, the plaintiffs have pled that their claim is for damages, for loss of profits and loss of pay out dividends. There must be a causal connection between the alleged oppressive conduct and the loss claimed to be suffered by the plaintiffs. That is, there must be a causal nexus between the alleged conduct and the loss suffered by the plaintiffs. There is no pleading which sets out how the alleged loss of profit or dividends resulted from the conduct alleged to be oppressive. But in any event the losses claimed are losses as a result of Worldwide Pork not being profitable, that is, being unable to provide a return to shareholders for their investment. Such a loss cannot support an action for oppression since it comes with in the exception contained in section 5.1(2)(b) of the CCAA.

71 In Re-Blue Star Battery Systems International Corp. (2000), 10 B.L.R. (3d) 221, Farley J. of this Court dealt with a claim very much like that considered by the Supreme Court of Canada in Century Services, supra, as it involved G.S.T. At paragraph 12, he said

Thus it appears to me that RevCan, not having put itself into position where it could (and did) perfect its derivative claims as set out in section 323(2)(a) of the Excise Tax Act never had a claim against the directors which could survive the sanction of the Plan vis-à-vis the Applicants. Nothing that this Court could do at the present time (that is, at the time when considering the CCAA sanctioned motion) could crystallize a RevCan claim against the directors. RevCan would have to take additional multiple steps over some period of time to establish a claim against the directors."

72 Farley J. went on to discuss the hypothetical of a claim in oppression against the directors as provided for in s. 5.1(2) in the context where the creditor had put the directors on notice of the promise of the company to pay the tax.

73 The argument of the Proposed Plaintiffs here is that "oppressive conduct" is not to be carved out, but that wrongful conduct that involves directors, even though the action as against the company cannot continue, it can continue against the directors.

74 What in my view is consistent with the decisions in the three cases mentioned and in the Québec case Papiers Gaspésia 2006 QCCS 1460 (CanLII) and with the interpretation of s. 5.1(2) is that the actions of the directors toward persons who may be regarded as creditors, and may in this context include a shareholder, are based on a direct relationship when a director takes on an obligation to make a payment that would otherwise be the obligation of the company and promises to do so or is obliged to do so by legislation. In most cases this will be a post-filing obligation. In other words, a promise by a director directly to a creditor stakeholder that is made following a CCAA Initial Order may attract liability to the director and should not be released.

75 It would be inconsistent with the scheme of the CCAA to allow all claims in which shareholders claim oppression to proceed against directors for acts or omissions that they did in the name of the company prior to the Initial Order. There would be little if any incentive to directors to pursue restructuring if they were going to be so exposed. On the other hand, personal undertakings or obligations of directors made during the CCAA process should not easily be released.

76 To permit the kind of claims as the Proposed Plaintiffs would see them would create a priority to that class of unsecured creditors that properly should belong to the creditors as a group. No leave to continue the Class action was sought before the Sanction Order was granted and even on this motion no submission was put forward for the exercise of discretion under section 5.1(3).

77 None of the cases referred to in argument dealing with s. 5.1(2) squarely deals with the issue raised here -- that the section was intended to related to post-filing claims or personal undertakings of directors to creditors in connection with the proposed plan prior to filing.

78 The final argument on behalf of Class Plaintiffs is that to deny the claim of shareholders as against directors would only benefit their insurers, since the Class Plaintiffs have agreed to limit any recovery to the amount of the insurance. I fail to see how this advances the position of the Proposed Plaintiffs. No information was put before the Court about the particulars of the insurance. The Court has no information to know whether or not the insurers even know of this issue.

79 If the claim does not lie as against the directors in the first place under s. 5.1(2), the limitation of the claim as against the potentially available insurance does not advance the case of the class of Plaintiffs.

80 There would be little meaning left to s. 5.1 if all claims of negligence and wrongful conduct against directors for pre-filing activity could not be released and no need for the discretion provided for in s. 5.1(3) for Court to override this compromise as not being fair or reasonable. As noted above in the passages from the Century Services case, the purpose of the CCAA and the discretion granted to the Court are to permit restructuring to work, not create new causes of action.

81 The concern of the Court, which necessitated the further inquiry, was that the language of the Sanction Order might imply on the part of the Applicant and directors who had knowledge of the particulars of the claim that the facts could give rise to a s. 5.1(2) claim. I am satisfied based on the further information provided that no such admission is to be implied.

82 The relief sought by the directors is therefore granted.

Underwriters

83 Underwriters acted on share and warrant offerings of Allen-Vanguard in September 2007 and certified a related prospectus. The Love Class Action was commenced in February 2010 and the proposed Representative Plaintiff claims damages against Underwriters under s. 130 of the Securities Act (Ontario) and also makes claims on the basis of negligence, unjust enrichment and waiver of tort.

84 Underwriters rely on the provisions of the releases granted by the Sanction Order and in particular the claims against the Applicant Company Allen-Vanguard. As well, Underwriters rely on the definition of "Equity Claims" in the Sanction Order and submit that because the provisions of the Order in paragraph 26(ii) bar certain claims against third parties who might claim contribution and indemnity against the restructured company, they should be entitled to the benefit of that provision.

85 The response of the proposed Class Plaintiffs in the Love litigation is that the claim against Underwriters is based on the negligence, fraud or wilful misconduct of Underwriters. It is submitted that Underwriters are not entitled to indemnity as against Allen-Vanguard for the several negligence of Underwriters, either at law or under s. 130 of the Securities Act.

86 The proposed Class Plaintiff submits that given the nature of the claim as against Underwriters, Underwriters would never have had a right to an indemnity for the claims asserted in the Love Action and therefore there were no such claims to be released.

87 It is submitted that Underwriters bargained any possible indemnity away by the terms of their contract with Allen-Vanguard in September 2007, and that even if they had the benefit of an indemnity, all that was required for the Plan's success was that Alan-Vanguard be protected from Underwriters, not that Mr. Love's claims against Underwriters be eliminated.

88 Counsel for the Plaintiff in the Love Action also urges that Underwriters did not have the right of indemnity as at the time of the Initial Order, and the Sanction Order bars any indemnity that they might otherwise have had and there is nothing in the language of either Order to preclude the claim of the Class Plaintiff against Underwriters limited to Underwriters' negligence.

89 Finally, it is submitted that since Underwriters did not "bring anything to the table" in respect of the restructuring, there is no basis on which the Court should vary the Sanction Order to now provide the indemnity that the Order fails to provide.

90 In the alternative, the Class Plaintiffs suggest that the Sanction Order be clarified, if necessary, to clearly provide the right of the Class Plaintiff to proceed against Underwriters.

91 In my view, there is a distinction to be made between the claim as against the directors and that against Underwriters, since in the case as against the directors, the parties appear to have bargained that if the claim could be brought under s. 5.1(2), it could proceed. That consideration was known to the parties who negotiated and agreed on the form of the Sanction Order and that was the only claim not otherwise covered by the Release terms.

92 In the case of Underwriters, there was nothing to suggest that any discussion or negotiation took place with respect to specific protection for Underwriters or the allowance of a claim against Underwriters at the time that the Sanction Order was approved.

93 This is another reason why in my view s. 5.1(2) of the CCAA should be read narrowly with respect to pre-filing claims or claims that relate to pre-filing activity.

94 The Ontario Business Corporations Act, R.S.O. 1990 c. B. 16 ("OBCA") contains a statutory process for that kind of action and remedy sought by the Class Plaintiffs in both actions. Section 246(1) reads as follows:

246.(1) Subject to subsection (2), a complainant may apply to the court for leave to bring an action in the name and on behalf of a corporation or any of its subsidiaries, or intervene in an action to which any such body corporate is a party, for the purpose of prosecuting, defending or discontinuing the action on behalf of the body corporate.

95 The Supreme Court of Canada dealt with the issue of collective shareholder claims versus claims that are those of the corporation itself in Hercules Management Ltd. et al. v. Ernst & Young, 1997 CanLII 345, [1997] 2 S.C.R. 165. The case involved a claim by shareholders of the corporation against its auditors for an alleged negligence in preparation of financial statements of the corporation. Paragraph 48 of the reasons refers to and adopts a statement of Farley J. in Roman Corp. v Peat Marwick Thorne (1992), 11 O.R. (3d) 248 (Gen. Div.) at p. 260.

As a matter of law the only purpose for which shareholders receive an auditor's report is to provide the shareholders with information for the purpose of overseeing the management and affairs of the corporation and not for the purpose of guiding personal investment decisions or personal speculation with a view to profit.

96 The plaintiffs in Hercules asserted reliance on financial statements in monitoring the value of their equity and then due to auditors' negligence, they failed to extract it before the financial demise of the company.

97 The Supreme Court, in assessing the claim, referred at paragraph 59 to the rule in Foss v. Harbottle, 67 E.R. 189:

59. The rule in Foss v. Harbottle provides that individual shareholders have no cause of action in law for any wrongs done to the corporation and that if an action is to be brought in respect of such losses, it must be brought either by the corporation itself (through management) or by way of a derivative action. The legal rationale behind the rule was eloquently set out by the English Court of Appeal in Prudential Assurance Co. v. Newman Industries Ltd. (No. 2), [1982] 1 All E.R. 354, at p. 367, as follows:

The rule [in Foss v. Harbottle] is the consequence of the fact that a corporation is a separate legal entity. Other consequences are limited liability and limited rights. The company is liable for its contracts and torts; the shareholder has no such liability. The company acquires causes of action for breaches of contract and for torts which damage the company. No cause of action vests in the shareholder. When the shareholder acquires a share he accepts the fact that the value of his investment follows the fortunes of the company and that he can only exercise his influence over the fortunes of the company by the exercise of his voting rights in general meeting. The law confers on him the right to ensure that the company observes the limitations of its memorandum of association and the right to ensure that other shareholders observe the rule, imposed on them by the articles of association. If it is right that the law has conferred or should in certain restricted circumstances confer further rights on a shareholder the scope and consequences of such further rights require careful consideration.

To these lucid comments, I would respectfully add that the rule is also sound from a policy perspective, inasmuch as it avoids the procedural hassle of a multiplicity of actions.

60. The manner in which the rule in Foss v. Harbottle, supra, operates with respect to the appellants' claims can thus be demonstrated. As I have already explained, the appellants allege that they were prevented from properly overseeing the management of the audited corporations because the respondents' audit reports painted a misleading picture of their financial state. They allege further that had they known the true situation, they would have intervened to avoid the eventuality of the corporations' going into receivership and the consequent loss of their equity. The difficulty with this submission, I have suggested, is that it fails to recognize that in supervising management, the shareholders must be seen to be acting as a body in respect of the corporation's interests rather than as individuals in respect of their own ends. In a manner of speaking, the shareholders assume what may be seen to be a "managerial role" when, as a collectivity, they oversee the activities of the directors and officers through resolutions adopted at shareholder meetings. In this capacity, they cannot properly be understood to be acting simply as individual holders of equity. Rather, their collective decisions are made in respect of the corporation itself. Any duty owed by auditors in respect of this aspect of the shareholders' functions, then, would be owed not to shareholders qua individuals, but rather to all shareholders as a group, acting in the interests of the corporation. And if the decisions taken by the collectivity of shareholders are in respect of the corporation's affairs, then the shareholders' reliance on negligently prepared audit reports in taking such decisions will result in a wrong to the corporation for which the shareholders cannot, as individuals, recover.
61. This line of reasoning finds support in Lord Bridge's comments in Caparo, [1980] 1 All E.R. 568, supra, at p. 580:

The shareholders of a company have a collective interest in the company's proper management and in so far as a negligent failure of the auditor to report accurately on the state of the company's finances deprives the shareholders of the opportunity to exercise their powers in general meeting to call the directors to book and to ensure that errors in management are corrected, the shareholders ought to be entitled to a remedy. But in practice no problem arises in this regard since the interest of the shareholders in the proper management of the company's affairs is indistinguishable from the interest of the company itself and any loss suffered by the shareholders ... will be recouped by a claim against the auditor in the name of the company, not by individual shareholders. [Emphasis in Supreme Court decision.]

It is also reflected in the decision of Farley J. in Roman I, supra, the facts of which were similar to those of the case at bar. In that case, the plaintiff shareholders brought an action against the defendant auditors alleging, inter alia, that the defendant's audit reports were negligently prepared. That negligence, the shareholders contended, prevented them from properly overseeing management which, in turn, led to the winding up of the corporation and a loss to the shareholders of their equity therein. Farley J. discussed the rule in Foss v. Harbottle and concluded that it operated so as to preclude the shareholders from bringing personal actions based on an alleged inability to supervise the conduct of management.

62. One final point should be made here. Referring to the case of Goldex Mines Ltd. v. Revill (1974), 7 O.R. (2d) 216 (C.A.), the appellants submit that where a shareholder has been directly and individually harmed, that shareholder may have a personal cause of action even though the corporation may also have a separate and distinct cause of action. Nothing in the foregoing paragraphs should be understood to detract from this principle. In finding that claims in respect of losses stemming from an alleged inability to oversee or supervise management are really derivative and not personal in nature, I have found only that shareholders cannot raise individual claims in respect of a wrong done to the corporation. Indeed, this is the limit of the rule in Foss v. Harbottle. Where, however, a separate and distinct claim (say, in tort) can be raised with respect to a wrong done to a shareholder qua individual, a personal action may well lie, assuming that all the requisite elements of a cause of action can be made out.

98 The policy of limiting indeterminate liability as in Hercules is consistent with the basis for the limitation of claims under s. 5.1(2) as set out above. In my view the words of s. 5.1(2) do not create a cause of action that would otherwise not exist except by leave of the Court. It simply provides an exception to what otherwise could be included in a release.

99 The release terms contained in the Sanction Order would deprive Underwriters from any claims for contribution or indemnity to which they would otherwise be entitled at law from the Company and its directors and officers should the actions of the Class Plaintiffs proceed.

100 This is just one further reason to support not just what is required for a derivative action but also what is required to be taken into consideration before the Court issues a Sanction Order in this case in effect on consent.

101 As noted above, what has come to be known as a "liquidating" CCAA application can provide problems not just for the parties but the Court itself. The presumption behind the timing of the Application in this case was that if not granted quickly, bankruptcy would have ensued with the inevitable loss of jobs, assets and creditor claims.

102 The Class Plaintiffs are taken to have known of the CCAA proposal as early as September 2009 and could have sought leave to commence a derivative action prior to or during the CCAA process. No such step was taken.

103 I am satisfied that it is appropriate in the circumstances to stay the claims as against Underwriters in negligence and misrepresentation.

104 The Claim against Underwriters also alleges fraud. If the only claim were in fraud and full particulars of alleged fraud were contained in the pleading, the claim might survive since the wording of the Release does not extend to fraud.

105 Apart from fraud, claims in negligence against Underwriters are caught by the terms of the Release. Arguably, the claims are those of the Company that are specifically released.

Variation of the Sanction Order

106 As noted above in reference to the decision in Canadian Red Cross, a Sanction Order in addition to being an Order of the Court and subject to the normal rules for variation thereof, represents an agreed contract between the creditors of an insolvent corporation.

107 The Class Plaintiffs in the Laneville action did not seek to lift the stay at the time of the Initial Order. The Class Plaintiff accepted the Release provisions which extend to Underwriters when the Sanctioned Order was granted.

108 Underwriters were released by the terms of the Sanction Order, and the Order, which was not appealed, represents a final determination of the rights of shareholders as against Underwriters.

109 As was mentioned above, in respect of the suggestion of variation of the Sanction Order to permit the claim as against the directors, I conclude that it is not appropriate to vary a Sanction Order after the fact. The reliance that parties place on the finality of a Sanction Order is such that it would only be in extraordinary circumstances of a clear mistake, operative misrepresentation or fraud that would permit variation without re-opening the whole process.

110 In Extreme Retail (Canada) Inc. v. Bank of Montréal, [2007] O.J. No. 3304 (Ont. S.J.) [Commercial List], Stinson J. held at paragraph 21 that an Approval and Vesting Order was a final determination of the rights of parties represented in that proceeding. Morawetz J. adopted those comments in Royal Bank Body Blue Inc., [2008] O.J. No. 1628, 2008 CanLII 19227 [Ont. S.C.], to the same effect at paragraphs 19 and 20. In my view the same principle applies to a Sanction Order.

111 I see nothing in the requests of either Underwriters or the Class Plaintiffs that would be appropriate to permit variation of the Sanction Order as each of them have proposed.

112 Should the Class Plaintiff in the Laneville action seek to pursue a claim against Underwriters limited alone in fraud, the action should be permitted to proceed subject to the Plaintiff persuading a judge that such a limited claim should be certified.

Conclusion

113 For the above reasons the motion by the directors will succeed to enjoin the claims as against them in both the Love and Laneville actions. The motion of Underwriters to strike is granted, and motions for variation of the Sanction Order of both Underwriters and the Class Plaintiffs are dismissed. Counsel may make written submissions on the issue of costs.

MEMORANDUM OF DECISION

WITTMANN J.A.:--

INTRODUCTION

1 This is an application for leave to appeal the decision of Paperny, J. made on May 12, 2000, pursuant to the Companies' Creditors Arrangement Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-36, as amended (CCAA). The applicant, Resurgence Asset Management LLC (Resurgence), is an unsecured creditor by virtue of its holding 58.2 per cent of U.S. $100,000,000.00 unsecured notes issued by Canadian Airlines Corporation (CAC)

2 CAC and Canadian Airlines International Ltd. (CAIL) (collectively Canadian) commenced proceedings under the CCAA on March 24, 2000.

3 A proposed Plan of Compromise and Arrangement (the Plan) has been filed in this matter regarding CAC and CAIL, pursuant to the CCAA.

4 The decision of Paperny, J. May 12, 2000 (the Decision) ordered, among other things, that the classification of creditors not be fragmented to exclude Air Canada as a separate class from Resurgence in terms of the unsecured creditors; that Air Canada should be entitled to vote on the Plan pursuant to s. 6 of the CCAA at the creditors' meeting to be held May 26, 2000; that there be no separation of unsecured creditors of CAC from unsecured creditors of CAIL for voting purposes; and that votes in respect of claims assigned to Air Canada, be recorded and tabulated separately, for the purpose of consideration in the application for court approval of the Plan (the Fairness Hearing).

LEAVE TO APPEAL UNDER THE CCAA

5 The section of the CCAA governing appeals to this Court is as follows:

13. Except in the Yukon Territory, any person dissatisfied with an order or a decision made under this Act may appeal therefrom on obtaining leave of the judge appealed from or of the court or a judge of the court to which the appeal lies and on such terms as to security and in other respects as the judge or court directs.

6 The criterion to be applied in an application for leave to appeal pursuant to the CCAA is not in dispute. The general criterion is embodied in the concept that there must be serious and arguable grounds that are of real and significant interest to the parties: Re Multitech Warehouse District (1995), 32 Alta. L.R. (3d) 62 at 63 (C.A.); Luscar Ltd. v. Smoky River Coal Ltd., [1999] A.J. No. 185 at para. 22 (C.A.); Re Blue Range Resource Corporation, [1999] A.J. No. 975; Re Blue Range Resource Corporation, [2000] A.J. No. 4; Re Blue Range Resource Corporation, [2000] A.J. No. 31.

7 Subsumed in the general criterion are four applicable elements which originated in Power Consolidated (China) Pulp Inc. v. British Columbia Resources Investment Corp. (1988), 19 C.P.C. (3d) at 396 (B.C.C.A.), and were adopted in Med Finance Company S.A. v. Bank of Montreal (1993), 22 C.B.R. (3d) 279 (B.C.C.A.). McLachlin, J.A. (as she then was) set forth the elements in Power Consolidated as follows at p.397:

- (1) whether the point on appeal is of significance to the practice;
- (2) whether the point raised is of significance to the action itself;
- (3) whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious or, on the other hand, whether it is frivolous; and
- (4) whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action.

These elements have been considered and applied by this Court, and were not in dispute before me as proper elements of the applicable criterion.

FACTS

8 On or about October 19, 1999, Air Canada announced its intention to make a bid for CAC and to proceed to complete a merger subject to a restructuring of Canadian's debt. On or about November 5, 1999, following a ruling by the Quebec Superior Court, a competing offer by Airline Industry Revitalization Co. Inc. was withdrawn and Air Canada indicated that it would proceed with its offer for CAC.

9 On or about November 11, 1999, Air Canada caused the incorporation of 853350 Alberta Ltd. (853350), for the sole purpose of acquiring the majority of the shares of CAC. At the time of incorporation, Air Canada held 10 per cent of the shares of 853350. Paul Farrar, among others, holds the remaining 90 per cent of the shares of 853350.

10 On or about November 11, 1999, Air Canada, through 853350, offered to purchase the outstanding shares of CAC at a price of $2.00 per share for a total of $92,000,000.00 for all of the issued and outstanding voting and non-voting shares of CAC.

11 On or about January 4, 2000, Air Canada and 853350 acquired 82 per cent of CAC's outstanding common shares for approximately $75,000,000.00 plus the preferred shares of CAIL for a purchase price of $59,000,000.00. Air Canada then replaced the Board of Directors of CAC with its own nominees.

12 Substantially all of the aircraft making up the fleet of Canadian are held by Air Canada through lease arrangements with various lessors or other aircraft financial agencies. These arrangements were the result of negotiations with lessors, jointly conducted by Air Canada and Canadian.

13 In general, these arrangements include the following:

- (i) the leases have been renegotiated to reflect contemporary fair market value (or below) based on two independent desk top valuations; and
- (ii) the present value of the difference between the financial terms under the previous lease arrangements and the renegotiated fair market value terms was characterized as "unsecured deficiency," reflected in a Promissory Note payable to the lessor from Canadian and assigned by the lessor to Air Canada.

14 In the result, Air Canada has acquired or is in the process of acquiring all but eight of the deficiency claims of aircraft lessors or financiers listed in Schedule "B" to the Plan in the total amount of $253,506,944.00. Air Canada intends to vote those claims as an unsecured creditor under the Plan.

15 The executory contracts claims listed in Schedule "B" to the Plan total $110,677,000.00, of which $108,907,000.00 is the claim of Loyalty Management Group Canada Inc. (Loyalty), an entity with a long term contract with Canadian to purchase air miles. The claim is subject to an agreement of settlement between Loyalty, Canadian and Air Canada. Air Canada was assigned the Loyalty unsecured claim.

16 In the Plan, all unsecured creditors of both CAC and CAI are grouped in the same class for voting purposes.

17 Pursuant to the Plan, unsecured creditors will receive a payment of $0.12 on the dollar for each $1.00 of their claim unless the total amount of unsecured claims exceeds $800 million, in which case, they will receive less. Air Canada will fund this Pro Rata Cash Amount. As a result of the assignments of the deficiency amounts in favour of Air Canada, if the Plan is approved, Air Canada will notionally be paying a substantial proportion of the Pro Rata Cash Amount to itself.

18 The Plan further contemplates Air Canada becoming the 100 per cent owner of Canadian through 853350.

19 On April 7, 2000, an Order was granted by Paperny, J., directing that the Plan be filed by the Petitioners; establishing a claims dispute process; authorizing the calling of meetings for affected creditors to vote on the Plan to be held on May 26, 2000; authorizing the Petitioners to make application for an Order sanctioning the Plan on June 5, 2000; and providing other directions.

20 The April 7, 2000 Order established three classes of creditors: (a) the holders of Canadian Airlines Corporation 10 per cent Senior Secured Notes due 2005 (the Secured Noteholders); (b) the secured creditors of the Petitioners affected by the Plan (the Affected Secured Creditors); and (c) the unsecured creditors affected by the Plan (the Affected Unsecured Creditors).

21 On April 25, 2000, the Petitioners filed and served the Plan, in accordance with the Order of April 7, 2000. By Notice of Motion dated April 27, 2000, Resurgence brought an application, among other things, seeking "directions as to the classification and voting rights of the creditors . . . (and) the quantum of the deficiency claims' assigned to Air Canada." Resurgence sought to have Air Canada excluded from voting as an unsecured creditor unless segregated into a separate class. Resurgence also sought to have the holders of the unsecured notes vote as a separate class.

22 The result of the April 27, 2000 motion by Resurgence is the Decision.

THE DECISION

23 In the Decision, the supervising chambers judge referred to her order of April 14, 2000, wherein she approved transactions involving the re-negotiation of the aircraft leases. She referred to "about $200,000,000.00 worth of concessions for CAIL" as "concessions or deficiency claims" which were quantified and reflected in promissory notes which were assigned to Air Canada in exchange for its guarantee of the aircraft leases. The monitor approved of the method of quantifying the claims and Paperny, J. approved the transactions, reserving the issue of classification and voting to her May 12 Decision.

24 The Plan provides for one class of unsecured creditor. The unsecured class is composed of a number of types of unsecured claims including executory contracts (e.g. Air Canada from Loyalty) unsecured notes (e.g. Resurgence), aircraft leases (e.g. Air Canada from lessors), litigation claims, real estate leases and the deficiencies, if any, of the senior secured noteholders.

25 In seeking to have Air Canada vote the promissory notes in a separate class Resurgence argued several factors before Paperny, J., as set out at pp. 4-5 of the Decision as follows:

1. The Air Canada appointed board caused Canadian to enter into these CCAA proceedings under which Air Canada stands to gain substantial benefits in its own operations and in the merged operations and ownership contemplated after the compromise of debts under the plan.
2. Air Canada is providing the fund of money to be distributed to the Affected Unsecured Creditors and will, therefore, end up paying itself a portion of that money if it is included in the Affected Unsecured Creditors' class and permitted to vote.
3. Air Canada gave no real consideration in acquiring the deficiency claims and manufactured them only to secure a yes' vote.

26 She then recited the argument made by Air Canada and Canadian to the effect that the legal rights associated with Air Canada's unsecured claims are the same as those associated with the other affected unsecured claimants, and that the matters raised by Resurgence relating to classification are really matters of fairness more appropriately dealt with in a Fairness Hearing scheduled to be held June 5, 2000.

27 After observing that the CCAA offers no guidance with respect to the classification of claims, beyond identifying secured and unsecured categories and the possibility of classes within each category, and that the process has developed in case law, Paperny, J. embarked on a detailed analysis and consideration of the case law in this area including Norcen Energy Resources Ltd. v. Oakwood Petroleum Ltd. (1988), 72 C.B.R. (N.S.) 20 (Alta. Q.B.); Sovereign Life Assurance Co. v. Dodd, [1892] 2 Q.B. 573 (C.A.); Re Fairview Industries Ltd. (1991), 11 C.B.R. (3d) 71 (N.S.S.C.T.D.); Re Northland Properties (1989), 73 C.B.R. (N.S.) 195; Savage v. Amoco Acquisition Corp. (1988), 68 C.B.R. (N.S.) 154 (Alta. C.A.); Re Woodward's Ltd. (1993), 84 B.C.L.R. (2d) 206 (B.C.S.C.); Sklar-Pepler Furniture Corp. v. Bank of Nova Scotia (1991), 86 D.L.R. (4th) 621 at 626 (Ont. Gen. Div.); Re NsC Diesel Power Inc. (1990), 79 C.B.R. (N.S.) 1 (N.S.S.C.T.D.); Re Wellington Bldg. Corp., [1934] O.R. 653, 16 C.B.R. 48 (Ont. S.C.). Paperny, J. also referred to an oft-cited article "Reorganization under the Companies Creditors Arrangement Act" by S. E. Edwards (1947), 25 Can. Bar Rev. 587. She concluded her legal analysis at pp.12-13 by setting forth the principles she found to be applicable in assessing commonality of interest as an appropriate test for the classification of creditors:

1. Commonality of interest should be viewed on the basis of the non-fragmentation test, not on an identity of interest test;
2. The interests to be considered are the legal interests the creditor holds qua creditor in relationship to the debtor company, prior to and under the plan as well as on liquidation;
3. The commonality of these interests are to be viewed purposively, bearing in mind the object of the CCAA, namely to facilitate reorganizations if at all possible;
4. In placing a broad and purposive interpretation on the CCAA, the court should be careful to resist classification approaches which would potentially jeopardize

- potentially viable plans.
5. Absent bad faith, the motivations of the creditors to approve or disapprove are irrelevant.
 6. The requirement of creditors being able to consult together means being able to assess their legal entitlement as creditors before or after the plan in a similar manner.

THE STANDARD OF REVIEW AND LEAVE APPLICATIONS

28 The elements of the general criterion cannot be properly considered in a leave application without regard to the standard of review that this Court applies to appeals under the CCAA. If leave to appeal were to be granted, the applicable standard of review is succinctly set forth by Fruman, J.A. in UTI Energy Corp. v. Fracmaster Ltd. (2000), 244 A.R. 93 where she stated for the Court at p.95:

. . . . this is a court of review. It is not our task to reconsider the merits of the various offers and decide which proposal might be best. The decisions made by the Chambers judge involve a good measure of discretion, and are owed considerable deference. Whether or not we agree, we will only interfere if we conclude that she acted unreasonably, erred in principle or made a manifest error.

In another recent CCAA case from this Court, Re Smoky River Coal Ltd. (1999) 237 A.R. 326, Hunt, J.A., speaking for the unanimous Court, extensively reviewed the history and purpose of the CCAA, and observed at p.341:

The fact that an appeal lies only with leave of an appellate court (s. 13 CCAA) suggests that Parliament, mindful that CCAA cases often require quick decision-making, intended that most decisions be made by the supervising judge. This supports the view that those decisions should be interfered with only in clear cases.

29 The standard of review of this Court, in reviewing the CCAA decision of the supervising judge, is therefore one of correctness if there is an error of law. Otherwise, for an appellate court to interfere with the decision of the supervising judge, there must be a palpable and overriding error in the exercise of discretion or in findings of fact.

STATUTORY PROVISIONS

30 The CCAA includes provisions defining secured creditor, unsecured creditor, refers to classes of them, and provides for court approval of a plan of compromise or arrangement in the following sections:

2. INTERPRETATION . . . "secured creditor" means a holder of a mortgage, hypothec, pledge, charge, lien or privilege on or against, or any assignment, cession or transfer of, all or any property of a debtor company as security for indebtedness of the debtor company, or a holder of any bond of a debtor company secured by a mortgage, hypothec, pledge, charge, lien or privilege on or against, or any assignment, cession or transfer of, or a trust in respect of, all or any property of the debtor company, whether the holder or beneficiary is resident or domiciled within or outside Canada, and a trustee under any trust deed or other instrument securing any of those bonds shall be deemed to be a secured creditor for all purposes of this Act except for the purpose of voting at a creditors' meeting in respect of any of those bonds; . . . "Unsecured creditor" means any creditor of a company who is not a secured creditor, whether resident or domiciled within or outside Canada, and a trustee for the holders of any unsecured bonds issue under a trust deed or other instrument running in favour of the trustee shall be deemed to be an unsecured creditor for all purposes of this Act except for the purpose of voting at a creditors' meeting in respect of any of those bonds.

COMPROMISES AND ARRANGEMENTS

4. Where a compromise or an arrangement is proposed between a debtor company and its unsecured creditors or any class of them, the court may, on the application in a summary way of the company, of any such creditor or of the trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator of the company, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, and, if the court so determines, of the shareholders of the company, to be summoned in such a manner as the court directs.
5. Where a compromise or an arrangement is proposed between a debtor company and its secured creditors or any class of them, the court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any such creditor or of the trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator of the company, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, and, if the court so determines, of the shareholders of the company, to be summoned in such manner as the courts directs. . . . 6. Where a majority in number representing two-thirds in value of the creditors, or class of creditors, as the case may be, present and voting either in person or by proxy at the meeting or meetings thereof respectively held pursuant to sections 4 and 5, or either of those sections, agree to any compromise or arrangement either as proposed or as altered or modified at the meeting or meetings, the compromise or arrangement may be sanctioned by the court, and if so sanctioned is binding

- (a) on all the creditors or the class of creditors, as the case may be, and on any trustee for any such class of creditors, whether secured or unsecured, as the case may be, and on the company; and
- (b) in the case of a company that has made an authorized assignment or against which a receiving order has been made under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act or is in the course of being wound up under the Winding-up and Restructuring Act, on the trustee in bankruptcy or liquidator and contributories of the company.

CLASSES OF CREDITORS

31 It is apparent from a review of the foregoing sections that division into classes of creditors within the unsecured and secured categories may, in any given case, materially affect the outcome of the vote referenced in section 6. Compliance with section 6 triggers the ability of the court to approve or sanction the Plan and to bind the parties referenced in s. 6(a) and 6(b) of the CCAA. In argument before me, it was conceded by the applicant that Resurgence would not have the ability to ensure approval of the Plan by casting its vote if Air Canada were to be excised from the unsecured creditor category into a separate class. Conversely, counsel for Resurgence candidly admitted that Resurgence would effectively have a veto of the Plan if Air Canada were segregated into a separate class of unsecured creditor.

APPLICATION OF THE CRITERIA FOR LEAVE TO APPEAL

32 The four elements of the general criterion are set out in paragraph [7]. The first and second elements are satisfied in this case. The points raised on appeal are of significance to the action. If Resurgence succeeds, it obtains a veto. If it does not succeed, and it votes as a member of the unsecured creditors class with Air Canada, Air Canada can control the vote of the unsecured creditors.

33 In terms of the points on appeal being of significance to the practice, it may be that an appellate court's views in this province on the classification of unsecured creditors issue is desirable, there being no appellate authority from this Court on this issue. Although I have doubt as to the significance of this element of the general criterion in the context of the facts of this case, I am prepared for the purposes of this application to treat this element as having being satisfied.

34 The third element is whether the appeal is prima facie meritorious or, on the other hand, whether it is frivolous. In my view, the proper interpretation of this element is not a mutually exclusive application of an appeal being either meritorious or frivolous. Rather, the appeal must be prima facie meritorious; if it is not prima facie meritorious, this element is not satisfied.

35 I find that the appeal on the points raised from the Decision is not prima facie meritorious. In the plain ordinary meaning of the words of this element, on first impression, there must appear to be an error in principle of law or a palpable and overriding error of fact. Exercise of discretion by a supervising judge, so long as it is exercised judicially, is not a matter for interference by an appellate court, even if the appellate court were inclined to decide the matter another way. It is precisely this kind of a factor which breathes life into the modifier "prima facie" meritorious.

36 I have carefully reviewed all of the cases referred to by the supervising chambers judge and the principles she derived from them. In my view, she made no error in law.

37 In the exercise of her discretion, she decided neither to allow the applicant's motion to excise Air Canada from the unsecured creditors class nor to prohibit Air Canada from voting. She also declined, on the facts established before her, to separate creditors of CAC from creditors of CAIL for voting purposes. She did, however, order that Air Canada's vote be recorded and tabulated and indicated that this will be considered at the Fairness Hearing.

38 It was strenuously argued before me by the applicant, that deferring classification and voting issues to the Fairness Hearing was an error of law or principle in and of itself.

39 The argument was put in terms that if, on a proper classification of unsecured creditors, Air Canada was removed from the unsecured class, and Resurgence vetoed the Plan, the matter of a Fairness Hearing would never arise. While that may be true, it does not follow that there is any error in law in what the supervising judge did. She concluded that the separate tabulation of the votes will allow the voice of the unsecured creditors to be heard, while, at the same time, permit, rather than rule out the possibility, that the Plan might proceed. This approach is consistent with the purpose of the CCAA as articulated in many of the authorities in this country.

40 The supervising chambers judge also refused to exclude Air Canada from voting on the basis that the legal rights attached to the notes held by Air Canada were valid. Resurgence argued that because Air Canada had other interests in the outcome of the Plan, it should be excluded from voting as an unsegregated secured creditor. Paperny, J. held that this was an issue of fairness, as was the fact that Air Canada was really voting on its own reorganization. She did not err in principle. She expressly acknowledged the authorities that, on different facts, either allowed different classes or excluded a vote. See, for example, Re Woodward's Ltd. (1993), 84 B.C.L.R. (2d) 206 (B.C.S.C.); Re Northland Properties Ltd. (1988), 73 C.B.R. (N.S.) 166 (B.C.S.C.); Re NsC Diesel Power Inc. (1990), 79 C.B.R. (N.S.) 1 (N.S.S.C.T.D.).

41 The fourth element of the general criterion is whether the appeal will unduly hinder the progress of the action. In other words, will the delay involved in prosecuting, hearing and deciding the appeal be of such length so as to unduly impede the ultimate resolution of the matter by a vote or court sanction? The approach of the supervising judge to the issues raised by the applicant is that its concerns will be seriously addressed at the Fairness Hearing scheduled for June 5, 2000, pursuant to s. 6 of the CCAA, provided the creditors vote to adopt the Plan.

42 This element has at its root the purpose of the CCAA; the role of the supervising judge; the need for a timely and orderly resolution of the matter; and the effect on the interests of all parties pending a decision on appeal. The comments of McFarlane, J.A. in Re Pacific National Lease Holding Corp. (1992) 15 C.B.R. (3d) 265 (B.C.C.A.) are particularly apt where he stated as follows at p.272:

Despite what I have said, there may be an arguable case for the petitioners to present to a panel of this Court on discreet questions of law. But I am of the view that this Court should exercise its powers sparingly when it is asked to intervene with respect to questions which arise under the C.C.A.A. The process of management which the Act has assigned to the trial Court is an ongoing one. In this case a number of orders have been made. Some, including the one under appeal, have not been settled or entered. Other applications are pending. The process contemplated by the Act is continuing.

A colleague has suggested that a judge exercising a supervisory function under the C.C.A.A. is more like a judge hearing a trial, who makes orders in the course of that trial, than a chambers judge who makes interlocutory or proceedings for which he has no further responsibility.

Also, we know that in a case where a judgment has not been entered, it may be open to a judge to reconsider his or her judgment, and alter its terms. In supervising a proceeding under the C.C.A.A. orders are made, and orders are varied as changing circumstances require. Orders depend upon a careful and delicate balancing of a variety of interests and of problems. In that context appellate proceedings may well upset the balance, and delay or frustrate the process under the C.C.A.A. I do not say that leave will never be granted in a C.C.A.A. proceeding. But the effect upon all parties concerned will be an important consideration in deciding whether leave ought to be granted.

43 In that case, it appears that McFarlane, J.A. was satisfied that the first three elements of the criteria had been met, i.e. that there "may be an arguable case for the petitioners to present to a panel of this court on discrete [sic] questions of law".

44 It was argued before me that an appeal would give rise to an uncertainty of process and a lack of confidence in it; that the creditors, or some of them, may be inclined to withdraw support for the Plan that would otherwise be forthcoming, but for the delay. None of the parties tendered affidavit evidence on this issue.

45 Nowhere in any of the authorities has the issue of onus in meeting the elements the general criterion been prominent. I am of the view that the onus is on the applicant. That onus would include the applicant producing at least some evidence on the fourth element to shift the onus to the respondents, even though it involves proving a negative, i.e. that there will not be any material adverse impact as the result of the delay occasioned by an appeal. That evidence is lacking in this case. It is lacking on both sides but the respondents do not have an initial onus in this regard. Therefore, I find that the fourth element has not been established by the applicant.

46 The last step in a proper analysis in the context of a leave application is to ascribe appropriate weight to each of the elements of the general criterion and decide over all whether the test has been met. In most cases, the last two elements will be more important, and ought to be ascribed more weight than the first two elements. The last two elements here have not been met while the first two arguably have. In the result, I am satisfied that the applicant has not met the threshold for leave to appeal on the basis of the authorities, and I am therefore denying the application.

CONCLUSION

47 The application for leave to appeal the Decision is dismissed on the basis that there is no prima facie meritorious case and that the granting of leave would likely unduly hinder the progress of the action.
